2 Railroads Struck; Work Rules Altered

By United Press International
The United Transportation Union (UTU) launched selective strikes against the Union Pacific and Southern Railroads Friday in a knotty work rules dispute. Other railroads began imposing new rules that wiped out the jobs of many non-striking members of the union.

The rail strike — and the threat it posed of a nationwide rail tieup — multiplied the labor woes of a nation already plagued by a coast-to-coast telephone strike and prolonged strikes in the copper, shipping, telegraph and farm equipment industries.

UTU members — brakemen, conductors, switchmen and other train-operating employees — set up picket lines in the early morning hours along the sprawling Southern in the East and South and the Union Pacific in the Midwest and West.

'Strike Is On'
Union President Charles Luna announced "the strike is on" after all-night negotiations in Washington broke up without a settlement. Government officials, who strove unsuccessfully through the night to head off the walkout, said talks would resume later Friday in an effort to settle the strike before it spreads.

The railroad industry, which negotiates as a unit, began imposing work rules even more stringent than those it has proposed in the negotiations.

The UTU urged its members on non-striking carriers to observe the rule changes temporarily rather than striking against them. The American Association of Railroads reported no wildcat strikes had hit the other lines.

The Santa Fe Railroad said it posted new rules that left 1,000 UTU members jobless. The Milwaukee Road said under new rules approximately 400 persons were not called to work. An Illinois Central Railroad spokesman said some employees would be out of work by Monday or Tuesday.

The Norfolk and Western Railroad said between 100 and 150 firemen on its systems were being furloughed for the duration of the UTU strike.

Officials of the Boston and Maine Railroad said there were "no static or ripples" when the new rules were posted.

About 9,000 members of the UTU were directly involved in the strikes against the Union Pacific and Southern. An estimated 20,000 other union workers were idled when they refused to cross picket lines.

The two railroads used supervisory personnel to keep trains running to terminal points. Bus service was provided for handfulls of stranded passengers on both lines.

Wheat Boxcars Halted
The strike hit in the midst of a bumper wheat harvest on the Central Plains. Union Pacific said it had halted the movement of 200 cars of wheat daily in Kansas and 150 cars daily in Nebraska.

Scattered instances of violence and vandalism hit the Bell Telephone System, where a strike of 500,000 members of the Communications Workers of America (CWA) was in its third day.

Union and management sources in Washington reported talks were continuing — with no word of progress — at various points across the nation.

Ten persons were arrested at Davenport, Iowa, when they tried to block the entrance to a telephone office.

A telephone lineman for Illinois Bell was arrested in connection with the firebombing of a company garage in Elgin, Ill. A bullet fired into an equipment shed knocked out 36 local circuits in Marin County, California.

Cable slashings or other vandalism were reported elsewhere in California and in Tennessee, New York, Michigan and Indiana. Four pickets were arrested at a telephone service center in Dayton, Ohio, where strikers refused to let supervisory personnel enter.

Escape Attempt Is Foiled By Celebrating Officials

Four inmates of the State Penitentiary were foiled in an escape attempt Friday night by officials celebrating the appointment of a new warden.

The inmates, who held six guards hostage for two hours while they cut through the bars and wire mesh covering a cell window, were spotted climbing out the window from the patio of the warden's official residence just outside the prison walls.

One of the officials, Ron Jones, associate warden in charge of medium security, ran to the front gate to get a handgun and returned in time to hold the four at gun point until help arrived.

In East Cellhouse
Newly named Warden Charles L. Wolff said the four inmates took the five guards in the east cellhouse hostage at about 6:10 p.m.

At 6:30, Lt. Albert Knight was also captured while making his normal rounds.

The five guards, who were all taken one at a time, were identified by prison officials as Andrew Mueller, John Battershell, Jerry Crandel, Donald Tallison and Mark Plattner.

The inmates were armed with handmade knives, Wolff said.

A patio supper being held at the official residence of retiring Warden Maurice Sigler, however, proved their downfall.

Spotted
Wolff and Jones spotted the inmates as they were climbing out of the cell window and alerted prison guards.

Jones ran and got a gun and intercepted the inmates at the fence. He fired three warning shots and the inmates surrendered.

Wolff said one of the men had already cleared the fence, one was on the fence and two were still inside.

Other state officials who were attending the patio supper also assisted in the capture.

The four inmates were identified as:

—James Howard Byrd, 31, serving a life sentence for second degree murder.

—Howard Crooks, 43, also serving life for second degree murder.

—John Allen Scott, 33, serving 2 to 4 years for burglary with a term to follow for an escape attempt in 1969.

—Lawrence Ortiz, 41, serving a life term for first degree murder.

Wolff said no one was injured in the escape attempt.

Valuation Decision Postponed

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

At the recommendation of State Tax Commissioner William Peters, the State Board of Equalization Friday put off for at least one month a decision on the acceptance of property tax valuations made by the state's 93 counties.

Peters suggested that no counties be summoned for a hearing to justify their property tax valuations.

This, in effect, means that the board will accept the valuations submitted, since counties are entitled to a hearing before the board if valuations are changed.

The tax commissioner pointed to the poor record of the board's changes when they are challenged in court.

"In 1969, out of the 29 county valuations which we changed, 21 were reversed and 8 were affirmed," Peters said.

The five-member board also took up the problem of unequal assessments among bordering counties which have overlapping school districts.

Regional Concept
As a solution Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson and Secretary of State Allen Beermann forwarded a regional concept whereby assessors of the region would settle the conflicting valuations among themselves.

In other action, representatives from Nebraska's five major railroads protested that railroads in the state are assessed at 35% of actual value whereas most property is assessed at a rate less than 30%.

If the railroads' assessed valuation had been arrived at in the same manner as other property, said Byron Stratton of the Union Pacific, it would be approximately $38.9 million instead of the current $50 million.

The board will decide the case at its next meeting.

Disease Declared Emergency

Austin, Tex. (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin declared a "national emergency" Friday to provide more federal money to fight an epidemic of sleeping sickness that has killed up to 6,000 horses in Texas and Mexico.

With hundreds of persons reported sick from the disease, doctors said the death of a 6-year-old girl at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio might be due to Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis, the virus which swept into Texas from Mexico last week and threatened to spread further.

The girl, identified only as the daughter of an Air Force enlisted man, died Wednesday of some form of encephalomyelitis and doctors ordered an autopsy to see if it was the same strain that attacked the horses.

About the time the girl's death was being made public, the Agriculture Department announced that Hardin "has declared a national emergency exists threatening the horse industry because of an epidemic of Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis now widespread in Texas."

Hardin said his declaration would make money available in whatever amounts necessary to combat the disease. With the additional funds, an emergency program to vaccinate all the half million horses in Texas will be stepped up and a spraying program will be expanded to try to control mosquitoes which transmit the disease.

Nebraska Embargos Movement Of Horses, Mules From Texas

The state veterinarian's office announced Friday an embargo has been imposed against the movement of horses and mules from Texas into Nebraska.

State Veterinarian Dr. Norman Kruse also said another embargo will go into effect at 8 a.m. Saturday against Oklahoma horses.

The restrictions against the two states are being imposed because of confirmed reports of horse sleeping sickness, Kruse said. The actual name of the disease is Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis.

In addition to those two states, Kruse said, there have been "rumors" that the disease has spread to Iowa. If confirmed, he said, the embargo would be imposed on that state as well as the others.

The veterinarian said his office fielded phone calls from Nebraska horse owners and veterinarians all day Friday asking about a vaccine. But he said while a vaccine has been in use in Texas, it "has not been proven effective" enough for approval and use in Nebraska.

Sen. George McGovern Friday said he cannot envision any circumstance under which he, as president, would "commit American forces to combat" without a congressional declaration of war.

And, he said, he would hope that whoever is president at the end of the war in Vietnam would "adopt a very lenient amnesty policy" for American boys who refused to participate in the war out of conscience.

That includes those who fled to Canada and those who were sent to prison for refusing to recognize the military draft, McGovern said.

Applause Enthusiastic
The South Dakota Democrat's declarations — both given in response to questioners — were enthusiastically applauded by a jammed reception crowd at a downtown hotel.

McGovern, the only announced Democratic presidential candidate, campaigned in Lincoln and Omaha as he kicked off a three-day foray into Nebraska.

Earlier, in Omaha, he praised President Nixon's decision to visit China and urged recognition of Peking in the United Nations as "the sole legitimate government of China."

McGovern took to the streets in both downtown Omaha and Lincoln, shaking hands with shoppers. He lunched with Douglas County Democratic leaders in the Gate City and dined with Lancaster County Democratic women in the Capital City.

Young Voters Numerous
At a reception in Lincoln, attended by large numbers of potential new young voters, McGovern fielded questions on a host of subjects.

The senator warned young people that "a lot of people will do what they can to make it hard for you" to register to vote in the 1972 presidential election.

They should be prepared to overcome any such obstacles and "struggle to exercise your option," he declared.

Curb On CIA Favored
McGovern promised to support "a strong agricultural program" and told one questioner that Congress should strictly limit the CIA to intelligence activities.

"They should not be in the business of fomenting coups or dumping governments or assassination," he insisted.

His poor standing in the polls suggests that such surveys are "no more than a recognition factor at this point," McGovern said.

"I expect to do much better in the primaries than with Dr. Gallup or Mr. Harris," he said.

And, the senator suggested, he believes the eventual Democratic nominee "will be decided" in the primaries.

Nebraska Key
Nebraska is a key contest for him, he told newsmen in Omaha.

"We're going to make a major effort in both Nebraska and South Dakota, and we expect to win both primaries," McGovern said.

An "all-out effort" will also be mounted in Wisconsin, he promised, and "we expect to do very well" there.

The departure of Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa from the Democratic presidential sweepstakes represents "a significant gain for me," he said.

"We tended to appeal to the same constituency," he noted.

It is "too early" to accurately assess the effect of Friday's entry of Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma into the presidential free-for-all, McGovern said.

He'll Hit Economic Issues
Long identified chiefly as an antiwar candidate McGovern said he will "zero in on economic issues" during coming weeks. His targets will include unemployment, farm prices and "rampant inflation," he said.

The future of Taiwan, site of the Nationalist Chinese government, should be "essentially resolved" by negotiations among the Chinese people, McGovern said.

"We should permit the Chinese to work out this problem among themselves."

President Nixon's trip to China "signals recognition of the fact that the real government is in Peking," McGovern said.

"We have maintained the charade (of acting otherwise) long enough."

He Sought Visit OK

In a taped interview which will be telecast on KUON-TV and the Nebraska Educational Television Network next Wednesday night at 9:30 p.m., McGovern revealed that he requested to visit China five years ago.

His request received no official response, the senator said, but now that China has opened its borders to some American visitors, he would like to go.

McGovern will travel to Laurel and Norfolk Saturday for meetings with farmers and party leaders in northeast Nebraska, then return to Omaha for a reception with labor leaders.

On Sunday, the senator will mine the vote-rich Democratic precincts of Omaha through a series of private meetings, a campaign dinner and an afternoon reception at Elmwood Park.

Two Lincoln area youngsters stepped off a bus here this week with a host of new friends and a round of new perspectives on the work of the United Nations.

Jeanine Haase and Bob Stickney were among 32 young people, mostly from the Cornhusker State, who traveled to the East Coast for several days of briefings on the U.N.

Another local youngster, Larry Adams, was boarding a bus for a similar trip on the same day Bob, Jeanine and friends were arriving back home.

The trips are part of a project sponsored by the Odd Fellows and Rebekah Lodges. Each summer literally hundreds of youths travel across the country from all parts of the U.S. to visit the United Nations.

Lodges Pay
Bob and Jeanine got their trips courtesy of the Lincoln lodges and youth auxiliaries, while Larry is one of two Nebraskans awarded a trip scholarship for outstanding service in the Junior Odd Fellows.

The trip that Jeanine and Bob were on started June 28 from York. The kids arrived in New York City on independence Day.

The next few days, Jeanine explained, were full of four-a-day briefings at the United Nations. On the way home, the kids stopped off for two days in Washington, D.C.

"The main thing (the U.N. visit) shows you," said Jeanine, is how the structure of the United Nations works."

Bob agreed. "We learned what it is all about," he said.

Didn't Know Purpose

"I didn't know the main purpose" of the international agency, he added, but he said the U.N.'s peace-keeping missions and its efforts to aid underdeveloped countries were evident from the briefings.

Although the trips are designed mainly as concentrated studies of the United Nations and its work, both Bob and Jeanine were also impressed by other aspects of the tour.

Both mentioned the stop at Gettysburg as one of the highlights.

Jeanine, 15, will be a junior this fall at Lincoln's Northeast High, while Bob, also 15, will be a sophomore at Waverly High.

Jeanine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Haase of 6701 Adams, Bob the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stickney of Walton and Larry the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Adams of 1500 No. 52nd.

New York Times News Summary

(c) New York Times News Service
San Clemente, Calif. — President Nixon's visit to Peking would be made late this year at the earliest, officials at the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., said Friday. They added that Nixon would confer with Mao Tse-tung as well as Premier Chou En-lai and that the American position on United Nations membership for China would be announced in "The near future."

Russians Stunned By News

Nixon Trip Welcomed

New York — Most Far Eastern governments seemed to welcome the news of President Nixon's visit, but domestic political repercussions were expected in South Vietnam, Japan and Australia. The Nationalist Chinese on Taiwan reacted with disbelief and dismay. (More on Page 2)

Two Railroads Struck

Washington — After early-morning talks ended in a deadlock over work rules, train crews struck the Union Pacific and Southern Railways. By day's end, all traffic on the two lines was reported halted. Similar walkouts are threatened for next week against three other carriers: the Chicago and Northwestern, the Southern Pacific and the Norfolk and Western. (More on Page 1.)

Congressmen Laud Nixon

Washington — On Capitol Hill, only a handful of conservatives criticized the President for accepting the invitation. Most members of Congress supported Nixon, and many said he had defused the criticism of the war and outflanked his potential presidential challengers.

Talks' Contents Untold

Peking — Chinese officials in Peking expressed pleasure about the coming visit. However, they offered no information about the substance of the talks between Henry Kissinger and Premier Chou En-lai.

GNP Makes Steady Rise

Washington — The gross national product, the government's most comprehensive economic barometer, confirmed the steady recovery from the 1970 recession in its figures for this year's second quarter. The "real" output of goods and services rose during the quarter at an annual rate of 3.6%, the figures showed. (More on Page 17.)

Mills Wants Tax Cuts

Washington — Taxes should be reduced for businesses and for low-income individuals "to get this economy moving again," Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee proposed in a speech scheduled for delivery in Ogden, Utah, but he said such tax cuts should be conditioned on imposition of wage and price controls and a ceiling on federal spending.

Natural Gas Hikes OK'd

Washington — Sharply higher rates for natural gas produced in the southern Louisiana area were approved by the Federal Power Commission. The decision is expected to result in high gas prices for consumers because the Louisiana fields are the largest in the nation. The FPC cited a "critical shortage" of gas in its decision, but consumer groups expressed skepticism that a shortage actually exists. (Another story on Page 17.)

Warren Court Criticized

Harris Organizes Campaign

Little River, Okla. — Sen. Fred R. Harris told a news conference in Little River, Okla., that he would not seek re-election to the Senate and that he would organize a campaign for the Democratic nomination for president. He stopped just short of announcing his candidacy. Harris would have faced a tough primary challenge if he had sought re-election. (More on Page 17.)

Most Nations Praise Nixon Visit

... NATIONALIST CHINESE OBJECT; SOVIET SUSPICIOUS

By United Press International
The disclosure that President Nixon will visit China dismayed the rival Nationalist Chinese regime Friday and aroused the deepest suspicions of the Russians, but most of the world called it a realistic move.

The governments of Denmark and of such Southeast Asian nations as South Vietnam, Cambodia, Thailand and Malaysia expressed the hope that a Washington-Peking thaw would hasten the end of the Indochina war.

Secretary General U Thant said it brightened the prospects for China's entry into the United Nations before the end of this year.

De Facto 'Two Chinas'

In Taipei, the Nationalist Chinese capital on the island of Taiwan, 100 miles off the China mainland, diplomatic sources predicted the move would force a de facto "two Chinas" policy on the reluctant regime of President Chiang Kai-shek.

The 83-year-old Chiang himself was on vacation but his government lodged a "strong protest" with U.S. Ambassador Walter P. McCone.

"We are very disturbed," said Nationalist Foreign Minister Chow Shu-kai.

Heavily Dependent

But observers questioned whether Taipei would break relations with the United States, on whom it heavily depends for support in holding on to its U.N. seat, for half its foreign trade and for $100 million a year in military aid.

UPI correspondent K. C. Thaler reported that Soviet-bloc diplomats in London expressed surprise at the announcement, but said Nixon's trip to Peking may prompt a prior invitation to Moscow — something that up to now the Russians have only described as "a possibility."

On the other hand, Soviet-bloc diplomats said, some sort of behind-the-scenes deal may be brewing between the United States and China, such as an exchange of ambassadors, an economic cooperation program, a Vietnam settlement, or even a compromise about Taiwan.

Kremlin Said Cool

UPI correspondent Henry Shapiro reported that the Kremlin reacted with distinct coolness. The official Tass news agency reported the invitation briefly and without comment.

Ever since the Moscow-Peking rift opened up a decade ago, each capital has been deeply suspicious of the other's motives and each has accused the other of collusion with U.S. imperialism.

The rivalry between the two huge Communist states erupted into open frontier skirmishes two years ago. Since then, discussions between the two powers have been held in Peking but they currently are at a standstill.

By contrast, the quickening of U.S.-Chinese contacts has caused consternation in the Kremlin.

Radio Moscow commented last May 20, after Nixon first expressed an interest in visiting Peking some day, that "the anti-Soviet policy of the clique of Peking leaders makes it worthwhile to carry out secret collusion in Peking and to use Peking's anti-Sovietism in the service of Washington Policy."

Pledges Unimpressive

It was apparent that the Soviets are no more impressed with Nixon's assurance that the Peking visit "is not directed against any other nation" than are the Chinese Nationalists with his promise that it "will not be at the expense of our old friends."

In Paris, diplomatic sources told UPI correspondent Ray F. Herndon that the Sino-American contacts might break the logjam at the Vietnam peace talks there.

The North Vietnamese, however, were as initially noncommittal as the Russians. The fact that the invitation to Nixon came from Premier Chou En-lai could only remind them that it was Chou who struck the Geneva Conference bargain with France that ended the French military role in Indochina in 1954.

Lost At Peace Table

The North Vietnamese have always insisted that much of what they had won on the battlefield was lost at the Geneva peace table and this has been one reason for their reluctance to attend another Geneva conference.

President Nixon called last Oct. 7 for a widened, Geneva-type conference and Chou En-lai said just this week that Communist China would be willing to attend a new Geneva conference on Indochina.

Great Britain and France said they welcomed the Nixon visit to Peking. Swedish Foreign Minister Krister Wickman called the invitation and acceptance "actions of true statesmanship."

West Germany, Belgium, Norway, Denmark and the Vatican all expressed satisfaction. Antonio Cariglia, president of the Italian Chamber of Deputies foreign affairs committee, called it "sensational."

"Very Interesting"

Foreign Minister Leslie Bury of Australia, whose country is somewhat closer to China, called it "a very interesting move."

In Warsaw, where the secret ambassadorial talks between China and the United States, started at Geneva in 1954, have gone on for the past 12 years, it was expected that these talks will end as other channels of contact open up.

In China itself, the New China News Agency, only a few hours after announcing the Nixon visit, broadcast the text of a speech by a Chinese Communist party functionary denouncing "U.S. imperialism" as an "arch criminal."

Whether this was a case of bureaucratic lag, or a sign that nothing had changed, remains to be seen.

HANK TELLS STORY ... in San Clemente.

Mitchell Criticizes 'Sea Of Legalisms'

London (P) — U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell charged Friday that many criminals are getting off scot free because of stalling tactics that abuse traditional rights of the accused and threaten to drown American justice "in a sea of legalisms."

Mitchell said this has encouraged would-be criminals to break the law and has led to "cynical distrust" of the courts by many Americans.

Addressing 2,000 lawyers on the third day of a week-long convention of the American Bar Association, Mitchell said America should try to adopt some methods of the English court system — "a model of swift justice."

Century Behind

At the same meeting, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said American lawyers were a century behind the British in professional training and enforcement of ethical standards.

His English counterpart, Lord Chief Justice Widgery, drew applause from Mitchell and most delegates in an unusual attack on certain U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

Lord Widgery criticized the Supreme Court for throwing out convictions which the court said were based on confessions improperly derived by police.

Mitchell, in his speech, complained that excessive legal technicalities were weakening enforcement.

"Criminals Encouraged"

"When potential criminals are encouraged because they know there is slight chance of conviction, much less imprisonment, when the convicted felon never reaches the moment of truth and faces his own guilt, it is not just the courts that are affected by our present plague of courtroom gamesmanship, it is the whole criminal justice system."

"With all this, I do not advocate lessening the due process rights of the accused ..."

"But I am speaking of the distortion of these practices for the purpose of thwarting justice."

Mitchell said deliberate stalling and other delays caused by red tape "can have the effect of dragging our justice to death and stealing the very life out of our criminal law."

Speedy Trials Blocked

He contended that the path to speedy trials was blocked by "the overabundance of pretrial hearings designed mainly to deprive the jury of material and relevant evidence," and by ritualistic technicalities and "endless posttrial appeals."

He also charged that the judiciary has been too preoccupied "in the exhilarating adventure of making new law and new public policy from the bench" rather than judging guilt and innocence.

In his speech, Lord Widgery urged the removal of some restrictions on police in interrogating suspects. It was in this context that he assailed the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in the famous Miranda case involving the validity of a confession obtained by police.

Chief Justice Burger, calling for stricter enforcement of ethical standards for lawyers, warned: "No system of justice can tolerate indefinitely departures from ethical standards. No system can be fair and just in the long run if it does tolerate them."

Burger said action to curb unprincipled prosecutors and defense lawyers by implementing such standards in all 50 states was "a decision of the greatest importance and urgency."

Kissinger's Style In Limelight Again

By KEN HARTNETT

Washington (P) — Henry A. Kissinger, who attracts the dramatic way money attracts bears, has done it again — this time with a secret diplomatic mission to Peking that startled the world of power politics.

For the 48-year-old presidential assistant for national security affairs, the clandestine visit to the capital of Communist China was perfectly in character.

The orthodox approach is not always Kissinger's cup of tea.

Open Communications

While most Nixon administration officials have avoided the peace movement like leprosy, Kissinger has kept communications open.

He even sat down in the White House with three people named as co-conspirators in an alleged plot to kidnap him.

His trip to Peking to arrange for a future visit to China by President Nixon may not have been an entirely new experience for Kissinger.

A former Harvard colleague said two years ago that President Lyndon B. Johnson sent Kissinger behind the bamboo curtain to Hanoi in 1966 and that he returned with a report critical of the war.

Has Certain Flair

Whether talking to peace groups, advising the President on foreign policy options or squiring glamorous women around Washington or New York, the German-born

Kissinger operates with a certain flair.

Not everyone on the banks of the Charles is happy about it, an unhappiness that deepened as the Vietnam war dragged on and Kissinger was linked to those urging the incursions into Cambodia and Laos.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., expressed a widespread sentiment when he said that Kissinger was "secretary of state in everything but title" and that Secretary of State William P. Rogers had become an object of laughter on the Washington social circuit.

Power Minimized

Kissinger denies that he maintains any inordinate influence over the President. "It would be preposterous to pretend I don't have any influence," he said, but added, "A man doesn't become a president who has a weak will."

"I say to the President, you've got this problem and you have three or four different ways of going at it and here are the different points of view. When he asks me what I think, I tell him. But a president is never dependent on one man."

Kissinger, a refugee at age 15 from Nazi Germany, enrolled at Harvard in 1946 after serving in Army counterintelligence during World War II.

He was launched on what was to become a brilliant academic career.

Demos' Convention Delegate Reform Bugged Down In All But Nine States

(c) Washington Star
Washington — With less than a year remaining before the opening of the Democratic party's presidential nominating convention, the party acknowledged Friday that only nine states "are in apparent compliance" with new guidelines for reform of delegate selection procedures.

Apparently seeking to place the situation in the best possible light, the Democratic National Committee buried that figure in a report which emphasized instead an optimistic prediction that "no less than 40 state Democratic parties will have met the guidelines" by the end of this year.

The group charged with the task of drafting and implementing these guidelines, the Commission on Party Structure and Delegate Selection, met here for the first time in 20 months, amid growing speculation that its reform program is faltering.

'Reform Bugged Down'

The National Journal, a non-partisan weekly publication devoted to political and governmental research, conducted an extensive survey of the Democrats' reform program and reported last month:

"In state after state, the reform drive has bogged down, as party leaders concern themselves more with the race for the Democratic presidential nomination than with improving the machinery under which the party's candidate is finally chosen."

Similarly, Kenneth A. Bode, former research director for the commission and now director of the Center for Political Reform, a private organization seeking implementation of the guidelines, has concluded that "the reform is on the verge of turning sour."

The reform guidelines, adopted by the commission in November, 1969, call for:

—A selection procedure in each state for naming delegates to the party's national convention which is both timely and democratic, specifically including representation for members of minority groups, women and young voters.

—The abolition of such time-honored political traditions as proxy voting, unit rule, mandatory assessments of convention delegates and party meetings called without notification of dissident factions.

Few Complying

The National Journal, in a mid-June report, said in formation provided by the Democratic National Committee showed that at that time 44 states still were not in compliance with the racial requirements, 38 were not in compliance with the age and sex guidelines, 47 had not met the standard requiring written rules for delegate selection and 24 had not insured that the selection process will be timely.

Concluding that the effort was "faltering," the publication said that "a widespread failure to comply with the reforms raises the specter of extensive credentials challenges at the convention," which is scheduled for early July, 1972.

The report to the commission Friday shows that the only states in apparent compliance are Alabama, Iowa, Maine, Missouri, Mississippi, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Ohio and Oklahoma.

USDA Wants Less Wheat, Feed In 1972

Washington (P) — The Agriculture Department took steps Friday to tighten up wheat and livestock feed grain production next year and increase the output of soybeans.

In 1972, wheat farmers will be required to take an additional 1.7 million acres of cropland from production before qualifying for government price supports and payments.

Also, the department announced, barley will be included in the 1972 feed grains program. Thus, to qualify for benefits on that grain, farmers will have to "set aside" a share of acreage for that crop.

A third step was to make soybeans eligible for planting in 1972 on feed grains and wheat land. In other words, corn and wheat farmers will be able to plant soybeans and still preserve their respective crop histories.

Substitution of feed on wheat land, and wheat on feed acres, also will be permitted as it was in 1971.

Braves To Vote

Tulsa, Okla. (UPI) — The Choctaw Indian nation election committee said it voted to let 18, 19 and 20-year-olds take part in tribal elections next month. The Indians will be voting for the first time in 50 years for a chief. Previously, the chief was appointed by the federal government.

Blue Angels Preview Precision Flying Show

By WAYNE KREUSCHER
Star Staff Writer

Silver anniversary festivities for the Nebraska Air National Guard got underway Friday with a preview of the Blue Angels precision flight demonstration scheduled for its weekend.

The team of F4 Phantom jet pilots, who are internationally famous for their diamond formation, presented the hour-long preview after the Air Guard was honored at a luncheon given by the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.

Saturday and Sunday the Blue Angels will climax a free air show, marking the Air Guard's 25th year, at the Lincoln Airport.

The aerial demonstrations will start at 1:30 p.m. each day and will feature, in addition to the Blue Angels, the Lincoln Sport Parachute Club and stunt pilot Dr. Chuck Carothers, a Lincoln dentist.

The Blue Angels, who, like the Air Guard, are in their 25th anniversary year, include six Navy pilots and one Marine.

Four of the pilots perform most of the demonstration in the diamond formation, in which there is a wing man in each of the leader's wings and a slot man flying directly behind and below the leader's engine exhaust, between the two wingmen.

Separated By Yard
Navy Cmdr. Harley H. Hall, a native of Broken Bow, explained that when in the diamond formation, the pilots slide their Phantoms together in the sky until but a scant yard separates wingtip from canopy and wings overlap.

One of the group's maneuvers is the "fleur-de-lis," a sudden formation breakup in a vertical climb, followed by a diamond formation rendezvous.

Solo Maneuvers
Two other Blue Angel pilots give solo demonstrations "of the maximum performance capabilities of the aircraft" and often seem to be flying headon at each other.

Among the solo planes' different maneuvers is the "back-to-back" formation where the top plane is inverted and the second snuggled underneath, right-side-up, with minimum separation.

The seventh pilot is the group's ground narrator during the demonstration.

Harley said at the Friday luncheon that none of the maneuvers is a stunt, but just part of the stock-in-trade tactical maneuvers of any fighter pilot.

He noted that the Blue Angels, however, do these maneuvers in extremely close formation rather than individually and at a lower altitude than normal.

Divers Among Top
The parachute club, which is the second oldest organized sky diving group in the country, will perform free-fall maneuvers which have won it regional fame in sky diving exhibitions.

Carothers is considered one of the top four acrobatic pilots in the country. Flying a Pitts Special, he will demonstrate stunt turns, flips and other aerial maneuvers.

In addition to the air show, there will be exhibits at the military, general and commercial aviation areas of the airport. The exhibits open both days at 10 a.m.

Saturday United Airlines is offering a 45-minute sightseeing trip on a Boeing 727, immediately following the Blue Angel performance. Tickets for the flight are $7. Helicopter rides will be offered both Saturday and Sunday.

Otto Files As Uncommitted Delegate For '72
Warren Otto, of Bradshaw, former York County Democratic Party chairman, Friday filed as an uncommitted delegate-at-large to the 1972 Democratic National Convention.

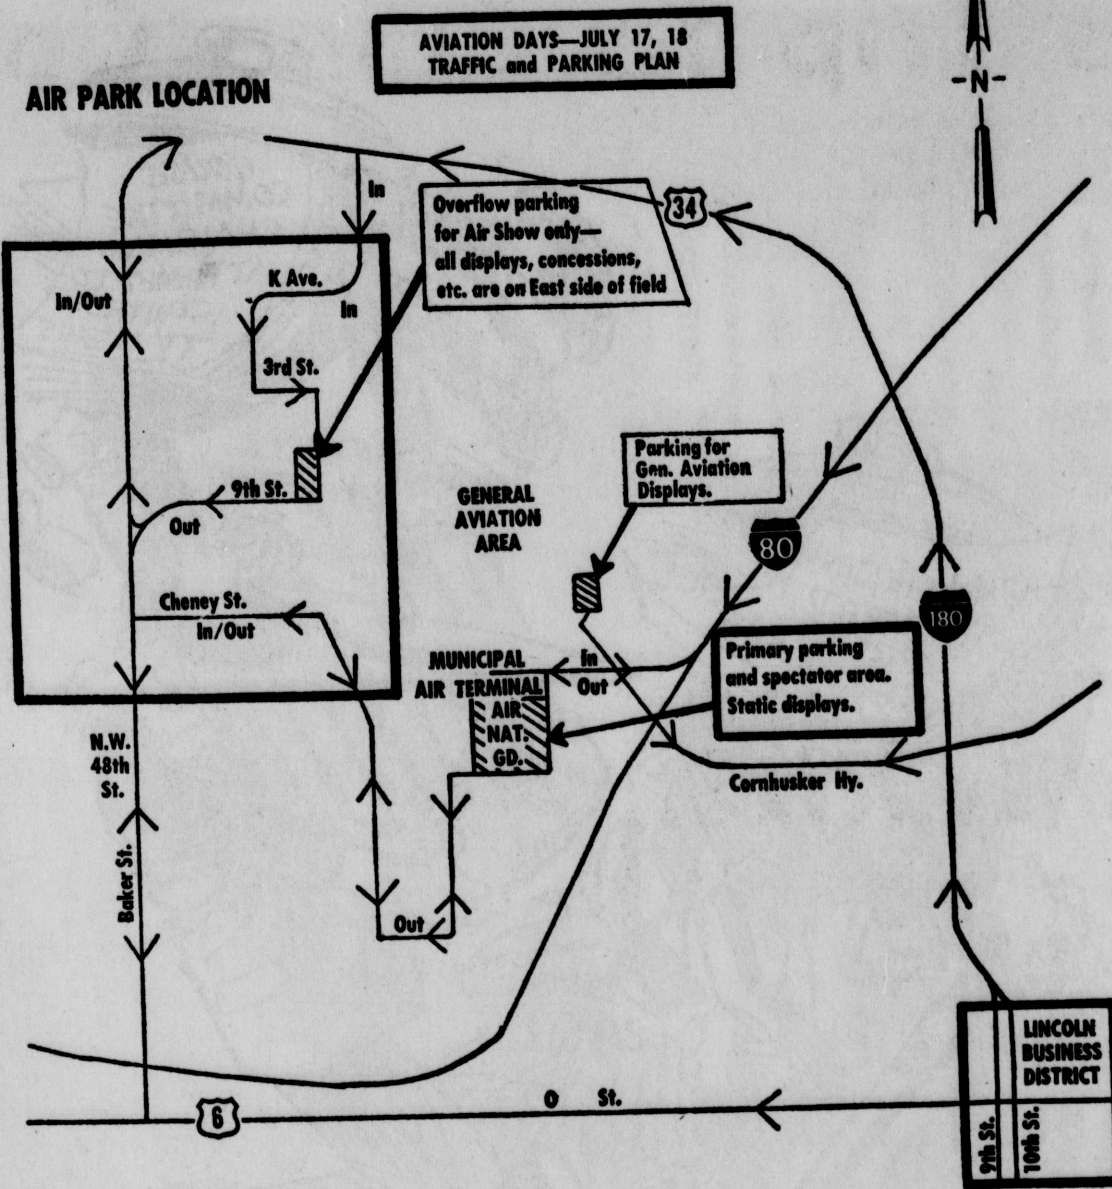

Otto paid his filing fee in York and filed with the secretary of state's office late Friday afternoon.

Otto, who was a delegate to the last convention, said he hopes to propose a resolution that would prohibit last minute party switching by candidates. He said he hoped both parties would approve a resolution withholding support from any candidate who switched his party affiliation within a year of an election.

Otto said he is tired of people such as state Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, who recently changed his affiliation from Republican to Democrat.

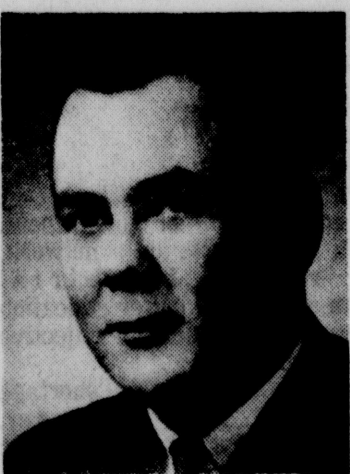

"We need him in the Democratic Party like we need a hole in the head," Otto said.

LES Tabs W. A. Canney For Manager

The Lincoln Electric System Administrative Board Friday recommended to Mayor Schwartzkopf and the City Council approval of a general manager for the electric utility.

Tabbed for the position as the first city general manager for LES was Walter A. Canney, 36, presently assistant to the general manager of the Northeast Missouri Electric Power Cooperative.

Ratification of the appointment will be on the City Council agenda Monday. If approved, Canney would step into the $24,000-a-year post in mid-August. The mayor and Council vote jointly on the appointment.

Canney would be responsible to the board and supervise all operations of LES.

LES Administrative Board Chairman Neal Tyner said Canney would not be placed under the city's merit system and would receive those fringe benefits which LES employees receive.

Sen. McGovern Supporter Files

Hastings (AP) — G. E. "Mike" Lowry of Hastings has become the first person to file for a delegate to the National Democratic Convention committed to Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Lowry, a staff member of the Hastings Tribune, filed as a delegate-at-large to the national nominating convention to be held at Miami, Fla., in July of 1972.

Historical Grant Earmarked For 4 Restoration Projects

Four historical sites in Nebraska were designated Friday by the State Historical Society to share a historical preservation grant totalling $41,238. The money will be used as a matching funds for restoration work done at the sites.

Neligh Mills in Antelope County will receive $15,000; $10,000 will go for restoration of an 1887 adobe hut at Fort Robinson; $10,000 was earmarked for the State Game and Parks Commission to assist in restoration work at Fort Atkinson and the remaining $6,238 is to be used in the restoration of Lincoln's Syford-Lewis home at No. 16th.

The board decided to authorize erection of about 15 historical markers at various sites across the state. Included was a special commemorative marker for Malcolm X, to be established in Douglas County by the Nebraska Negro Historical Society.

Another marker will commemorate the Buffalo Bill-Duke Alexis buffalo hunt in Hayes County.

The board also approved a study to consider development of archeological sites telling the story of prehistoric Indians in Nebraska.

State Historical Society Director Marvin Kevitt said the society's Oct. 23 meeting at Lincoln's Cornhusker Hotel will center on plans for next year's centennial of Arbor Day.

City Prosecutor Gary Buchino argued then and again this week when the order was issued, that the films were taken to preserve the evidence.

In issuing his return order Judge O'Brien expressed "concern" over the remaining evidence the city of Omaha has to prove the films were obscene.

"How do you proceed on the obscenity of the film if you cannot produce the film," he asked Buchino. The city prosecutor said he would produce still photos and verbal evidence by policemen who saw the films.

Jerald Rae Expected To Head Bus System

The Transit Advisory Committee Friday recommended that the city's new municipal bus system, which started operations Friday, be called the Lincoln Transportation System.

Expected to head the bus system as general manager is Jerald Rae, 52, branch manager of Wells Fargo in Lincoln. The City Council Monday will act on a resolution to appoint Rae as general manager.

Rae, who has lived in Lincoln since 1967, is responsible for supervising 33 employees and a fleet of vehicles.

The advisory committee had screened applications from Lincolniters and persons from across the nation who have been linked with transportation systems.

A salary in the vicinity of $12,000 is being proposed for the position as general manager. He would assume the post July 26, if approved by the council.

William Franklin, general superintendent for Lincoln City Lines, who will continue with local bus operations as a city employee, told the board he looks forward to working with the city.

Franklin, regarded as a top man in the bus maintenance field, said he will do everything possible to get the buses in as good a condition as possible.

Blue And White
The committee also recommended that the buses to be purchased be painted mainly blue with a white roof.

The contract to purchase the bus equipment from Lincoln

JERALD RAE

City Lines provides for the private bus company to provide management services until no later than Sept. 15 to provide a smooth management transition.

Responsibility to come up with proposals on matters involving charter rates and other details will be the new manager's responsibility, the committee decided.

Pedestrian Is Hospitalized

A Lincoln man was listed in good condition at Veteran's Hospital as a result of a car-pedestrian accident at 41st and St. Paul Friday night, according to police officer James Baird.

Baird said Albert Stava, 48, of 3545 Madison suffered a broken left knee and multiple cuts and bruises when he was struck by a car while walking westbound across 41st at St. Paul.

Motor Vehicle Homicide Charged In Recent Fatality

A felony motor vehicle homicide charge was filed Friday in Lancaster County Court against 28-year-old Greg Bishof in connection with a car-truck accident early Thursday which claimed the life of 29-year-old Michael J. Anderson.

According to police, the Bishof car, in which Anderson was a passenger, was westbound on Cornhusker when it collided with the rear of a truck driven by Earl L. Haugen of Ft. Huron, S.D. The truck driver will depend upon his hospital release.

Bishof is specifically charged with causing by the unlawful operation of a motor vehicle the death of Anderson.

According to Deputy County Attorney Bernard McGinn, the date of Bishof's appearance in court will depend upon his hospital release.

New York Times
News Summary

Nixon's Trip To China Could Come This Year

(c) New York Times News Service
San Clemente, Calif. — President Nixon's visit to Peking would be made late this year at the earliest, officials at the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif., said Friday. They added that Nixon would confer with Mao Tse-tung as well as Premier Chou En-lai and that the American position on United Nations membership for China would be announced in "The near future."

Russians Stunned By News

Nixon Trip Welcomed

New York — Most Far Eastern governments seemed to welcome the news of President Nixon's

visit, but domestic political repercussions were expected in South Vietnam, Japan and Australia. The Nationalist Chinese on Taiwan reacted with disbelief and dismay. (More on Page 2)

Two Railroads Struck

Washington — After early-morning talks ended in a deadlock over work rules, train crews struck the Union Pacific and Southern Railways. By day's end, all traffic on the two lines was reported halted. Similar walkouts are threatened for next week against three other carriers: the Chicago and Northwestern, the Southern Pacific and the Norfolk and Western. (More on Page 1.)

Congressmen Laud Nixon

Washington — On Capitol Hill, only a handful of conservatives criticized the President for accepting the invitation. Most members of Congress supported Nixon, and many said he had defused the criticism of the war and outflanked his potential presidential challengers.

Talks' Contents Untold

Peking — Chinese officials in Peking expressed pleasure about the coming visit. However, they offered no information about the substance of the talks between Henry Kissinger and Premier Chou En-lai.

GNP Makes Steady Rise

Washington — The gross national product, the government's most comprehensive economic barometer, confirmed the steady recovery from the 1970 recession in its figures for this year's second quarter. The "real" output of goods and services rose during the quarter at an annual rate of 3.6%, the figures showed. (More on Page 17.)

Mills Wants Tax Cuts

Washington — Taxes should be reduced for businesses and for low-income individuals "to get this economy moving again," Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee proposed in a speech scheduled for delivery in Ogden, Utah, but he said such tax cuts should be conditioned on imposition of wage and price controls and a ceiling on federal spending.

Natural Gas Hikes OK'd

Washington — Sharply higher rates for natural gas produced in the southern Louisiana area were approved by the Federal Power Commission. The decision is expected to result in high gas prices for consumers because the Louisiana fields are the largest in the nation. The FPC cited a "critical shortage" of gas in its decision, but consumer groups expressed skepticism that a shortage actually exists. (Another story on Page 17.)

Warren Court Criticized

Harris Organizes Campaign

Little River, Okla. — Sen. Fred R. Harris told a news conference in Little River, Okla., that he would not seek re-election to the Senate and that he would organize a campaign for the Democratic nomination for president. He stopped just short of announcing his candidacy. Harris would have faced a tough primary challenge if he had sought re-election. (More on Page 17.)

Most Nations Praise Nixon Visit

... NATIONALIST CHINESE OBJECT; SOVIET SUSPICIOUS

By United Press International

The disclosure that President Nixon will visit China dismayed the rival Nationalist Chinese regime Friday and aroused the deepest suspicions of the Russians, but most of the world called it a realistic move.

The governments of Denmark and of such Southeast Asian nations as South Vietnam, Cambodia, Thailand and Malaysia expressed the hope that a Washington-Peking thaw would hasten the end of the Indochina war.

Secretary General U Thant said it brightened the prospects for China's entry into the United Nations before the end of this year.

De Facto 'Two Chinas'

In Taipei, the Nationalist Chinese capital on the island of Taiwan, 100 miles off the China mainland, diplomatic sources predicted the move would force a de facto "two Chinas" policy on the reluctant regime of President Chiang Kai-shek.

The 83-year-old Chiang himself was on vacation but his government lodged a "strong protest" with U.S. Ambassador Walter P. McCone.

"We are very disturbed," said Nationalist Foreign Minister Chow Shu-kai.

Heavily Dependent

But observers questioned whether Taipei would break relations with the United States, on whom it heavily depends for support in holding on to its U.N. seat, for half its foreign trade and for $100 million a year in military aid.

UPI correspondent K. C. Thaler reported that Soviet-bloc diplomats in London expressed surprise at the announcement, but said Nixon's trip to Peking may prompt a prior invitation to Moscow — something that up to now the Russians have only described as "a possibility."

On the other hand, Soviet-bloc diplomats said, some sort of behind-the-scenes deal may be brewing between the United States and China, such as an exchange of ambassadors, an economic cooperation program, a Vietnam settlement, or even a compromise about Taiwan.

Kremlin Said Cool

UPI correspondent Henry Shapiro reported that the Kremlin reacted with distinct coolness. The official Tass news agency reported the invitation briefly and without comment.

Ever since the Moscow-Peking rift opened up a decade ago, each capital has been deeply suspicious of the other's motives and each has accused the other of collusion with U.S. imperialism.

The rivalry between the two huge Communist states erupted into open frontier skirmishes two years ago. Since then, discussions between the two powers have been held in Peking but they currently are at a standstill.

By contrast, the quickening of U.S.-Chinese contacts has caused consternation in the Kremlin.

Radio Moscow commented last May 20, after Nixon first expressed an interest in visiting Peking some day, that "the anti-Soviet policy of the clique of Peking leaders makes it worthwhile to carry out secret collusion in Peking and to use Peking's anti-Sovietism in the service of Washington Policy."

Pledges Unimpressive

It was apparent that the Soviets are no more impressed with Nixon's assurance that the Peking visit "is not directed against any other nation" than are the Chinese Nationalists with his promise that it "will not be at the expense of our old friends."

In Paris, diplomatic sources told UPI correspondent Ray F. Herndon that the Sino-American contacts might break the logjam at the Vietnam peace talks there.

The North Vietnamese, however, were as initially noncommittal as the Russians. The fact that the invitation to Nixon came from Premier Chou En-lai could only remind them that it was Chou who struck the Geneva Conference bargain with France that ended the French military role in Indochina in 1954.

Lost At Peace Table

The North Vietnamese have always insisted that much of what they had won on the battlefield was lost at the Geneva peace table and this has been one reason for their reluctance to attend another Geneva conference.

President Nixon called last Oct. 7 for a widened, Geneva-type conference and Chou En-lai said just this week that Communist China would be willing to attend a new Geneva conference on Indochina.

Great Britain and France said they welcomed the Nixon visit to Peking. Swedish Foreign Minister Krister Wickman called the invitation and acceptance "actions of true statecraft."

West Germany, Belgium, Norway, Denmark and the Vatican all expressed satisfaction. Antonio Cariglia, president of the Italian Chamber of Deputies foreign affairs committee, called it "sensational."

'Very Interesting'

Foreign Minister Leslie Bury of Australia, whose country is somewhat closer to China, called it "a very interesting move."

In Warsaw, where the secret ambassadorial talks between China and the United States, started at Geneva in 1954, have gone on for the past 12 years, it was expected that these talks will end as other channels of contact open up.

In China itself, the New China News Agency, only a few hours after announcing the Nixon visit, broadcast the text of a speech by a Chinese Communist party functionary denouncing "U.S. imperialism" as an "arch criminal."

Whether this was a case of bureaucratic lag, or a sign that nothing had changed, remains to be seen.

Mitchell Criticizes 'Sea Of Legalisms'

London (AP) — U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell charged Friday that many criminals are getting off scot free because of stalling tactics that abuse traditional rights of the accused and threaten to drown American justice "in a sea of legalisms."

Mitchell said this has encouraged would-be criminals to break the law and has led to "cynical distrust" of the courts by many Americans.

Addressing 2,000 lawyers on the third day of a week-long convention of the American Bar Association, Mitchell said America should try to adopt some methods of the English court system — "a model of swift justice."

Century Behind

At the same meeting, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said American lawyers were a century behind the British in professional training and enforcement of ethical standards.

His English counterpart, Lord Chief Justice Widgery, drew applause from Mitchell and most delegates in an unusual attack on certain U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

Lord Widgery criticized the Supreme Court for throwing out convictions which the court said were based on confessions improperly derived by police.

Mitchell, in his speech, complained that excessive legal technicalities were weakening enforcement.

"Criminals Encouraged"

"When potential criminals are encouraged because they know there is slight chance of conviction, much less imprisonment, when the convicted felon never reaches the moment of truth and faces his own guilt, it is not just the courts that are affected by our present plague of courtroom

Kissinger's Style In Limelight Again

By KEN HARTNETT

Washington (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger, who attracts the dramatic way honey attracts bears, has done it again — this time with a secret diplomatic mission to Peking that startled the world of power politics.

For the 48-year-old presidential assistant for national security affairs, the clandestine visit to the capital of Communist China was perfectly in character.

The orthodox approach is not always Kissinger's cup of tea.

Open Communications

While most Nixon administration officials have avoided the peace movement like leprosy, Kissinger has kept communications open.

He even sat down in the White House with three people named as co-conspirators in an alleged plot to kidnap him.

His trip to Peking to arrange for a future visit to China by President Nixon may not have been an entirely new experience for Kissinger.

A former Harvard colleague said two years ago that President Lyndon B. Johnson sent Kissinger behind the bamboo curtain to Hanoi in 1966 and that he returned with a report critical of the war.

Has Certain Flair

Whether talking to peace groups, advising the President on foreign policy options or squiring glamorous women around Washington or New York, the German-born

Kissinger operates with a certain flair.

Not everyone on the banks of the Charles is happy about it, an unhappiness that deepened as the Vietnam war dragged on and Kissinger was linked to those urging the incursions into Cambodia and Laos.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., expressed a widespread sentiment when he said that Kissinger was "secretary of state in everything but title" and that Secretary of State William P. Rogers had become an object of laughter on the Washington social circuit.

Power Minimized

Kissinger denies that he maintains any inordinate influence over the President. "It would be preposterous to pretend I don't have any influence," he said, but added, "A man doesn't become a president who has a weak will."

"I say to the President, you've got this problem and you have three or four different ways of going at it and here are the different points of view. When he asks me what I think, I tell him. But a president is never dependent on one man."

Kissinger, a refugee at age 15 from Nazi Germany, enrolled at Harvard in 1946 after serving in Army counterintelligence during World War II.

He was launched on what was to become a brilliant academic career.

(c) Washington Star

Washington — With less than a year remaining before the opening of the Democratic party's presidential nominating convention, the party acknowledged Friday that only nine states "are in apparent compliance" with new guidelines for reform of delegate selection procedures.

Apparently seeking to place the situation in the best possible light, the Democratic National Committee buried that figure in a report which emphasized instead an optimistic prediction that "no less than 40 state Democratic parties will have met the guidelines" by the end of this year.

The group charged with the task of drafting and implementing these guidelines, the Commission on Party Structure and Delegate Selection, met here for the first time in 20 months, amid growing speculation that its reform program is faltering.

'Reform Bugged Down'

The National Journal, a non-partisan weekly publication devoted to political and governmental research, conducted an extensive survey of the Democrats' reform program and reported last month:

"In state after state, the reform drive has bogged down, as party leaders concern themselves more with the race for the Democratic presidential nomination than with improving the machinery under which the party's candidate is finally chosen."

Similarly, Kenneth A. Bode, former research director for the commission and now director of the Center for Political Reform, a private organization seeking implementation of the guidelines, has concluded that "the reform is on the verge of turning sour."

The reform guidelines, adopted by the commission in November, 1969, call for:

—A selection procedure in each state for naming delegates to the party's national convention which is both timely and democratic, specifically including representation for members of minority groups, women and young voters.

—The abolition of such time-honored political traditions as proxy voting, unit rule, mandatory assessments of convention delegates and party meetings called without notification of dissident factions.

Few Complying

The National Journal, in a mid-June report, said in formation provided by the Democratic National Committee showed that at that time 44 states still were not in compliance with the racial requirements, 38 were not in compliance with the age and sex guidelines, 47 had not met the standard requiring written rules for delegate selection and 24 had not insured that the selection process will be timely.

Concluding that the effort was "faltering," the publication said that "a widespread failure to comply with the reforms raises the specter of extensive credentials challenges at the convention," which is scheduled for early July, 1972.

The report to the commission Friday shows that the only states in apparent compliance are Alabama, Iowa, Maine, Missouri, Mississippi, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Ohio and Oklahoma.

USDA Wants Less Wheat, Feed In 1972

Washington (AP) — The Agriculture Department took steps Friday to tighten up wheat and livestock feed grain production next year and increase the output of soybeans.

In 1972, wheat farmers will be required to take an additional 1.7 million acres of cropland from production before qualifying for government price supports and payments.

Also, the department announced, barley will be included in the 1972 feed grains program. Thus, to qualify for benefits on that grain, farmers will have to "set aside" a share of acreage for that crop.

A third step was to make soybeans eligible for planting in 1972 on feed grains and wheat land. In other words, corn and wheat farmers will be able to plant soybeans and still preserve their respective crop histories.

Substitution of feed on wheat land, and wheat on feed acres, also will be permitted as it was in 1971.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Where are the scoffers at ping-pong diplomacy? When many people were pleased that an American ping-pong team had been invited to visit Red China, some skeptics loudly noted that the event was of no significance or importance.

They seriously pointed out that international relations are not based on batting a little ball back and forth on a table. President Nixon's announcement that he would visit the People's Republic of China before May of 1972 gives the skeptics an opportunity to eat their words.

The ping-pong matches did not constitute any kind of formal agreement, understanding or anything else between the U.S. and Red China but they were an encouraging sign. Along with such things as a relaxation of trade agreements and visits between the two nations, they served to show that Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai might be seeking to change the collision course they were traveling.

It will undoubtedly be argued by some at this stage that a visit by Nixon to Red China is not to be hailed as the end of disagreements between East and West. Such a visit, it will be pointed out, will still leave many divisions between Red China and the U.S. and could even complicate life for us with Russia and some other countries.

All of this is true, of course, but the heartening thing is that the door to Red China is opening. It is essential to recognize that one cannot walk through a door before it is opened.

The Nixon visit will not be the end of world hostilities or even of harsh relationships in the world. It will, however, constitute a beginning of what could eventually come to be the end of hostilities in the world.

Not that the whole world is going to come soon to the point of a mutual love feast but no one should expect this. No nation is in total agreement even within itself, much less in its relations with other members of the universe.

The significance of the President's announcement might well be found in two areas. For one, it may signal a change in our approach to the communist powers of the world. The U.S. has never really abandoned the cold war strategy of post-World-War-II days and it has not gotten the world very far.

Perhaps that policy was right for its time, just as Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson might have been right in their time in Vietnam, despite the judgments now being rendered with the benefit of hindsight.

But you have to hope that something better can come of the world than the limited wars and armament races that have characterized it in the past two decades. It is not necessary to say that our past policies have served us badly to see that changes in policy might serve us better.

If this were not the case, mankind could make no progress. In all areas of life, the past is not condemned through the progress of the present and the promise of the future. It is in the tendency to ignore this that we get bogged down in our failures and lose sight of our potentialities.

At least, President Nixon seems to be seeking to reduce the status of the communist world from that of deadly adversary to a worthy competitor. We think that the time is right for this and that it contains the seed of great promise for mankind.

Secondly, the President's visit to mainland China appears to have some relationship to Vietnam and the growing talk for a new international conference on Asia. This is encouraging in view of the unimaginative approach by the U.S. to the latest peace offers by North Vietnam.

The U.S., judging from published reports, has not seemed to make any sincere effort to capitalize on those peace offers. We have not seemed to give those offers the benefit of any doubt, to have tested them for their validity.

Without something else up his sleeve, such as a new conference on Asia, President Nixon is getting in deeper and deeper trouble at home on the Vietnam issue. Looking at Vietnam and our overall foreign policy, President Nixon's announcement to visit mainland China is a heartening and significant development.

Big Business Learns To Face The Public

NEW YORK — Well, now, consumers, we're making progress. Here we've been fretting for years about how to get through to Big Business... and now Big Business is worrying about how to get through to us.

Would you believe the executives are even taking lessons?

Probably even Ralph Nader himself never thought it would come to this, but corporate officers around the country are signing up for basic training in how to answer up to an irate public. Without blowing the whole bit, that is.

After all, a boss just never knows when it might be his turn to make embarrassing headlines (if it can happen to anybody)... and wouldn't it be handy to have a couple of boys in the executive suite who know how to handle themselves on the six o'clock news?

So the lads are putting on their powder-blue shirts and their sincere expressions and facing a battery of TV cameras, lights and tough reporters.

It's all make-believe, a rough-and-tumble run-through for the day their plant makes unwelcome news by being charged with pollution... not hiring enough minority workers... ordering a mass layoff... facing a consumer lawsuit. Ticklish things like that.

The reporters (and some of them are real professionals) bombard the businessmen with tough questions and hostile probing. And if the boys understandably blow their stacks, fumble for answers, or look uncomfortable, well... better they do it in class than in living color before millions of prospective customers, right?

After each trainee has been put through the wringer, Mr. Burson's team gives him an "instant replay" on closed circuit TV and analyzes his performance. They keep him at it until he gets over his fear of the cameras and learns to field the toughies without getting rattled.

He doesn't get an "A" in the course until he can control his temper and keep his poise... no matter what the reporters throw at him. (A company spokesman who loses his cool damages the corporate image, you know.)

Mr. Burson introduces his executives to the confusing world of TV by exposing them first to psychedelic films and mind-blowing rock.

"Most of them are pretty conservative types," he explained. "You have to shake 'em up a little."

Then comes a short course in what to expect on a TV newscast... what kind of facts reporters are really after... how to handle them when what they're after isn't what the corporation wants them to know.

"But there's increased sensitivity to public criticism these days," Mr. Burson says. "No longer do corporate officers take the attitude: 'I'll tell you what I think you should know.'"

"Now it's more like: 'Maybe I'm not doing something right.'"

Did you ever think you'd live to see the day???

Goals Not Hard To Set

We certainly have no issue with establishment of a new Nebraska group whose purpose will be the determination of goals for the state. But whenever you talk about goals, you have to think about the means of reaching them.

It is on this thought that we tend to get hung up. We seriously doubt that anyone could come up with even one goal for Nebraska that has not been thought of before. The real nut to crack is how to meet the goal and if the new committee is to be worth its salt, it will direct its attention to this matter.

We well remember an experience a year or more ago at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education. A large group of people from all walks of life in Nebraska came together to discuss the past, present and future of the state.

This they did, as we remember, for at least a solid day and maybe more. Reports were prepared on the meeting and they have since served no cause at all that we know of.

They contained all the things you would expect such as consolidation of government, improvement in transportation network, conservation of resources, industrial expansion, tourism promotion, better education and almost every other laudable objective that you could think of.

The point is that there is no shortage of good ideas or goals. There is, however, a critical shortage of ways of carrying out the ideas or meeting the goals.

At least two obstacles constantly present themselves when we seek to meet the goals we establish. One, the parties involved find it impossible to agree among themselves and, secondly, the finances needed are unavailable.

Money isn't the answer to everything but you are kidding yourself if you think the goals for Nebraska can be reached without it. We are not going to reach many goals when we dedicate ourselves, as we have done at the moment at the state level of government, to the perpetuity of existing tax levels. Until that concept changes, the new goals group is wished well but granted little chance of achieving anything worthwhile.

For Forgetful People

When a friend the other day related to us the story of having forgotten his wife's birthday, it was chalked up as just another one of the small inevitabilities of life. But then we got to thinking — is it really inevitable?

Maybe it isn't, or at least wouldn't have to be. Some retail outlet might do quite well if it promoted the registration by people of important dates to be remembered by a gift, even if it is a small gift.

A man could tell the store the date of his wedding anniversary, his wife's birthday and any other dates he wanted to remember. Two weeks or so before those dates, the store would remind the fellow by mail of the occasion.

The service could include the store's selection and sending of an appropriate remembrance, even, if the customer wanted to do it that way. That would make the thing a little too impersonal for some people but it would be the kind of simplicity and efficiency that some folks would like.

It just seems that there should be some way for people to avoid the pitfall of their own forgetfulness. If we can send men to the moon and make a bomb that will wipe out civilization, we should be able to devise a scheme to handle such small human events as anniversaries, birthdays, etc.

For the ladies, of course, it is not so important because seem to have a knack for remembering important dates. It is the men who go home on important dates and blissfully ignore the event.

Obviously, anyone could simply write down and keep a file on such dates but who would look at the file at the right time or be able to find it when he wanted it?

Hanoi Relying On American Public Opinion To Accomplish Winner-Take-All Settlement

PARIS — Communist strategy in this final phase of the Indochina war seems postulated on proving Abraham Lincoln was wrong and that it is indeed possible to fool all the American people all the time. Hanoi has reason to believe it may well demonstrate this cynical theorem's accuracy.

The emphasis of the conflict has shifted from the battlefields of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia to Paris where, although formal peace talks remain stalemated, cubic yards of propaganda are being released. After a year's absence, Le Duc Tho, No. 5 in the North Vietnamese pecking order, returned there to join Madame Binh, the Viet Cong negotiator, in mounting a diplomatic offensive.

It doesn't require second sight to see that Hanoi is convinced a growing majority of Americans opposes any Nixon policy that isn't tantamount to cut and run from Indochina and that the respect and esteem for the United States government on war policy flicker close to zero.

Communist officials have therefore eagerly made themselves available to the foreign press to explain that if reasonable, a settlement can swiftly be arranged on the basis of an announced fixed date for an American military withdrawal under promised safeguards and a release of prisoners (from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia haven't yet been mentioned).

It is asserted that no conditions are attached, that if only President Nguyen Van Thieu will be replaced in Saigon as president, North and South Vietnam can arrange a settlement between them as separate neutral partners. Le Duc Tho went so far as to tell a French magazine this week that Hanoi will eschew all alliances and refuse military basis to any foreign countries (such as China or Russia).

This seems heartening. It promises a negotiable way out of an unpopular war — until one carefully rereads the very first point of the new negotiating position outlined by Madame Binh on July 1. This includes the following categorical demand:

"The U.S. government must put an end to its war of aggression in Vietnam, the policy of

'Vietnamization' of the war, withdrawal from South Vietnam all troops, military personnel, weapons and war materials of the United States and of other foreign countries in the U.S. camp, and dismantle all U.S. bases in South Vietnam, without posing any condition whatsoever."

This very first point means that, beneath the bland smile of the Indochina communist negotiators here, they insist that we sign an unconditional surrender before we even begin to discuss subsequent terms. The approach clearly excuses the communist side from incorporating in any written agreement the unilateral promises they have been making in public. Is it an ultimatum to sign a blank check?

Hanoi hopes to emulate the kind of operation Algeria's National Liberation Front succeeded in arranging with DeGaulle. Although French forces reigned supreme on all battlefields, DeGaulle was forced to capitulate diplomatically because there was no longer sufficient support in France's public opinion for any other course and the general was wise enough to know this. Even so, he was able to negotiate a compromise basis for withdrawal.

American public opinion has crumbled so rapidly and the leadership position of the government has therefore been weakened so perceptibly by a mass tendency toward self-flagellation that Hanoi adjudges the time has come to condemn and a winner-take-all settlement. The communists haven't won the battlefield conflict but they have won the public opinion contest in the United States.

Therefore, more resolutely than ever, they want to extrude American forces, cancel American aid commitments, isolate South Vietnam from Washington and force the United States first to change Saigon's government. And they want to seal the arrangement by precluding us from "posing any condition whatsoever" in negotiations.

Never before has the United States appeared so nakedly helpless. In World War I, 337,649 American men were classified as draft-dodgers. That figure is startling but this time, as Hanoi understands, the whole United States wants to dodge an even more unpopular draft, leaving us helpless even to negotiate.

JOHN SWAIN

They Had A Dream

When John Swain first rode into Cochise County, the Arizona Territory was risky country for cattlemen. Rustlers, Apaches and Mexican badmen were as thick as the thorns on a prickly cactus. It was courting disaster to graze a herd on the open range.

Swain was one of the hardy breed who soon changed all of that. A skilled cowhand and deadly rifle shot, Swain rode with a legendary Texan named John Slaughter.

A rancher in West Texas, Slaughter moved his longhorn herd west to Arizona in 1879. He succeeded where others had failed. And he capped his career as the duly elected sheriff of Cochise County.

Slaughter and Swain had been sidekicks of sorts since boyhood. Swain was born in 1845 on the ranch of Slaughter's father near San Antonio. A slave, he was given to Slaughter when his mother was sold to a neighboring rancher. Slaughter and Swain were about the same age.

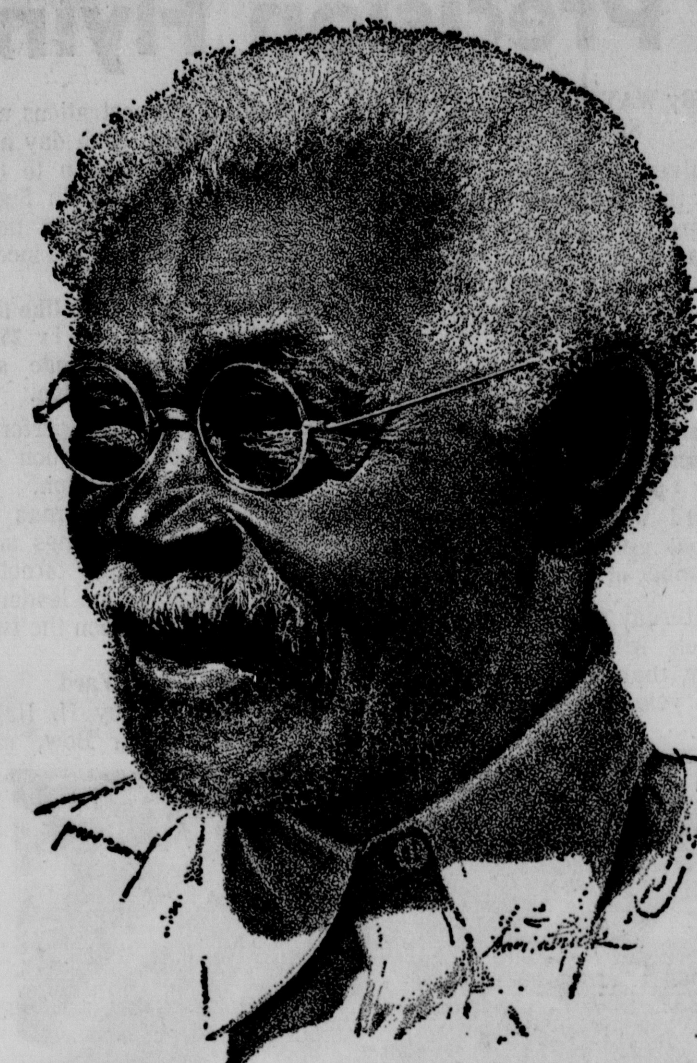

After emancipation, Swain chose to stay with Slaughter. He rode herd for him, fought Comanches and rustlers and became one of Slaughter's most trusted men.

When Slaughter decided to move west to Arizona, it was only natural for Swain to go along with him. They drove the Slaughter herd across the Rio Grande in flood and pushed across some of the Southwest's most desolate country. On one stretch, they drove the herd 80 miles across searing desert without water.

They arrived in Cochise County in 1879, and Slaughter soon turned his San Bernardino ranch near Tombstone into a thriving operation, despite rustlers from both sides of the border.

Slaughter was a stubborn man who believed in hanging on to cattle wearing his brand. He would track rustlers to hell and back to recover what was his: Swain would follow without giving it a second thought.

Once the rustlers' trail led Slaughter, Swain, another Negro named Bat and a handful of Mexican vaqueros south of the border to the village of a bandit chief.

Despite their precarious circumstances, Slaughter's men circled the stock and began driving them north. They hadn't gone far when the bandit and his men set out after them.

Slaughter's Mexican hands vanished into the brush leaving him, Swain and Bat to stand off the rustlers. They should have high-tailed it for the border, but instead they drove the cattle into a box canyon and proceeded to reduce the odds with their rifles. The Mexicans decided the beef wasn't worth it and gave up the fight, and Slaughter took his stock home.

When Slaughter became sheriff, Swain went his own way. He rode for a couple of other spreads and became a familiar figure around Tombstone.

In his later years, Swain lived in a shack on Tombstone's outskirts with a vegetable garden and his memories. His ambition was to live to be 100, and on that milestone day to ride a bucking bronc. If it pitched him into the next world, he said, that would be all right with him.

Swain lived three months short of a full century. He died in 1945 and the city of Tombstone buried the old pioneer with honors on Boothill where he had seen the first grave filled 66 years before.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent use of the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by writer's true name under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials.

Against Dam

Lincoln, Neb.

If anyone has any doubts about whether a dam should be built on the Niobrara River near Norden, he should go there and see for himself. He should take a canoe (an old-fashioned kind of boat that causes no noise, air or water pollution), put in at the bridge below Valentine, and paddle downstream 16 or 20 miles.

We did just that last weekend, and it was one of the most beautiful canoe trips I've been on! The cliffs along the river are majestic, the white birch trees are a treasure found nowhere else in Nebraska, the water, sand, and, in short, the whole area is clean, wild and beautiful.

Before starting a canoe trip, one should stop just west of the Valentine city park and observe the dam put in years ago — it is now so full of silt that it's not good for much of anything except growing mosquitoes. This would, of course, be the fate of a new dam, and the trees, rocks, canyons, wildlife and natural beauty would be lost forever.

I say Nebraska has enough farmland — the government pays the farmers not to use it all — why develop more? I say there are enough places for motorboats and the flashy, expensive, polluting toys of lazy, modern life. Let us use our heads and preserve one of the prettiest spots in the whole state for the next generation!

Points Cleared

Lincoln, Neb.

There are several points of clarification needed in the editorial, "Attitudes Are Changing," of July 14.

(1) The parental survey said that 51 per cent of the parents of women students approved of the program and 61 per cent of the parents of men students as opposed to the editorial which said 51 per cent of mothers and 61 per cent of fathers.

(2) This is not the first time a program of visitation privileges was sent to the Board of Regents. There were two graduate student visitation program requests before this one. However, this is the first time a proposal inclusive of all students was prepared and also the first time parents were asked their opinion on such a policy.

I disagree with the statement relating to amount of parental support needed. When a majority of the people in any given situation approve of a policy or a candidate for election, then the result is accepted as sufficient, even 51 per cent of the vote. Therefore, when the parental survey showed overall support of 56 per cent, it should be taken into consideration — not just the amount of negativism that still remains.

Finally it is the feeling of my fellow students that responsibility is gained when responsibility is given.

A Satire

Lincoln, Neb.

Has "Donna J.'s" preoccupation with her interpretation of the American dream (July 9) caused her to misread the facetious "Archie Bunker" letter (July 2), the purpose of which was to express a viewpoint shared by those not in agreement with "Haymaker" (June 29) but unable to relate their thoughts in an intelligible manner totally free from censorship.

The letter was a satire. There was no intention of poking fun at Cretans, although some Cretans may have misinterpreted it.

Blue Angels Preview Precision Flying Show

By WAYNE KREUSCHER
Star Staff Writer

Silver anniversary festivities for the Nebraska Air National Guard got underway Friday with a preview of the Blue Angels precision flight demonstration scheduled for its weekend.

The team of F4 Phantom jet pilots, who are internationally famous for their diamond formation, presented the hour-long preview after the Air Guard was honored at a luncheon given by the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.

Saturday and Sunday the Blue Angels will climax a free air show, marking the Air Guard's 25th year, at the Lincoln Air port.

Rail Strike Comes Near Peak Of Nebraska's Wheat Harvest

Omaha (AP) — Effects of the United Transportation Union Pacific Railroad were not long in being felt Friday.

The strike began at 6 a.m. (CDT).

Omaha's industrial community already suffered from strikes in the construction industry; and the wheat harvest, a large consumer of boxcar space, was just short of its peak.

W. H. Williams, general manager of the Kellogg Co., Omaha which employs some 500 persons, said the plant "will shut down Saturday and we will not start up again until rail service has been resumed."

Williams said the firm could move products out by truck only for a limited time, but since we receive more than 95% of our raw material by rail it would be next to impossible to supply the raw materials by truck.

The Omaha works of Western Electric, which employs in excess of 7,000 persons, won't feel the effects of the strike for

The aerial demonstrations will start at 1:30 p.m. each day and will feature, in addition to the Blue Angels, the Lincoln Sport Parachute Club and stunt pilot Dr. Chuck Carothers, a Lincoln dentist.

The Blue Angels, who, like the Air Guard, are in their 25th anniversary year, include six Navy pilots and one Marine.

Four of the pilots perform most of the demonstration in the diamond formation, in which there is a wing man in each of the leader's wings and a slot man flying directly behind and below the leader's engine exhaust, between the two wingmen.

Separated By Yard
Navy Cmdr. Harley H. Hall, a native of Broken Bow, explained that when in the diamond formation, the pilots slide their Phantoms together in the sky until but a scant yard separates wingtip from canopy and wings overlap.

One of the group's maneuvers is the "fleur-de-lis," a sudden formation breakup in a vertical climb, followed by a diamond formation rendezvous.

Solo Maneuvers
Two other Blue Angel pilots give solo demonstrations "of the maximum performance capabilities of the aircraft" and often seem to be flying headon at each other.

Among the solo planes' different maneuvers is the "back-to-back" formation where the top plane is inverted and the second snuggled underneath, right-side-up, with minimum separation.

The seventh pilot is the group's ground narrator during the demonstration.

Harley said at the Friday luncheon that none of the maneuvers is a stunt, but just part of the stock-in-trade tactical maneuvers of any fighter pilot.

He noted that the Blue Angels, however, do these maneuvers in extremely close formation rather than individually and at a lower altitude than normal.

Divers Among Top
The parachute club, which is the second oldest organized sky diving group in the country, will perform free-fall maneuvers which have won it regional fame in sky diving exhibitions.

Carothers is considered one of the top four acrobatic pilots in the country. Flying a Pitts Special, he will demonstrate stunt turns, flips and other aerial maneuvers.

In addition to the air show, there will be exhibits at the military, general and commercial aviation areas of the airport. The exhibits open both days at 10 a.m.

Saturday United Airlines is offering a 45-minute sightseeing trip on a Boeing 727, immediately following the Blue Angel performance. Tickets for the flight are $7. Helicopter rides will be offered both Saturday and Sunday.

Otto Files As Uncommitted Delegate For '72

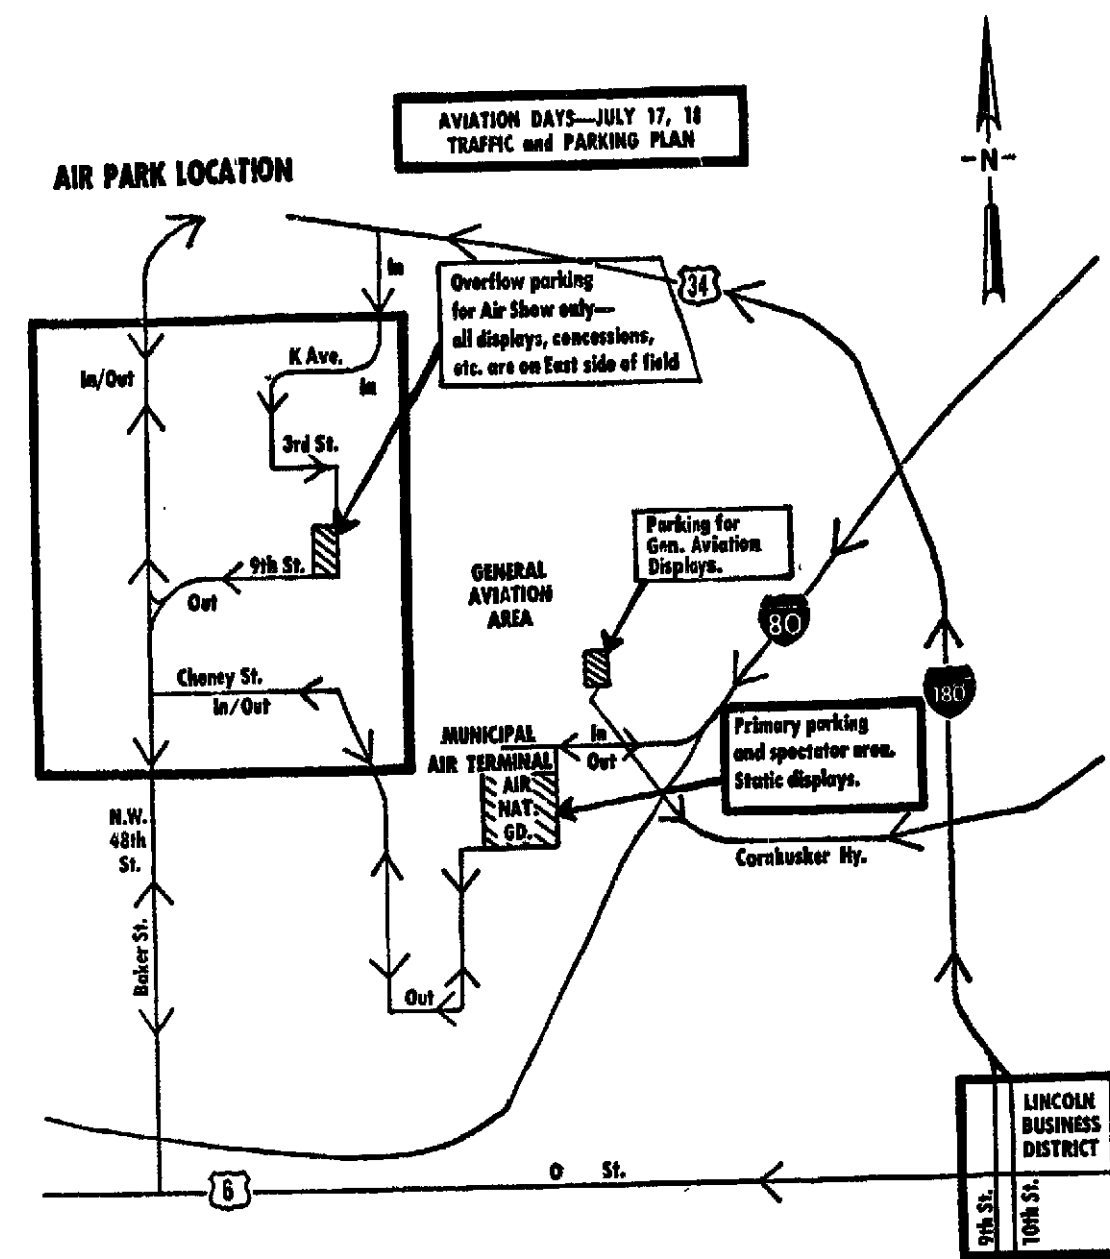

Warren Otto, of Bradshaw, former York County Democratic Party chairman, Friday filed as an uncommitted delegate-at-large to the 1972 Democratic National Convention.

Otto paid his filing fee in York and filed with the secretary of state's office late Friday afternoon.

Otto, who was a delegate to the last convention, said he hopes to propose a resolution that would prohibit last minute party switching by candidates. He said he hoped both parties would approve a resolution withholding support from any candidate who switched his party affiliation within a year of an election.

Otto said he is tired of people such as state Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, who recently changed his affiliation from Republican to Democrat. "We need him in the Democratic Party like we need a hole in the head," Otto said.

LES Tabs W. A. Canney For Manager

The Lincoln Electric System Administrative Board Friday recommended to Mayor Schwartzkopf and the City Council approval of a general manager for the electric utility.

Tabbed for the position as the first city general manager for LES was Walter A. Canney, 36, presently assistant to the general manager of the Northeast Missouri Electric Power Cooperative.

Ratification of the appointment will be on the City Council agenda Monday. If approved, Canney would step into the $24,000-a-year post in mid-August. The mayor and Council vote jointly on the appointment.

Canney would be responsible to the board and supervise all operations of LES.

Sen. McGovern Supporter Files

Hastings (AP) — G. E. "Mike" Lowry of Hastings has become the first person to file for a delegate to the National Democratic Convention committed to Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

Lowry, a staff member of the Hastings Tribune, filed as a delegate-at-large to the national nominating convention to be held at Miami, Fla., in July of 1972.

Historical Grant Earmarked For 4 Restoration Projects

Four historical sites in Nebraska were designated Friday by the State Historical Society to share a historical preservation grant totalling $41,238. The money will be used as matching funds for restoration work done at the sites.

Neligh Mills in Antelope County will receive $15,000; $10,000 will go for restoration of an 1887 adobe hut at Fort Robinson; $10,000 was earmarked for the State Game and Parks Commission to assist in restoration work at Fort Atkinson and the remaining $6,238 is to be used in the restoration of Lincoln's Syford-Lewis home at No. 16th.

The board decided to authorize erection of about 15 historical markers at various sites across the state. Included was a special commemorative marker for Malcolm X, to be established in Douglas County by the Nebraska Negro Historical Society.

Another marker will commemorate the Buffalo Bill-Duke Alexis buffalo hunt in Hayes County.

The board also approved a study to consider development of archeological sites telling the story of prehistoric Indians in Nebraska.

State Historical Society Director Marvin Kevitt said the society's Oct. 23 meeting at Lincoln's Cornhusker Hotel will center on plans for next year's centennial of Arbor Day.

Return Of Alleged Obscene Films To Pussycat Is Ordered By Judge

Omaha (AP) — District Judge James P. O'Brien has ordered returned to the management of the Pussycat Theater 29 films taken by law enforcement officers last February, in support of action alleging the films to be obscene.

Judge O'Brien ordered the films returned on the grounds that the seizures, authorized at the request of the city by O'Brien and another judge, violated the theater's constitutional rights and failed to satisfy the legal requirements.

At a previous hearing D. Freeman Hutton, Atlanta, Ga., attorney, argued that the films were taken without a hearing to determine if they were obscene as he said is required by U.S. Supreme Court decisions.

City Prosecutor Gary Buchino argued then and again this week when the order was issued, that the films were taken to preserve the evidence.

In issuing his return order Judge O'Brien expressed "concern" over the remaining evidence the city of Omaha has to prove the films were obscene.

"How do you proceed on the obscenity of the film if you cannot produce the film," he asked Buchino. The city prosecutor said he would produce still photos and verbal evidence by policemen who saw the films.

Jerald Rae Expected To Head Bus System

The Transit Advisory Committee Friday recommended that the city's new municipal bus system, which started operations Friday, be called the Lincoln Transportation System.

Expected to head the bus system as general manager is Jerald Rae, 52, branch manager of Wells Fargo in Lincoln. The City Council Monday will act on a resolution to appoint Rae as general manager.

Rae, who has lived in Lincoln since 1967, is responsible for supervising 33 employees and a fleet of vehicles.

The advisory committee had screened applications from Lincolinites and persons from across the nation who have been linked with transportation systems.

A salary in the vicinity of $12,000 is being proposed for the position as general manager. He would assume the post July 28, if approved by the council.

William Franklin, general superintendent for Lincoln City Lines, who will continue with local bus operations as a city employee, told the board he looks forward to working with the city.

Franklin, regarded as a top man in the bus maintenance field, said he will do everything possible to get the buses in as good a condition as possible.

Blue And White
The committee also recommended that the buses to be purchased be painted mainly blue with a white roof.

JERALD RAE

City Lines provides for the private bus company to provide management services until no later than Sept. 15 to provide a smooth management transition.

Responsibility to come up with proposals on matters involving charter rates and other details will be the new manager's responsibility, the committee decided.

Pedestrian Is Hospitalized

A Lincoln man was listed in good condition at Veteran's Hospital as a result of a car-pedestrian accident at 41st and St. Paul Friday night, according to police officer James Baird.

Baird said Albert Stava, 48, of 3545 Madison suffered a broken left knee and multiple cuts and bruises when he was struck by a car while walking westbound across 41st at St. Paul.

Motor Vehicle Homicide Charged In Recent Fatality

A felony motor vehicle homicide charge was filed Friday in Lancaster County Court against 28-year-old Greg Bischof in connection with a car-truck accident early Thursday which claimed the life of 29-year-old Michael J. Anderson.

According to police, the Bischof car, in which Anderson was a passenger, was west-bound on Cornhusker when it collided with the rear of a truck driven by Earl L. Haugen of Ft. Huron, S.D. The truck driver was not injured.

UP AND DOWN

"Wow!" "I left my stomach back on that last hill!" "What a ride!" Excitement on wheels. That's a roller coaster — up and down, up and down.

Just like a roller coaster, all of us realize that our very life is a series of hills and valleys. We are enjoying a smooth and peaceful existence, when suddenly we find ourselves far from the peaceful valley on what seems like a mountain of confusion and distress.

At such crucial times we need to remember there is a nearby fortress of stability. It is that place of power that stands ever ready to provide the necessary faith and courage to face tomorrow with enthusiasm. Discover the inner peace that comes from divine love. Worship in church this Sunday.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Where are the scoffers at ping-pong diplomacy? When many people were pleased that an American ping-pong team had been invited to visit Red China, some skeptics loudly noted that the event was of no significance or importance.

They seriously pointed out that international relations are not based on batting a little ball back and forth on a table. President Nixon's announcement that he would visit the People's Republic of China before May of 1972 gives the skeptics an opportunity to eat their words.

The ping-pong matches did not constitute any kind of formal agreement, understanding or anything else between the U.S. and Red China but they were an encouraging sign. Along with such things as a relaxation of trade agreements and visits between the two nations, they served to show that Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai might be seeking to change the collision course they were traveling.

It will undoubtedly be argued by some at this stage that a visit by Nixon to Red China is not to be hailed as the end of disagreements between East and West. Such a visit, it will be pointed out, will still leave many divisions between Red China and the U.S. and could even complicate life for us with Russia and some other countries.

All of this is true, of course, but the heartening thing is that the door to Red China is opening. It is essential to recognize that one cannot walk through a door before it is opened.

The Nixon visit will not be the end of world hostilities or even of harsh relationships in the world. It will, however, constitute a beginning of what could eventually come to be the end of hostilities in the world.

Not that the whole world is going to come soon to the point of a mutual love feast but no one should expect this. No nation is in total agreement even within itself, much less in its relations with other members of the universe.

The significance of the President's announcement might well be found in two areas. For one, it may signal a change in our approach to the communist powers of the world. The U.S. has never really abandoned the cold war strategy of post-World-War-II days and it has not gotten the world very far.

Perhaps that policy was right for its time, just as Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson might have been right in their time in Vietnam, despite the judgments now being rendered with the benefit of hindsight.

But you have to hope that something better can come of the world than the limited wars and armament races that have characterized it in the past two decades. It is not necessary to say that our past policies have served us badly to see that changes in policy might serve us better.

If this were not the case, mankind could make no progress. In all areas of life, the past is not condemned through the progress of the present and the promise of the future. It is in the tendency to ignore this that we get bogged down in our failures and lose sight of our potentialities.

At least, President Nixon seems to be seeking to reduce the status of the communist world from that of deadly adversary to a worthy competitor. We think that the time is right for this and that it contains the seed of great promise for mankind.

Secondly, the President's visit to mainland China appears to have some relationship to Vietnam and the growing talk for a new international conference on Asia. This is encouraging in view of the unimaginative approach by the U.S. to the latest peace offers by North Vietnam.

The U.S., judging from published reports, has not seemed to make any sincere effort to capitalize on those peace offers. We have not seemed to give those offers the benefit of any doubt, to have tested them for their validity.

Without something else up his sleeve, such as a new conference on Asia, President Nixon is getting in deeper and deeper trouble at home on the Vietnam issue. Looking at Vietnam and our overall foreign policy, President Nixon's announcement to visit mainland China is a heartening and significant development.

Big Business Learns To Face The Public

NEW YORK — Well, now, consumers, we're making progress. Here we've been fretting for years about how to get through to Big Business . . . and now Big Business is worrying about how to get through to us.

Would you believe the executives are even taking lessons?

Probably even Ralph Nader himself never thought it would come to this, but corporate officers around the country are signing up for basic training in how to answer up to an irate public. Without blowing the whole bit, that is.

After all, a boss just never knows when it might be his turn to make embarrassing headlines (if it can happen to General Motors, it can happen to anybody) . . . and wouldn't it be handy to have a couple of boys in the executive suite who know how to handle themselves on the six o'clock news?

So the lads are putting on their powder-blue shirts and their sincere expressions and facing a battery of TV cameras, lights and tough reporters.

It's all make-believe, a rough-and-tumble run-through for the day their plant makes unwelcome news by being charged with pollution . . . not hiring enough minority workers . . . ordering a mass layoff . . . facing a consumer lawsuit. Ticklish things like that.

The reporters (and some of them are real professionals) bombard the businessmen with tough questions and hostile probing. And if the boys understandably blow their stacks, fumble for answers, or look uncomfortable, well . . . better they do it in class than in living color before millions of prospective customers, right?

After each trainee has been put through the wringer, Mr. Burson's team gives him an "instant replay" on closed circuit TV and analyzes his performance. They keep him at it until he gets over his fear of the cameras and learns to field the toughies without getting rattled.

He doesn't get an "A" in the course until he can control his temper and keep his poise . . . no matter what the reporters throw at him. (A company spokesman who loses his cool damages the corporate image, you know.)

Mr. Burson introduces his executives to the confusing world of TV by exposing them first to psychedelic films and mind-blowing rock.

"Most of them are pretty conservative types," he explained. "You have to shake 'em up a little."

Then comes a short course in what to expect on a TV newscast . . . what kind of facts reporters are really after . . . how to handle them when what they're after isn't what the corporation wants them to know.

"But there's increased sensitivity to public criticism these days," Mr. Burson says. "No longer do corporate officers take the attitude: 'I'll tell you what I think you should know.'"

"Now it's more like: 'Maybe I'm not doing something right.'"

Did you ever think you'd live to see the day???

Goals Not Hard To Set

We certainly have no issue with establishment of a new Nebraska group whose purpose will be the determination of goals for the state. But whenever you talk about goals, you have to think about the means of reaching them.

It is on this thought that we tend to get hung up. We seriously doubt that anyone could come up with even one goal for Nebraska that has not been thought of before. The real nut to crack is how to meet the goal and if the new committee is to be worth its salt, it will direct its attention to this matter.

We well remember an experience a year or more ago at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education. A large group of people from all walks of life in Nebraska came together to discuss the past, present and future of the state.

This they did, as we remember, for at least a solid day and maybe more. Reports were prepared on the meeting and they have since served no cause at all that we know of.

They contained all the things you would expect such as consolidation of government, improvement in transportation network, conservation of resources, industrial expansion, tourism promotion, better education and almost every other laudable objective that you could think of.

The point is that there is no shortage of good ideas or goals. There is, however, a critical shortage of ways of carrying out the ideas or meeting the goals.

At least two obstacles constantly present themselves when we seek to meet the goals we establish. One, the parties involved find it impossible to agree among themselves and, secondly, the finances needed are unavailable.

Money isn't the answer to everything but you are kidding yourself if you think the goals for Nebraska can be reached without it. We are not going to reach many goals when we dedicate ourselves, as we have done at the moment at the state level of government, to the perpetuity of existing tax levels. Until that concept changes, the new goals group is wished well but granted little chance of achieving anything worthwhile.

For Forgetful People

When a friend the other day related to us the story of having forgotten his wife's birthday, it was chalked up as just another one of the small inevitabilities of life. But then we got to thinking — is it really inevitable?

Maybe it isn't, or at least wouldn't have to be. Some retail outlet might do quite well if it promoted the registration by people of important dates to be remembered by a gift, even if it is a small gift.

A man could tell the store the date of his wedding anniversary, his wife's birthday and any other dates he wanted to remember. Two weeks or so before those dates, the store would remind the fellow by mail of the occasion.

The service could include the store's selection and sending of an appropriate remembrance, even, if the customer wanted to do it that way. That would make the thing a little too impersonal for some people but it would be the kind of simplicity and efficiency that some folks would like.

It just seems that there should be some way for people to avoid the pitfall of their own forgetfulness. If we can send men to the moon and make a bomb that will wipe out civilization, we should be able to devise a scheme to handle such small human events as anniversaries, birthdays, etc.

For the ladies, of course, it is not so important because seem to have a knack for remembering important dates. It is the men who go home on important dates and blissfully ignore the event.

Obviously, anyone could simply write down and keep a file on such dates but who would look at the file at the right time or be able to find it when he wanted it?

Hanoi Relying On American Public Opinion To Accomplish Winner-Take-All Settlement

PARIS — Communist strategy in this final phase of the Indochina war seems postulated on proving Abraham Lincoln was wrong and that it is indeed possible to fool all the American people all the time. Hanoi has reason to believe it may well demonstrate this cynical theorem's accuracy.

The emphasis of the conflict has shifted from the battlefields of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia to Paris where, although formal peace talks remain stalemated, cubic yards of propaganda are being released. After a year's absence, Le Duc Tho, No. 5 in the North Vietnamese pecking order, returned there to join Madame Binh, the Viet Cong negotiator, in mounting a diplomatic offensive.

It doesn't require second sight to see that Hanoi is convinced a growing majority of Americans opposes any Nixon policy that isn't tantamount to cut and run from Indochina and that the respect and esteem for the United States government on war policy flicker close to zero.

Communist officials have therefore eagerly made themselves available to the foreign press to explain that if only the United States will be reasonable, a settlement can swiftly be arranged on the basis of an announced fixed date for an American military withdrawal under promised safeguards and a release of prisoners (from Vietnam; Laos and Cambodia haven't yet been mentioned).

It is asserted that no conditions are attached, that if only President Nguyen Van Thieu will be replaced in Saigon as president, North and South Vietnam can arrange a settlement between them as separate neutral partners. Le Duc Tho went so far as to tell a French magazine this week that Hanoi will eschew all alliances and refuse military basis to any foreign countries (such as China or Russia).

This seems heartening. It promises a negotiable way out of an unpopular war — until one carefully rereads the very first point of the new negotiating position outlined by Madame Binh on July 1. This includes the following categorical demand:

"The U.S. government must put an end to its war of aggression in Vietnam, the policy of

'Vietnamization' of the war, withdraw from South Vietnam all troops, military personnel, weapons and war materials of the United States and of other foreign countries in the U.S. camp, and dismantle all U.S. bases in South Vietnam, without posing any condition whatsoever."

This very first point means that, beneath the bland smile of the Indochina communist negotiators here, they insist that we sign an unconditional surrender before we even begin to discuss subsequent terms. The approach clearly excuses the communist side from incorporating in any written agreement the unilateral promises they have been making in public. Is it an ultimatum to sign a blank check?

Hanoi hopes to emulate the kind of operation Algeria's National Liberation Front succeeded in arranging with DeGaulle. Although French forces reigned supreme on all battlefields, DeGaulle was forced to capitulate diplomatically because there was no longer sufficient support in France's public opinion for any other course and the general was wise enough to know this. Even so,

JOHN SWAIN

When John Swain first rode into Cochise County, the Arizona Territory was risky country for cattle men. Rustlers, Apaches and Mexican badmen were as thick as the thorns on a prickly cactus. It was courting disaster to graze a herd on the open range.

Swain was one of the hardy breed who soon changed all of that. A skilled cowhand and deadly rifle shot, Swain rode with a legendary Texan named John Slaughter.

A rancher in West Texas, Slaughter moved his longhorn herd west to Arizona in 1879. He succeeded where others had failed. And he capped his career as the duly elected sheriff of Cochise County.

Slaughter and Swain had been sidekicks of sorts since boyhood. Swain was born in 1845 on the ranch of Slaughter's father near San Antonio. A slave, he was given to Slaughter when his mother was sold to a neighboring rancher. Slaughter and Swain were about the same age.

After emancipation, Swain chose to stay with Slaughter. He rode herd for him, fought Comanches and rustlers and became one of Slaughter's most trusted men.

When Slaughter decided to move west to Arizona, it was only natural for Swain to go along with him. They drove the Slaughter herd across the Rio Grande in flood and pushed across some of the Southwest's most desolate country. On one stretch, they drove the herd 80 miles across searing desert without water.

They arrived in Cochise County in 1879, and Slaughter soon turned his San Bernardino ranch near Tombstone into a thriving operation, despite rustlers from both sides of the border.

Slaughter was a stubborn man who believed in hanging on to cattle wearing his brand. He would track rustlers to hell and back to recover what was his; Swain would follow without giving it a second thought.

They Had A Dream

Once the rustlers' trail led Slaughter, Swain, another Negro named Bat and a handful of Mexican vaqueros south of the border to the village of a bandit chief.

Despite their precarious circumstances, Slaughter's men circled the stock and began driving them north. They hadn't gone far when the bandit and his men set out after them.

Slaughter's Mexican hands vanished into the brush leaving him, Swain and Bat to stand off the rustlers. They should have high-tailed it for the border, but instead they drove the cattle into a box canyon and proceeded to reduce the odds with their rifles. The Mexicans decided the beef wasn't worth it and gave up the fight, and Slaughter took his stock home.

When Slaughter became sheriff, Swain went his own way. He rode for a couple of other spreads and became a familiar figure around Tombstone.

In his later years, Swain lived in a shack on Tombstone's outskirts with a vegetable garden and his memories. His ambition was to live to be 100, and on that milestone day to ride a bucking bronc. If it pitched him into the next world, he said, that would be all right with him.

Swain lived three months short of a full century. He died in 1945 and the city of Tombstone buried the old pioneer with honors on Boothill where he had seen the first grave filled 66 years before.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on whether a letter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

Against Dam

Lincoln, Neb.

If anyone has any doubts about whether a dam should be built on the Niobrara River near Norden, he should go there and see for himself. He should take a canoe (an old-fashioned kind of boat that causes no noise, air or water pollution), put in at the bridge below Valentine, and paddle downstream 10 or 20 miles.

We did just that last weekend, and it was one of the most beautiful canoe trips I've been on! The cliffs along the river are majestic, the white birch trees are a treasure found nowhere else in Nebraska, the water, sand, and, in short, the whole area is clean, wild and beautiful.

Before starting a canoe trip, one should stop just west of the Valentine city park and observe the dam put in years ago — it is now so full of silt that it's not good for much of anything except growing mosquitoes. This would, of course, be the fate of a new dam, and the trees, rocks, canyons, wildlife and natural beauty would be lost forever.

I say Nebraska has enough farmland — the government pays the farmers not to use it all — why develop more? I say there are enough places for motorboats and the flashy, expensive, polluting toys of lazy, modern life. Let us use our heads and preserve one of the prettiest spots in the whole state for the next generation!

Points Cleared

Lincoln, Neb.

There are several points of clarification needed in the editorial, "Attitudes Are Changing," of July 14.

(1) The parental survey said that 51 per cent of the parents of women students approved of the program and 61 per cent of the parents of men students as opposed to the editorial which said 51 per cent of mothers and 61 per cent of fathers.

(2) This is not the first time a program of visitation privileges was sent to the Board of Regents. There were two graduate student visitation program requests before this one. However, this is the first time a proposal inclusive of all students was prepared and also the first time parents were asked their opinion on such a policy.

I disagree with the statement relating to amount of parental support needed. When a majority of the people in any given situation approve of a policy or a candidate for election, then the result is accepted as sufficient, even 51 per cent of the vote. Therefore, when the parental survey showed overall support of 56 per cent, it should be taken into consideration — not just the amount of negativism that still remains.

Finally it is the feeling of my fellow students that responsibility is gained when responsibility is given.

A Satire

Lincoln, Neb.

Has "Donna J.'s" preoccupation with her interpretation of the American dream (July 9) caused her to misread the facetious "Archie Bunker" letter (July 2), the purpose of which was to express a viewpoint shared by those not in agreement with "Haymaker" (June 29) but unable to relate their thoughts in an intelligible manner totally free from censorship.

The letter was a satire. There was no intention of poking fun at Cretans, although some Cretans may have misinterpreted it.

Former Coeds Are Brides At Evening Weddings

On Friday evening, July 16, the marriage of Miss Teri Jo Brady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Brady, to Robert H. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Volle C. Bohler of Lakeland, Fla., took place at St. Teresa's Catholic Church. The 7 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael M. Kaczmarek.

The four attendants, including Mrs. Philip Lundblad of St. Paul, Minn., matron of honor; and bridesmaids Mrs. John N. Freeman, Mrs. James E. Pansing, and Mrs. Harry P. Seward, III, wore alike, floor-length frocks of cotton voile in shades of mint and peach over peach taffeta.

Albert G. Wendel of Atlanta, Ga., served as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included Craig Pohlman, James E. Pansing, and Harry P. Seward III.

The bride appeared in a gown of silk organza designed in the princess mode. Venetian lace, which fashioned the brief sleeves, was repeated to form a front panel from the wedding band neckline to the hemline of the A-line skirt which was completed with a cotillion train.

A lace calot held to the head her lace-patterned train-length veil and she carried a cascade of Phalaenopsis orchids, stephanotis, and gypsophelia.

Mr. Miller and his bride will reside in Jacksonville, Fla.

The bride attended William Woods College in Fulton, Mo., and was graduated from the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Mr. Miller is a graduate of the University of Florida where he is affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

MRS. ROBERT M. MILLER

MRS. MARK MEYER

The wedding of Miss Jacquelyn Dianne Graves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack D. Graves of Beatrice, and Mark Dale Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Meyer of Talmage, took place on Saturday afternoon, July 10, at the First Presbyterian Church in Beatrice. The 4 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Dean Waychoff.

Alike, floor-length frocks of floral patterned georgette in shades of hot pink and green, were worn by attendants maid of honor Miss Carol Jean Bargman of Beatrice; and bridesmaids Miss Kathy Fox of Houston, Tex., Miss Cheryl Zulauf of Kansas City, Mo., Miss Vernita Steven and Miss Cindy Bargman.

Gary Meyer served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers were Dennis Kreimer of Talmage, Ken Meyer, John Walker, Dick Graves of Beatrice, Arthur Jones of Summerfield, Kan., Carl Heiserman, and Dana Poulson of Elm Creek.

For her wedding, the bride chose an A-line silhouette gown of delustered satin. Strauss lace fashioned the Empire bodice with its mandarin collar, and formed an overdrop on the full-length, sheer Bishop sleeves. A bandeau held in place her cotillion-length veil, and she carried a topiary ball of greenery with pink carnations and pink daisies.

The bride attended Texas Woman's University, Denton, Tex., and was graduated from the University of Nebraska. She plans to teach in Exeter in the fall.

Mr. Meyer attended McCook Junior College and will be graduated from the University of Nebraska in December.

The News In Suburbia

Due to July heat, it seems as though Lincoln's suburban population has dwindled down to a scattering of neighbors who are taking car of absent neighbors' lawns, newspapers and mail! Actually, the lost "nomad" population is more than made up by visitors right here in our city. Today we have much to tell about recent returnees and we will take a peak into their travel logs for a hint of where suburban residents have been and are going this season.

Kessler Heights residents Mr. and Mrs. Francis Niebuhr and their two children Karen Sue, and Kent Allan stepped out for a three week vacation to the southern part of the nation.

From Nebraska they hopped states down to Horseshoe Bend, Ark. for a three-day stay before continuing southward.

There was plenty of tap at their final destination in Greenville, Tex. During their 10-day stay they were guests at the home of Mrs. Niebuhr's mother, Mrs. Robert Hall. At a gala family reunion the Lincoln family had a chance to visit with Mrs. Niebuhr's brother-in-law and their sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Carnes and their two children Sheryl also of Greenville and Jeanne; another brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Niebuhr's — Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Kennedy and their three children, Robin Scott, and Brian, of Tampa, Fla., and Mrs. Niebuhr's brother Gerald Hall, and his son Bob.

Aside from visiting they also went sightseeing to Six Flags Over Texas, Animal World, and the Kennedy Memorial in Dallas. On the way back to Nebraska, they stopped in Abilene Kan., for a visit to the Dwight D. Eisenhower home.

Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Maier recently returned to their Eastmont home from their summer vacation. The first stopping-off point on the trip was St. Louis, Mo., where they visited with former Lincoln residents, the Rev. and Mrs. Art Krause and their three children, Kim, Stephanie and Michelle. One of the highlights of the trip was a ride to the top of the famous Arch, the Gateway to the West.

From St. Louis, the family motored to Milwaukee, Wis. for a visit with Mrs. Maier's sister and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Reins, where a new addition to the family was the center of much attention. The young Kevin has an older sister, Kim.

Fishing was the next item on the travel agenda, and the Maier family left Milwaukee for West Battle Lake in Minnesota. They returned to Lincoln last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Abels and their son, Matthew Shane, are still recuperating from the Fourth of July weekend that found their Wedgewood Manor home jam-packed with guests from very colorful places — and they are still talking about their experiences.

The first guests arrived just a few days before the long weekend — from Japan. You see, 14 Japanese students were in Lincoln recently to observe American culture on the People-to-People project, and Mr. and Mrs. Abels were host and hostess to two of the students.

Their guests, whom they took on a tour of the Capitol and to Pioneer's Park, were Miss Yoko Sato of Hokkaido, Japan, a 21-year-old who is majoring in English literature; and Miss Nobuko Kurogo of Tochigi-Pre, Japan, a 23-year-old elementary education major.

The students chose to visit the Mid-West since they were particularly interested in the pioneer country, and they found that Lincoln residents are unusually friendly. From Lincoln, the girls departed for Kansas and Texas, and then their return trip to their native and.

conZOOsations

BY PHYLLIS WOOLLEN

"Hob's Choice", the musical for children that is being presented at the Children's Zoo on Wednesday and Saturday mornings, really got my goat. My baby goat, that is. I am the mother of the little grey African Camaroon Pigmy goat that you see in the photo above. That little rascal just slips through the gate of the Zoo Compound where we live, and takes off for the show. He does it without my permission, I might add. The truth is, I don't blame him.

Actually, most of the animals that live in the compound with us would enjoy getting out to see "Hob's Choice" ourselves. But, by 10:30 on those mornings when the show begins, we are usually too busy playing with the boys and girls who are visiting and petting us in the Compound.

Some things have changed around the Compound recently. For instance, just last week a Nuben goat with long ears that flop joined our little community. Everyone seems to like him.

And you will hardly recognize the two Karacul lambs. They both got their hair cut — sheared, I think you say.

When you do come into the compound, look for the four-horn sheep. You know the one. He has four curly horns, two on the side and two on the top of his head. Of course, my two horns could butt even better than his curly ones, if I were so inclined. But all of us have pretty friendly natures, so boys and girls don't have to be afraid.

Mother pig is doing very well with all of her little babies that were born when the Zoo first opened this year. She is a little jealous of her babies, and is kind of touchy as to who can come near them.

The Rhea is in the other corral near the pigs. He is just a baby now, but when he grows up he will be one of the third largest birds in the world.

One of the children's favorite animals here at the compound is the Sicilian Donkey. The story is that that black stripe down his back and the other black stripe across his shoulders form a cross to represent the blessing of Jesus Christ for the donkey carrying Him through the streets of Israel.

By the way, if you happen to be at "Hob's Choice" and see my baby, you might want to give him some popcorn — he loves it. And after the show, if it's not out of the way, would you bring him back home to the Compound?

So Sew

By GAIL HERSTEAD

Tuesday I mentioned planning your fall wardrobe from the clothes in your own closet which is great, but it is just like a woman to want something new to add to that closet collection. A new "gladrag" does something for our ego — and our husbands' bank accounts.

Some of the best looking fall and winter clothes are sewn or knitted of 100 per cent American wool this season. If you select such a fabric or yarn for a dress, coat, suit, or pants — you could be eligible for the 10th annual Make It Yourself With Wool contest.

Competition begins at the district level... District 6 contestants, which include Lancaster County girls and women, will compete in Seward on Nov. 13 at the Civic Center. District winners advance to the state contest on Dec. 10 and 11 in Scottsbluff at Nebraska Western College. National Final Competition for state winners in Phoenix, Arizona on Jan. 20, 1972 ends when two proud seamstresses win European trips and luggage. Finalist, state and district awards include college scholarships, bonds, sewing machines, skirt lengths, sewing books, and numerous other prizes.

Due to the upsurge in hand crafts usage, which follows the 3-billion dollar home sewing business, the contest officials are encouraging hand knit and crochet fashion entires.

Entries may be received at the extension office, Lincoln fabric stores, or by writing to Mrs. Dale Fosler, Director District 6, Route 2, Box 147, Milford, Nebr. 68405.

Four divisions open the contest to the sub-ded, 10-13; junior, 14-16; senior, 17-21; and adults, over 21. All entrants are judged for poise, presentation, sewing or knitting skill, fabric selection and style.

Entering the Make It Yourself With Wool contest is a smart move in more than one way since it offers the perfect excuse for a new outfit this fall and winter!

FROM THE NEEDLE'S EYE... Wow, what a bargain. Sewing talents come in handy during July sale mark-downs. A friend of mine — who is a talented seamstress and also happens to be Miss Lincoln — discovered a knit top and knicker set which was marked down to two dollars, after having already been reduced in price three times. She snatched up the neglected suit, trimmed off the knickers to thigh-high and now has a smart yellow hot pants outfit. Imagination pays at the mark-down tables!

DEAR ABBY: Of all the letters you have had printed in your column, does any one stand out for having created more reaction than any of the others?

A MINISTER

DEAR MINISTER: Yes. This one. And it's worth repeating:

DEAR ABBY: I am the most heartbroken person on earth. I always found time to go everywhere else but to see my old gray-haired parents. They sat at home alone loving me just the same. It is too late now to give them those few hours of happiness. I was too selfish and too busy to give, and now when I go to visit their graves and look at the green grass above them I wonder if God will ever forgive me for the heartaches I must have caused them. I pray that you will print this, Abby, to tell those who still have their parents to visit them and show their love and respect while there is still time. For it is later than you think.

"TOO LATE"

DEAR ABBY: I am just plain disgusted with myself. Why? Because I'm a big, strong, fairly intelligent adult male who has never been shy, meek or lacking in self-confidence, yet for some crazy reason, I turn into a mealy-mouthed little mouse when I am asked (usually during dinner), "Do you mind if I smoke?"

Instead of saying, "Yes, I DO mind," I hear myself replying in my most agreeable manner, "Not at all. Go right ahead."

Why? NONSMOKER DEAR NON: Because you'd rather put up with the smoke than bear the guilt of denying the smoker his nicotine lift, which he obviously craves. Every smoker knows that nonsmokers do not appreciate smoke in their faces. The hooked one asks only in order to reduce his own guilt feelings. Next time, tell the truth.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it's a good idea for a man to make his wife jealous once in a while to keep her on her toes?

MAC DEAR MAC: Forget it. Instead of keeping her on HER toes, you're apt to find her on your heels.

CONFIDENTIAL TO M. K. K. IN SIOUX CITY, IA.: My answer ("Let the 15-year-old boy give his $100 ring to his teen-aged girl friend.") was not snap judgment on my part. The ring belonged to the boy, so it's his to give away, throw away or to wear in his nose if he so chooses, and his mother has nothing to say about it. Of course, it might have been (and probably was) a foolish act on the boy's part, but I can think of no better way for a young man to learn a lesson that to pay $100 for it.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply envelope stamped, addressed envelope.

"Wow!" "I left my stomach back on that last hill!" "What a ride!" Excitement on wheels. That's a roller coaster — up and down, up and down.

Just like a roller coaster, all of us realize that our very life is a series of hills and valleys. We are enjoying a smooth and peaceful existence, when suddenly we find ourselves far from the peaceful valley on what seems like a mountain of confusion and distress.

At such crucial times we need to remember there is a nearby fortress of stability. It is that place of power that stands ever ready to provide the necessary faith and courage to face tomorrow with enthusiasm. Discover the inner peace that comes from divine love. Worship in church this Sunday.

Crossing By Ship Suggested

By ROBERT PETERSON
Have you ever gone to Europe by ship? If not, put this high on the list of things you must do before bidding this planet adieu. Retirement is a great time for making a crossing by ship because there's no need to rush.

Young people with limited vacation schedules often fail to appreciate fully a voyage by ship. Instead of musing about the majesty of the sea, contemplating the enormity of the universe, and savoring the salt-air euphoria, they find themselves thinking of all the things they could be doing in Europe if they had gone by air and were already there.

My first crossing was some three decades ago on the old Polish liner Batory. The vessel seemed incredibly long and luxurious to my youthful eyes, and my memories of the 10-day voyage from New York to Copenhagen are magnificently guided by the passage of time. In retrospect, all the passengers seemed glamorous, the food a gourmet's delight, and the days a scintillating combination of sleepy relaxation and lively excitement.

But mostly I remember my fascination with the sea itself. Coming from Kansas, I found the Atlantic Ocean new and mysterious. It seemed so vast and deep and impervious to man's will. For hours I stood at the railing just gazing at the majestic rise and fall of the waters and the churning wake behind. I felt insignificant but strangely important as I watched the crested waves and felt the deck move under my feet.

Ships offer numerous delights. There are deck chairs, movies, bingo parties, mid-morning bouillon, afternoon tea, and sauna baths. They also offer certain opportunities for brief romantic excursions. My first trip was no exception. There was a pretty Danish girl aboard. We seemed made for each other at the time. But the years have passed and I can't even remember her name.

I was too young to be interested in older people in those days. But I recall that half the passengers aboard were along in years — mostly retired folk of Danish and Polish backgrounds making their first pilgrimage to the land of their ancestors.

Youngsters today tell us the world is small. But we who are older learned long ago that the globe and its oceans are enormous. Perhaps that's why older people find crossing the sea by ship a particularly thrilling experience. Instead of getting there in a few airborne hours, the slow pace of the ship imparts a sense of distance and satisfyingly confirms childhood beliefs that Europe is a long, long distance away and that crossing the ocean is a very, very special experience.

Former Coeds Are Brides At Evening Weddings

On Friday evening, July 16, the marriage of Miss Teri Jo Brady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Brady, to Robert H. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Volle C. Bohler of Lakeland, Fla., took place at St. Teresa's Catholic Church. The 7 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael M. Kaczmarek.

The four attendants, including Mrs. Philip Lundblad of St. Paul, Minn., matron of honor; and bridesmaids Mrs. John N. Freeman, Mrs. James E. Pansing, and Mrs. Harry P. Seward, III, wore alike, floor-length frocks of cotton voile in shades of mint and peach over peach taffeta.

Albert G. Wendel of Atlanta, Ga., served as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included Craig Pohlman, James E. Pansing, and Harry P. Seward III.

The bride appeared in a gown of silk organza designed in the princess mode. Venetian lace, which fashioned the brief sleeves, was repeated to form a front panel from the wedding band neckline to the hemline of the A-line skirt which was completed with a cotillion train.

A lace calot held to the head her lace-patterned train-length veil and she carried a cascade of Phalaenopsis orchids, stephanotis, and gypsophelia.

Mr. Miller and his bride will reside in Jacksonville, Fla.

The bride attended William Woods College in Fulton, Mo., and was graduated from the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Mr. Miller is a graduate of the University of Florida where he is affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

MRS. ROBERT M. MILLER

MRS. MARK MEYER

The wedding of Miss Jacquelyn Dianne Graves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack D. Graves of Beatrice, and Mark Dale Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Meyer of Talmage, took place on Saturday afternoon, July 10, at the First Presbyterian Church in Beatrice. The 4 o'clock ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Dean Waychoff.

Alike, floor-length frocks of floral patterned georgette in shades of hot pink and green, were worn by attendants maid of honor Miss Carol Jean Bargman of Beatrice; and bridesmaids Miss Kathy Fox of Houston, Tex., Miss Cheryl Zulauf of Kansas City, Mo., Miss Vernita Steven and Miss Cindy Bargman.

Gary Meyer served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers were Dennis Kreimer of Talmage, Ken Meyer, John Walker, Dick Graves of Beatrice, Arthur Jones of Summerfield, Kan., Carl Heiserman, and Dana Poulson of Elm Creek.

For her wedding, the bride chose an A-line silhouette gown of delustered satin. Strauss lace fashioned the Empire bodice with its mandarin collar, and formed an overdrop on the full-length, sheer Bishop sleeves. A bandeau held in place her cotillion-length veil, and she carried a topiary ball of greenery with pink carnations and pink daisies.

The bride attended Texas Woman's University, Denton, Tex., and was graduated from the University of Nebraska. She plans to teach in Exeter in the fall.

Mr. Meyer attended McCook Junior College and will be graduated from the University of Nebraska in December.

The News In Suburbia

Due to July heat, it seems as though Lincoln's suburban population has dwindled down to a scattering of neighbors who are taking car of absent neighbors' lawns, newspapers and mail! Actually, the lost "nomad" population is more than made up by visitors right here in our city. Today we have much to tell about recent returnees and we will take a peak into their travel logs for a hint of where suburban residents have been and are going this season.

Kessler Heights residents Mr. and Mrs. Francis Niebuhr and their two children Karen Sue, and Kent Allan stepped out for a three week vacation to the southern part of the nation.

From Nebraska they hopped states down to Horseshoe Bend, Ark for a three-day stay before continuing southward.

There was plenty of tap at their final destination in Greenville, Tex. During their 10-day stay they were guests at the home of Mrs. Niebuhr's mother, Mrs. Robert Hall. At a gala family reunion the Lincoln family had a chance to visit with Mrs. Niebuhr's brother-in-law and their sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Carnes and their two children Sheryl also of Greenville and Jeanne; another brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Niebuhr's — Mr. and Mrs. D. A. O'Connell and their three children, Robin Scott, and Brian, of Tampa, Fla., and Mrs. Niebuhr's brother Gerald Hall, and his son Bob.

Aside from visiting they also went sightseeing to Six Flags Over Texas, Animal World, and the Kennedy Memorial in Dallas. On the way back to Nebraska, they stopped in Abilene Kan., for a visit to the Dwight D. Eisenhower home.

Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Maier recently returned to their Eastmont home from their summer vacation. The first stopping-off point on the trip was St. Louis, Mo., where they visited with former Lincoln residents, the Rev. and Mrs. Art Krause and their three children, Kim, Stephanie and Michelle. One of the highlights of the trip was a ride to the top of the famous Arch, the Gateway to the West.

From St. Louis, the family motored to Milwaukee, Wis. for a visit with Mrs. Maier's sister and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Reims, where a new addition to the family was the center of much attention. The young Kevin has an older sister, Kim.

Fishing was the next item on the travel agenda, and the Maier family left Milwaukee for West Battle Lake in Minnesota. They returned to Lincoln last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Abels and their son, Matthew Shane, are still recuperating from the Fourth of July weekend that found their Wedgewood Manor home jam-packed with guests from very colorful places — and they are still talking about their experiences.

The first guests arrived just a few days before the long weekend — from Japan. You see, 14 Japanese students were in Lincoln recently to observe American culture on the People-to-People project, and Mr. and Mrs. Abels were host and hostess to two of the students.

Their guests, whom they took on a tour of the Capitol and to Pioneer's Park, were Miss Yoko Sato of Hokkaido, Japan, a 21-year-old who is majoring in English literature; and Miss Nobuko Kurogo of Tohigi-Pre, Japan, a 23-year-old elementary education major.

The students chose to visit the Mid-West since they were particularly interested in the pioneer country, and they found that Lincoln residents are unusually friendly. From Lincoln, the girls departed for Kansas and Texas, and then their return trip to their native and.

MISS BONNIE FRANTA

This morning the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Bonnie Jean Franta of Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Weston of Weston, to Norris C. Fujan, also of Lincoln, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Fujan of Weston, is announced by the bride-elect's parents.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, Oct. 2.

Miss Franta is careering in Lincoln.

By GAIL HERSTEAD

Tuesday I mentioned planning your fall wardrobe from the clothes in your own closet which is great, but it is just like a woman to want something new to add to that closet collection. A new "gladrag" does something for our ego — and our husbands' bank accounts.

Some of the best looking fall and winter clothes are sewn or knitted of 100 per cent American wool this season. If you select such a fabric or yarn for a dress, coat, suit, or pants — you could be eligible for the 10th annual Make It Yourself With Wool contest.

Competition begins at the district level ... District 6 contestants, which include Lancaster County girls and women, will compete in Seward on Nov. 13 at the Civic Center. District winners advance to the state contest on Dec. 10 and 11 in Scottsbluff at Nebraska Western College. National Final Competition for state winners in Phoenix, Arizona on Jan. 20, 1972 ends when two proud seamstresses win European trips and luggage. Finalist, state and district awards include college scholarships, bonds, sewing machines, skirt lengths, sewing books, and numerous other prizes.

Due to the upsurge in hand-crafts usage, which follows the 3-billion dollar home sewing business, the contest officials are encouraging hand knit and crochet fashion entries.

Entries may be received at the extension office, Lincoln fabric stores, or by writing to Mrs. Dale Fosler, Director District 6, Route 2, Box 147, Milford, Nebr. 68405.

Four divisions open the contest to the sub-ded, 10-13; junior, 14-16; senior, 17-21; and adults, over 21. All entrants are judged for poise, presentation, sewing or knitting skill, fabric selection and style.

Entering the Make It Yourself With Wool contest is a smart move in more than one way since it offers the perfect excuse for a new outfit this fall and winter!

FROM THE NEEDLE'S EYE ... Wow, what a bargain. Sewing talents come in handy during July sale markdowns. A friend of mine — who is a talented seamstress and also happens to be Miss Lincoln — discovered a knit top and knicker set which was marked down to two dollars, after having already been reduced in price three times. She snatched up the neglected suit, trimmed off the knickers to thigh-high and now has a smart yellow hot pants outfit. Imagination pays at the markdown tables!

Abby: it's a letter worth repeating

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Of all the letters you have had printed in your column, does any one stand out for having created more reaction than any of the others?

A MINISTER

DEAR MINISTER: Yes. This one. And it's worth repeating:

DEAR ABBY: I am the most heartbroken person on earth. I always found time to go everywhere else but to see my old gray-haired parents. They sat at home alone loving me just the same. It is too late now to give them those few hours of happiness. I was too selfish and too busy to give, and now when I go to visit their graves and look at the green grass above them I wonder if God will ever forgive me for the heartaches I must have caused them. I pray that you will print this, Abby, to tell those who still have their parents to visit them and show their love and respect while there is still time. For it is later than you think.

"TOO LATE"

DEAR ABBY: I am just plain disgusted with myself. Why? Because I'm a big, strong, fairly intelligent adult male who has never been shy, meek or lacking in self-confidence, yet for some crazy reason, I turn into a mealy-mouthed little mouse when I am asked (usually during dinner), "Do you mind if I smoke?"

Instead of saying, "Yes, I DO mind," I hear myself replying in my most agreeable manner, "Not at all. Go right ahead."

Why?

DEAR NON: Because you'd rather put up with the smoke than bear the guilt of denying the smoker his nicotine lift, which he obviously craves. Every smoker knows that nonsmokers do not appreciate smoke in their faces. The hooked one asks only in order to reduce his own guilt feelings. Next time, tell the truth.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it's a good idea for a man to make his wife jealous once in a while to keep her on her toes?

MAC

DEAR MAC: Forget it. Instead of keeping her on HER toes, you're apt to find her on your Heels.

CONFIDENTIAL TO M. K.

K. IN SIOUX CITY, IA.: My answer ("Let the 15-year-old boy give his $100 ring to his teen-aged girl friend.") was not snap judgment on my part. The ring belonged to the boy, so it's his to give away, throw away or to wear in his nose if he so chooses, and his mother has nothing to say about it. Of course, it might have been (and probably was) a foolish act on the boy's part, but I can think of no better way for a young man to learn a lesson that to pay $100 for it.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY. Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply envelope stamped, addressed envelope.

SPEAKING OUT:

Tough Little College Paper Dies

By STEVEN LEVINE
The New York Times' recent temporary reprieve from the sentence of executive censorship and the attendant furor associated with the right of newspapers to tell the inevitably embarrassing truth affords me, by admitted casuistical reasoning, an opportunity to report upon a related situation at an albeit less momentous level. This is the story, as I watched it unfold, of how a tough little college newspaper went down.

To set the stage, Metro State is a commuter school five years old with a student population of around 10,000. Conceived as some sort of urban oriented training center, Metro has a high percentage of working students and a high percentage of older students. Nonetheless, as colleges do, it has also a smaller university-oriented community of students and faculty, including a certain number of activist students.

Into that later general categorization came to fall the staff of the Metro "Paper". Under the editorship of Frank O'Neill over a three-year period, the "Paper" moved from a position of left moderation to committed, daring expose by a cyclic process of repression and resistance.

Trouble began, as off these troubles of college papers do, with the publication of certain words objectionable to certain people; but the overriding issues were more directly political.

The "Paper's" staff soon found itself haled before a public hearing of the Metro Board of Student Publications, which overrules it, to answer five formal complaints of irresponsibility and obscenity. The charges were not sustained, but the hostilities were obviously still extant. Student support, while such a thing seems to have existed (74% of the students polled admitted to at least reading the "Paper"), did not line up as solidly as the opposition.

STEVEN LEVINE

Metro State

Struck Back

The "Paper" staff, O'Neill, Pat Markley, John Kovash and a dozen others, rather than accepting comfortable martyrdom, elected to strike back at their accusers by that method most effectively employed by journalists in their own defense, muckraking. By extensive interviewing, by the painstaking establishment of news sources, by use of the state open records law, the "Paper" managed to explore and explain the college's power relationships. Two issues aired revealing statistics on administrative and faculty salaries; statistics reflecting significant inequities at high levels. Eighty-three per cent of student fee moneys, by which the "Paper" is, in part, sustained, were shown to be controlled by agencies other than students. An illegal contract entered into by the college in facsimile in the March 10 issue.

Perhaps most strikingly, the "Paper" was able to expose the curiously pivotal position occupied by Dean Keats McKinney, who, largely invisibly, appeared to control much of the school's hiring and funding policy.

These revelations reperused outside of the college environment.

The trustees sent a request to the legislature for a $400,000 board operating budget. They got $35,000.

As the battle widened, so did it intensify. On three occasions staff members found narcotics and/or narcotics implements unaccountably present in their office. On the morning of Wednesday, March 31, the "Paper" was raided during composition of the week's issue. Agents of the Denver Police Department, who had mysteriously come into possession of keys to the locked student activities building which houses the "Paper", served a warrant for "marijuana, wheat straw papers and other narcotics implements." They found nothing.

More Militant

The "Paper's" tone became more militant with each press run. It developed a style of writing and graphics that was, to say the least, acerbic. The faculty senate was labeled "Metro's resident group of sycophantic worries." Dean

McKinney was caricatured as a puppeteer with President Phillips pulling on his strings. While waging this battle, the "Paper" continued publication of dissenting opinions (two full pages of letters per issue), coverage of college activities and national news and analyses of the type that got them into trouble at the outset.

It's a shame, in light of what the underpaid, overworked and much harassed paper staffers were able to accomplish, that I cannot say their enterprise ended well. Once again, the ability of an entrenched institution to wait out its attackers, pick its shot and hit hard was fatally manifested. The problem with a college newspaper staff is its changing composition. Came May, and a new editor had to be selected by all people the Board of Publications. John Kovash, managing editor under O'Neill, ran against Dave Ball, former student government president, for the job. It was understood that Kovash would perpetuate the old regime. The two students on the board voted for him. The faculty and administration representatives allied to knock him out.

As a final humiliation, the Board, responding to an article attacking its decision, suspended production of the "Paper's" last two issues for the year and padlocked its office.

New Warden Foresees No Major Changes

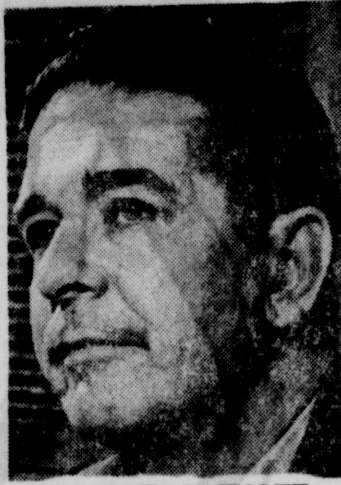

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

At a news conference Friday officially announcing him as the new warden for the State Penal and Correctional Complex succeeding Maurice Sigler, Charles L. Wolff, former administrative assistant to Sigler, said he can foresee no major changes in the prison's operation for the future.

In a prepared statement Wolff said, "I feel very strongly in favor of the present programs which we have built on for the past 12 years."

Regarding his future plans for the penal complex, Wolff said he is optimistic about the chances of getting $300,000 in federal funds for a work-release center which is in the final stages of approval in Washington.

Wolff noted that Nebraska

CHARLES L. WOLFF

will be the first state to try the complete work-release program. The program involves frequent family contacts and furloughs. It is scheduled to start next year involving about 30 inmates during a trial period.

Other Position

However, the position of director of corrections, the job Sigler held along with warden, has yet to be filled.

Institutions Director Michael La Montia said, "Mr. Sigler is somewhat like Cinderella. Although we have tried his shoes on several people, as of right now we haven't found the perfect fit (for the job of director of corrections.) In the event that a successor cannot be found prior to Mr. Sigler's departure, I... will perform the duties as director of corrections."

La Montia considers Victor Walker, presently director of Kearney Boys Training School, a strong candidate for the position. The director of institutions explained that the reason for a delay in selecting a director of corrections is in the nature of the job itself.

"The hold is with me," La Montia said at the news conference, "the director of corrections must be an innovative person with an eye to the future, he must know all phases of penal operations. Vic Walker is such a man; however, his health is a factor which causes me to hesitate."

Suggested By Sigler

The two jobs of warden and director of corrections both of which Sigler held were split into two positions at Sigler's suggestion.

"I don't believe I've done the job justice serving in both positions," said Sigler who has been nominated to the U.S. Board of Parole and is awaiting Senate confirmation.

Regarding recent criticism of the penal complex from Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha, Wolff said, "I hope he will have time to be able to look at the total picture of corrections we have developed in the past."

Wolff, 40, was originally from Pennsylvania before coming to Lincoln in 1956 at which time he was employed by the penal Board of Control. In 1959 he was promoted to superintendent of correctional industries.

During the past 12 years in the Penal and Correctional Complex he has held the positions of business manager, associate warden custody and administrative assistant to the warden.

Wolff resides in Lincoln with his wife Fern and two children Charlie and Sandy.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Saturday

The Gemini woman usually leaves a door open for future opportunity; she is capable of loving more than one individual at a time. Men born under Canis major sense. She is physically attracted to Libra, but often marries men born under Sagittarius.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Finish tasks on home front. You may not be able to run away from yourself, but this would be an error. Disputes with neighbors, relatives but temporary. Know this: respond accordingly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your understanding of financial matter may not be clear. Head voice of experience. One who uses friendly persuasion may not be for you. Be selfish where personal security is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Carrying another's burden may appear noble but, in actuality, is foolish. Display personal pride. Circumstances now will favor your efforts. Mate, partner may practice misdirection.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It may now be time to break specific family tie. One who warns of consequences is probably being selfish. Leo individual could figure prominently. Start seeing clearly. Evidence is present.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Review associations, friendships. Some well-meaning people may be draining your energy. Follow hunch. One who taught you in past is likely to make dramatic appearance. Be receptive to new life style.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Trying to force opportunity will not work. There are basic steps to be taken; don't scatter forces. A short journey now could prove beneficial. View income potential. Give moral a boost.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Fine to view project as a whole, but don't neglect details. You may be overly anxious to go far afield. But it would be wiser to discover personal acres of diamonds. No need to run.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Obtain valid hint from Taurus message. Guard possessions. View income potential. Ask questions, obtain answers. Discard the superficial; strive for authenticity. Count your change.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lie low; overcome tendency toward self-deception. See persons, situations as they actually exist. One close to you is ready to confide intimate problem. Be mature in response.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Pace may appear slow, but you are making steady progress. One who is making Sagittarius actually could be constructive example; follow it. Avoid being upset by routine matters. Check rights, permissions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Many opinions formed in past may be due for revision. Appear especially to members opposite sex. One for you regarded as frugal could actually be extravagant. Lessons are there—learn from them.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Study Gemini message. Complete projects. Secure property rights. Check details. One who takes you for granted is due for surprise. Business and friendship not apt to mix at this time.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY by September, you may be due for domestic adjustment, change of residence. You often display tendency to hang on to past. Now, however, you must begin looking to future. Applies specifically to home affairs, family members. Where money is involved, handle your own counsel. Those who urge otherwise are not seeing too clearly.

Exon Requests Estimates

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon told his department heads this week to prepare preliminary estimates of their needs, bearing in mind the fact that the budget obviously is going to be very tight next year.

The governor and his top administrators secluded themselves at Camp Ashland for one full day and two nights to discuss administration goals. Leading Democratic Party officials, including State Chairman Hess Dyas of Lincoln, National Committeeman Tom Kelley of Omaha and legislative lobbyist Dick White of Lincoln, joined administration officials for portions of the discussion sessions.

All but three state department heads participated in the meeting, which began Tuesday night and ended late Wednesday night.

Team Approach

The conference—second of its kind since Exon took office—is designed to "give more of a team approach" to his administration, the governor said. "It provides about the only opportunity I have to sit down and talk individually and collectively with all department heads," he said.

Exon said he gave the administrators "no specific guidelines" for their budgetary deliberations. He has made no tentative decision yet on the level of state employee salary increases he will recommend to the 1972 Legislature, he noted.

But, Exon said, he did ask department heads to give him a count on the number of employees in their agencies now as compared to when they took office and the dollar impact of any changes.

Asked For Report

"I asked for a report on their first six months in office and their needs and goals for the next six-month period and for the next year," the governor said.

"We must get the needs translated into budgetary terms."

Exon said administrators were also requested to prepare any suggested legislation for "early introduction in the next session" of the Unicameral.

That session, limited to 60 days, is going to be "pressed for time," he noted.

Speeding Blamed On Air Pollution

Houston (UPI) — An 80-year old snowcone truck driver told the traffic court judge he was speeding because the air was full of pollution and he wanted to get out of the area as fast as he could.

"I had to hold my nose," Emanuel Ilkenhaus said. "I thought trying to hurry through that area would be better than going to the hospital like some others have done." The judge agreed the area was polluted but fined him $15 anyway.

In addition to joint discussion sessions, Exon was able to spend "about an hour" with each department head reviewing his activities.

"Wednesday was about as tough a day as I've put in," the governor noted.

"We have to get off by ourselves to get this done."

Exon hopes to schedule future Camp Ashland meetings about every two months when possible. The first joint session was held last April.

In addition to those conferences, the governor plans to continue his weekly breakfast meetings with department heads.

MAGEE'S

Life Begins At 40:

Crossing By Ship Suggested

By ROBERT PETERSON
Have you ever gone to Europe by ship? If not, put this high on the list of things you must do before bidding this planet adieu. Retirement is a great time for making a crossing by ship because there's no need to rush.

Young people with limited vacation schedules often fail to appreciate fully a voyage by ship. Instead of musing about the majesty of the sea, contemplating the enormity of the universe, and savoring the salt-air euphoria, they find themselves thinking of all the things they could be doing in Europe if they had gone by air and were already there.

My first crossing was some three decades ago on the old Polish liner Batory. The vessel seemed incredibly long and luxurious to my youthful eyes, and my memories of the 10-day voyage from New York to Copenhagen are magnificently guided by the passage of time. In retrospect, all the passengers seemed glamorous, the food a gourmet's delight, and the days a scintillating combination of sleepy relaxation and lively excitement.

But mostly I remember my fascination with the sea itself. Coming from Kansas, I found the Atlantic Ocean new and mysterious. It seemed so vast and deep and impervious to man's will. For hours I stood at the railing just gazing at the majestic rise and fall of the waters and the churning wake behind. I felt insignificant but strangely important as I watched the crested waves and felt the deck move under my feet.

Ships offer numerous delights. There are deck chairs, movies, bingo parties, mid-morning bouillon, afternoon tea, and sauna baths. They also offer certain opportunities for brief romantic excursions. My first trip was no exception. There was a pretty Danish girl aboard. We seemed made for each other at the time. But the years have passed and I can't even remember her name.

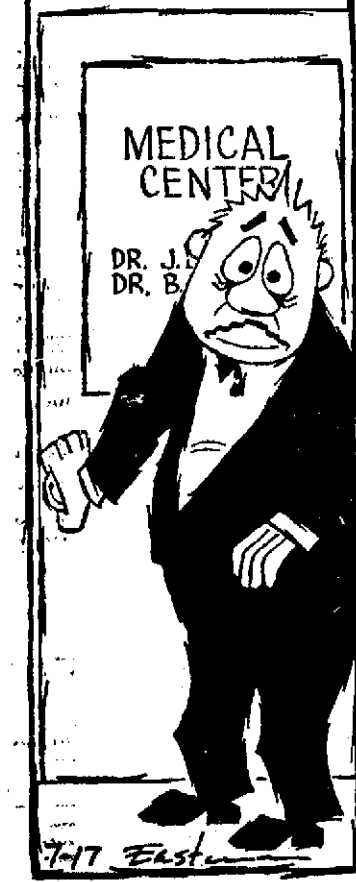

I was too young to be interested in older people in those days. But I recall that half the passengers aboard were along in years — mostly retired folk of Danish and Polish backgrounds making their first pilgrimage to the land of their ancestors.

Youngsters today tell us the world is small. But we who are older learned long ago that the globe and its oceans are enormous. Perhaps that's why older people find crossing the sea by ship a particularly thrilling experience. Instead of getting there in a few airborne hours, the slow pace of the ship imparts a sense of distance and satisfyingly confirms childhood beliefs that Europe is a long, long distance away and that crossing the ocean is a very, very special experience.

$80,000 Allocated For State Crime Lab

The State Crime Commission Friday allocated $80,000 in federal funds for construction of a 2,000-square-foot state crime laboratory in the proposed State Health-Agriculture Laboratory Building.

The new laboratory complex is proposed for construction this fall near the Department of Roads and State Patrol buildings at 14th and Burnham. The commission also unanimously endorsed a committee recommendation that the new state crime laboratory be operated by the State Patrol.

The original 3-year-old study by the commission regarding a state crime laboratory had recommended it be operated independent of any law enforcement agency.

The crime lab will work with the Health Department in identification of narcotics and drugs, but the proposed new space will permit expansion of analysis capabilities in ballistics, fingerprinting, handwriting and photography.

Two Plans

In other action, the commission agreed that two "compatible" plans for development of correctional facilities and programs should be presented to the Legislature's Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice Advisory Committee on July 30.

The Arnot Plan, evolved from a study authorized by the commission last year, proposes development of rehabilitation programs within existing penal and jail facilities.

However, Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer, commission chairman, proposed a "pilot" regional penal facility in the Sidney area.

Meyers said the dual facilities could serve reformatory-type prisoners and the longer-term misdeed offenders currently held in county jails.

"It would be a minimum security facility and could utilize the vocational training facilities of the State Vocational-Technical School at Sidney," he said.

Proposal Has Merit

Penal Complex Warden Maurice Sigler said the Meyer proposal has merit.

"The Lincoln State Reformatory has inmates that should be in a minimum security facility with training school facilities available," he said. "The plan is attainable — and more feasible than building more county jails."

The commission also adopted a policy prohibiting the allocation or distribution of federal funds to law enforcement agencies failing to make or keep current the mandatory uniform crime statistical reports.

The commission also instructed a study committee to explore the possibilities of reducing the number of regional crime commissions by consolidation into larger areas and setting standards for organization.

The commission was told that some regional areas have not developed a plan for law enforcement improvement or do not have a functioning organization.

Tough Little College Paper Dies

By STEVEN LEVINE
The New York Times' recent temporary reprieve from the sentence of executive censorship and the attendant furor associated with the right of newspapers to tell the inevitably embarrassing truth affords me, by admitted casual reasoning, an opportunity to report upon a related situation at an albeit less momentous level. This is the story, as I watched it unfold, of how a tough little college newspaper went down.

To set the stage, Metro State is a commuter school five years old with a student population of around 10,000. Conceived as some sort of urban oriented training center, Metro has a high percentage of working students and a high percentage of older students. Nonetheless, as colleges do, it has also a smaller university-oriented community of students and faculty, including a certain number of activist students.

Into that later general categorization came to fall the staff of the Metro "Paper". Under the editorship of Frank O'Neill over a three-year period, the "Paper" moved from a position of left moderation to committed, daring expose by a cyclic process of repression and resistance.

Trouble began, as off these troubles of college papers do, with the publication of certain words objectionable to certain people; but the overriding issues were more directly political.

The "Paper's" staff soon found itself hailed before a public hearing of the Metro Board of Student Publications, which oversees it, to answer five formal complaints of irresponsibility and obscenity. The charges were not sustained, but the hostilities were obviously still extant. Student support, while such a thing seems to have existed (74% of the students polled admitted to at least reading the "Paper"), did not line up as solidly as the opposition.

STEVEN LEVINE
Metro State

Struck Back

The "Paper" staff, O'Neill, Pat Markley, John Kovash and a dozen others, rather than accepting comfortable martyrdom, elected to strike back at their accusers by that method most effectively employed by journalists in their own defense, muckraking. By extensive interviewing, by the painstaking establishment of news sources, by use of the state open records law, the "Paper" managed to explore and explain the college's power relationships. Two issues aired revealing statistics on administrative and faculty salaries; statistics reflecting significant inequities at high levels. Eighty-three per cent of student fee moneys, by which the "Paper" is, in part, sustained, were shown to be controlled by agencies other than students. An illegal contract entered into by the college in secret was published in facsimile in the March 10 issue.

Perhaps most strikingly, the "Paper" was able to expose the curiously pivotal position occupied by Dean Keats McKinney, who, largely invisibly, appeared to control much of the school's hiring and funding policy.

These revelations reperused outside of the college environment.

The trustees sent a request to the legislature for a $400,000 board operating budget. They got $35,000.

As the battle widened, so did it intensify. On three occasions staff members found narcotics and/or narcotics implements unaccountably present in their office. On the morning of Wednesday, March 31, the "Paper" was raided during composition of the week's issue. Agents of the Denver Police Department, who had mysteriously come into possession of keys to the locked student activities building which houses the "Paper", served a warrant for "marijuana, wheat-straw papers and other narcotics implements." They found nothing.

More Militant

The "Paper's" tone became more militant with each press run. It developed a style of writing and graphics that was, to say the least, acerbic. The faculty senate was labeled "Metro's resident group of sycophantic worries." Dean

McKinney was caricatured as a puppeteer with President Phillips pulling on his strings. While waging this battle, the "Paper" continued publication of dissenting opinions (two full pages of letters per issue), coverage of college activities and national news and analyses of the type that got them into trouble at the outset.

It's a shame, in light of what the underpaid, overworked and much harassed paper staffers were able to accomplish, that I cannot say their enterprise ended well. Once again, the ability of an entrenched institution to wait out its attackers, pick its shot and hit hard was fatally manifested. The problem with a college newspaper staff is its changing composition. Came May, and a new editor had to be selected by all people the Board of Publications. John Kovash, managing editor under O'Neill, ran against Dave Ball, former student government president, for the job. It was understood that Kovash would perpetuate the old regime. The two students on the board voted for him. The faculty and administration representatives allied to knock him out.

As a final humiliation, the Board, responding to an article attacking its decision, suspended production of the "Paper's" last two issues for the year and padlocked its office.

New Warden Foresees No Major Changes

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

At a news conference Friday officially announcing him as the new warden for the State Penal and Correctional Complex succeeding Maurice Sigler, Charles L. Wolff, former administrative assistant to Sigler, said he can foresee no major changes in the prison's operation for the future.

In a prepared statement Wolff said, "I feel very strongly in favor of the present programs which we have built on for the past 12 years."

Regarding his future plans for the penal complex, Wolff said he is optimistic about the chances of getting $300,000 in federal funds for a work-release center which is in the final stages of approval in Washington.

Wolff noted that Nebraska

will be the first state to try the complete work-release program. The program involves frequent family contacts and furloughs. It is scheduled to start next year involving about 30 inmates during a trial period.

Other Position

However, the position of director of corrections, the job Sigler held along with warden, has yet to be filled.

Institutions Director Michael La Montia said, "Mr. Sigler is somewhat like Cinderella. Although we have tried his shoes on several people, as of right now we haven't found the perfect fit for the job of director of corrections." In the event that a successor cannot be found prior to Mr. Sigler's departure, I... will perform the duties as director of corrections."

La Montia considers Victor Walker, presently director of Kearney Boys Training School, a strong candidate for the position. The director of institutions explained that the reason for a delay in selecting a director of corrections is in the nature of the job itself.

"The hold is with me," La Montia said at the news conference, "the director of corrections must be an innovative person with an eye to the future, he must know all phases of penal operations. Vic Walker is such a man; however, his health is a factor which causes me to hesitate."

Suggested by Sigler

The two jobs of warden and director of corrections both of which Sigler held were split into two positions at Sigler's suggestion.

"I don't believe I've done the job justice serving in both positions," said Sigler who has been nominated to the U.S. Board of Parole and is awaiting Senate confirmation.

Regarding recent criticism of the penal complex from Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha, Wolff said, "I hope he will have time to be able to look at the total picture of corrections we have developed in the past."

Wolff, 40, was originally from Pennsylvania before coming to Lincoln in 1958 at which time he was employed by the penal Board of Control. In 1959 he was promoted to superintendent of correctional industries.

During the past 12 years in the Penal and Correctional Complex he has held the positions of business manager, associate warden custody and administrative assistant to the warden.

Wolff resides in Lincoln with his wife Fern and two children Charlie and Sandy.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Saturday

The Gemini woman usually leaves a door open for future opportunity; she is capable of loving more than one individual at a time. Men born under Cancer are especially good for hire in a fiscal sense, but they are physically attracted to Libra, but often marries men born under Sagittarius.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Finish tasks on home front. You may be tempted to run away from yourself, but this would be an error. Disputes with neighbors, relatives, but temporary. Know this: respond accordingly.

TALPUS (April 20-May 20): Your understanding of financial matter may not be too clear. Head voice of experience. One who uses friendly persuasion may not be for you. Be selfish where personal security is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Carrying another's burden may appear noble but, in actuality, is foolish. Display personal drive, ambition. Circumstances now will favor your efforts. Mate, partner may practice misdirection.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It may not be time to break specific family tie. One who warns of consequences is probably being selfish. Leo individual could figure prominently. Start seeing clearly. Evidence shows.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Review associations, friendships. Some well-meaning people may be draining your energy. Follow hunch. One who taught you in past is likely to make dramatic reappearance. Be receptive to new life style.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Trying to force opportunity will not work. There are subtle slips, to be taken don't scatter forces. A short journey now could prove beneficial. You gain added respect; gives moral a boost.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Fine to view project as a whole, but don't neglect details. You may be overly anxious to go far afield, but it would be wise to discover personal areas of diamonds. No need to run.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Obtain valid hint from Taurus message. Guard possessions. View income potential. Ask questions, obtain answers. Discard the superficial; strive for authenticity. Count your change.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lie low; overcome tendency toward self-deception. See persons, situations as they actually exist. One close to you is ready to confide intimate problem. Be mature in response.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Pace may slip; slow, but you are making steady progress. One born under Sagittarius actually can set constructive example; follow it. Avoid being upset by routine matters. Check rights, permissions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Many opinions formed in past may be due for revision. Applies especially to members opposite sex. One for you regarded as rugged could actually be extravagant. Lessons are there—learn from them.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Study Gemini message. Complete projects. Secure property rights. Check details. One who takes you for granted is due for surprise. Business and friendship not apt to mix at this time.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY by September, you may be due for domestic adjustment, change of residence. You often display tendency to hang on to past. Now, however, you must begin looking to future. Applies specifically to home affairs, family members. Where money is involved, heed your own counsel. Those who urge otherwise are not seeing too clearly.

Exon Requests Estimates

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon told his department heads this week to prepare preliminary estimates of their needs, bearing in mind the fact that 'the budget obviously is going to be very tight next year.'

The governor and his top administrators secluded themselves at Camp Ashland for one full day and two nights to discuss administration goals.

Leading Democratic Party officials, including State Chairman Hess Dyas of Lincoln, National Committeeman Tom Kelley of Omaha and legislative lobbyist Dick White of Lincoln, joined administration officials for portions of the discussion sessions.

All but three state department heads participated in the meeting, which began Tuesday night and ended late Wednesday night.

Team Approach

The conference—second of its kind since Exon took office—is designed to "give more of a team approach" to his administration, the governor said.

"It provides about the only opportunity I have to sit down and talk individually and collectively with all department heads," he said.

Exon said he gave the administrators "no specific guidelines" for their budgetary deliberations. He has made no tentative decision yet on the level of state employee salary increases he will recommend to the 1972 Legislature, he noted.

But, Exon said, he did ask department heads to give him a count on the number of employees in their agencies now as compared to when they took office and the dollar impact of any changes.

Asked For Report

"I asked for a report on their first six months in office and their needs and goals for the next six-month period and for the next year," the governor said.

"We must get the needs translated into budgetary terms."

Exon said administrators were also requested to prepare any suggested legislation for "early introduction in the next session" of the Unicameral.

That session, limited to 60 days, is going to be "pressed for time," he noted.

Speeding Blamed On Air Pollution

Houston (UPI) — An 80-year old snowcone truck driver told the traffic court judge he was speeding because the air was full of pollution and he wanted to get out of the area as fast as he could.

"I had to hold my nose," Emanuel Ilkenhaus said. "I thought trying to hurry through that area would be better than going to the hospital like some others have done." The judge agreed the area was polluted but fined him $15 anyway.

In addition to joint discussion sessions, Exon was able to spend "about an hour" with each department head reviewing his activities.

"Wednesday was about as tough a day as I've put in," the governor noted.

"We have to get off by ourselves to get this done."

Exon hopes to schedule future Camp Ashland meetings about every two months when possible. The first joint session was held last April.

In addition to those conferences, the governor plans to continue his weekly breakfast meetings with department heads.

$80,000 Allocated For State Crime Lab

The State Crime Commission Friday allocated $80,000 in federal funds for construction of a 2,000-square-foot state crime laboratory in the proposed State Health-Agriculture Laboratory Building.

The new laboratory complex is proposed for construction this fall near the Department of Roads and State Patrol buildings at 14th and Burnham.

The commission also unanimously endorsed a committee recommendation that the new state crime laboratory be operated by the State Patrol.

The original 3-year-old study by the commission regarding a state crime laboratory had recommended it be operated independent of any law enforcement agency.

The crime lab will work with the Health Department in identification of narcotics and drugs, but the proposed new space will permit expansion of analysis capabilities in ballistics, fingerprinting, handwriting and photography.

Two Plans

In other action, the commission agreed that two "compatible" plans for development of correctional facilities and programs should be presented to the Legislature's Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice Advisory Committee on July 30.

The Arnot Plan, evolved from a study authorized by the commission last year, proposes development of rehabilitation programs within existing penal and jail facilities.

However, Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer, commission chairman, proposed a "pilot" regional penal facility in the Sidney area.

Meyers said the dual facilities could serve reformatory-type prisoners and the longer-term misdemeanor offenders currently held in county jails.

"It would be a minimum security facility and could utilize the vocational training facilities of the State Vocational-Technical School at Sidney," he said.

Proposal Has Merit

Penal Complex Warden Maurice Sigler said the Meyer proposal has merit.

"The Lincoln State Reformatory has inmates that should be in a minimum security facility with training school facilities available," he said.

"The plan is attainable — and more feasible than building more county jails."

The commission also adopted a policy prohibiting the allocation or distribution of federal funds to law enforcement agencies failing to make or keep current the mandatory uniform crime statistical reports.

The commission also instructed a study committee to explore the possibilities of reducing the number of regional crime commissions by consolidation into larger areas and setting standards for organization.

The commission was told that some regional areas have not developed a plan for law enforcement improvement or do not have a functioning organization.

Kiewit Apparent Low Bidder

Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. of Omaha was announced Friday as apparent low bidder on construction of the Mormon Bridge interchange on Interstate Highway 680 at Omaha.

The Kiewit bid of $989,565 represented the largest single item in a bid letting totaling $5,237,543, as reported by the Department of Roads.

The Mormon Bridge interchange project involves grading, detouring, paving, culverts, roadside improvement, guard rail and fence.

On another major Omaha project, Negus-Sweeney, Inc., of Omaha, was apparent low bidder at $790,085 on grading, paving, culverts, roadside improvement and fence on a 1.1 mile of Interstate 80 from 19th St. to the Missouri River. For bridges on this same project, Continental Bridge Co. of Omaha was apparent low at $313,164.

Other projects with location and nature of work, low bidders and bids, included (I-Interstate; US-United States; N-Nebraska):

Kimball County: 21.2 miles of signing on I-80, State line-Kimball; Reiman-Wuerth Co., Cheyenne, Wyo., $63,850.

Doodle Bird, Amajewel Spark Freshman Stakes

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

The first running of the $3,500 Freshman Stakes Saturday at the Fairgrounds will pit a top field of eight 2-year-olds against each other over four furlongs.

Doodle Bird will be going after his second straight victory after remaining idle since the third day of Lincoln racing.

The chestnut colt by Good Bird out of Many Facets already holds a victory over Rusty Raleigh, Amajewel, and Fancy Hands — three other horses entered in the Stakes.

In his last race, the Freshman Prep, Doodle Bird led wire-to-wire to finish a length ahead of Rusty Raleigh while Amajewel was third by a length and a half in the same race. Fancy Hands was fourth, two lengths back.

But Amajewel, a Kemling filly, winner of stakes races at both Ponner Park and Ak-

Sar-Ben, will carry the top impost of 122 pounds and jockey Dave King while Doodle Bird will be saddled with 120 pounds and the Fairgrounds No. 2 jockey, Wayne Anderson.

Rusty Raleigh is slated for 109 pounds while veteran rider Eddie Burns is reportedly flying in from Centennial Park to handle the dark brown colt by I'm Rusty out of Hermanitas Gal. The Colorado filly currently boasts a record of four place finishes out of four starts.

Amajewel has a record of three wins, one place and two shows out of nine starts while Doodle Bird has three wins for the same number of starts.

Other top prospects in the race include Essie after a second straight victory, Justa Joust, Arrian Ray and Franklin Flyer.

irons, won the featured seventh carrying 120 pounds over six furlongs in 1:12.

Secret King broke on top but couldn't hold the pace as War Issue moved up along with Sweet Coup to challenge the leader.

Down the backstretch, the three waged a three-way duel but War Issue hung on between horses to pull away in the homestretch.

The 4-year-old chestnut gelding by Key Issue out of Lady Buster returned $16.60, $6.60 and $4.20 to backers while Sweet Coup placed for $11.60 and $6.60 and Secret King showed for $5.40.

War Issue now carries a record of one win, two places and two shows out of nine starts for 1971 and has won a total of $4,846 for owner Maynard Myers of Griswold, Iowa.

The top-paying winner of the day, however, proved to be Illano in the fourth as the

Aunt Priscilla Has Winning Day

My stars! It sure looks like your dear old Aunt Priscilla is riding a winning streak as my Triple Springs helped my $100 spree fund grow another $4.20 during Friday's racing.

Triple Springs, (with that wonderful Fred Ecceff as the jockey) came home to return $8.20 but as my second choice, Priscilla Rippolee in the eighth, could only manage third, I only collected $4.20.

My spree fund is now up to $171.00 and I have high hopes of increasing it a little more as a glimpse into my lucky crystal ball tells me I should buy $2 win tickets on County Fleet (who won $61 for me last time out) in the fourth and Kelly Blue in the sixth.

Houston, Pittsburgh Victorious

By Associated Press

The Houston Astros registered the first triple play in their history and beat the New York Mets 9-4 Friday night, while the surging Pittsburgh Pirates won their eighth straight game, edging the San Diego Padres 2-1 on Bob Robertson's tie-breaking homer in the eighth inning.

The Astros, now in their 10th season, pulled off their initial triple play in the third inning against the Mets. With Met runners on first and second and none out, Cleon Jones grounded to shortstop Roger Metzger.

Metzger stepped on second for one out, fired to first for the second out, then first baseman Denis Menke threw to third baseman Doug Rader, who tagged out sliding Ken Boswell, completing the triple play.

Metzger also led the Astros' 14-hit attack with three hits and three runs scored.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco's West leaders shaded Cincinnati 4-3; Atlanta defeated Los Angeles 3-1; St. Louis blanked Montreal 6-0, and Chicago routed Philadelphia 11-2.

In the American League, Boston pounded Minnesota 9-4; Chicago stopped Washington 2-0; New York whipped Milwaukee 7-4, and Cleveland thrashed Kansas City 8-4.

Willie Mays, playing despite an ailing shoulder, singled once, doubled twice, scored two runs and drove in one as the Giants increased their lead over the Dodgers to six games with their triumph over Cincinnati.

Atlanta's Phil Niekro spaced seven hits and scored the tie-breaking run against Los Angeles in Ralph Garr's third hit, a run-producing single in the fifth.

Reggie Cleveland stymied Montreal on five hits and the Cardinals took advantage of two Expo errors for four unearned runs.

Ron Santo, who belted a two-run homer, and Chris Cannizzaro each drove in three Cubs runs as Ferguson Jenkins, who also homered, won his 14th game, defeating Philadelphia.

Two-run homers by Rico Petrocelli, Joe Lahoud and Reggie Smith plus four hits by Luis Aparicio helped Boston's Sonny Siebert boost his record to 13-4, against Minnesota.

Oakland's amazing Vida Blue weaved a one-hitter for his 18th victory of the season, as the A's, striking for all their runs in the first inning, silenced the Detroit Tigers, 4-0, in a late West Coast game.

And the California Angels snapped Mike Cuellar's 11-game winning streak, rocking the Baltimore left-hander with a pair of home runs en route to a 5-4 victory over the Orioles.

Familiar Pair To Engravers

... BATTLE TODAY AT NORFOLK

BY HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Norfolk—The engraver, who does the work on the Nebraska State Ladies Golf Championship trophy, should have little trouble spelling the name he has to put on it after today's 36-hole title match at the Norfolk Country Club.

I'll be the same last name he's engraved eight of the past 10 years after Jean Hyland and Christie Schwartzkopf decide which of their names goes on the trophy in an all-Lincoln finals match that gets under way at 8:30 this morning.

Since 1961 the only two names to appear on the trophy other than Schwartzkopf or Hyland are Omahans Nancy Young Walker in 1967 and Betty Marchese in 1966.

Mrs. Hyland's name is on there for 1961 and 1962, Dorothy Schwartzkopf, Christie's mother, for 1963, 1964 and 1965.

Results, Page 12

Mrs. Hyland again in 1968 and Christie in 1969 and 1970.

And when Mrs. Hyland and Miss Schwartzkopf tee it up this morning, both admit their veteran status doesn't prevent nervousness.

"Sure, I still get nervous," admits Mrs. Hyland, who is bidding to join Lucille Mann as the only five-time winners of the state gals' title. Mrs. Hyland won her first championship 14 years ago.

"I don't like to get behind," Christie claims, "because that makes me nervous." Christie, a 22-year-old, won her first championship two years ago, and a victory today would put her in a class with Mrs. Mann and her mother as the only golfers to win three straight in the 49-year history of the tourney.

Christie advanced to today's championship match by getting past Norfolk's Bonnie Phillips, who was bidding to become the first golfer from outside of Omaha or Lincoln to win the title since Mrs. Russell Fowles of North Platte did it in 1926, 45 years ago.

Christie ended that dream of the 21-year-old Norfolkian by chipping in with a 6-iron from just short of the green for a birdie-2 on the 140-yd 17th hole.

The spectacular shot gave her a 1-up margin again after Bonnie had rallied from a 3-down deficit to tie the match at the 16th. When they halved the 18th with pars, the win was Christie's, 1-up.

Christie was 3-up at the end of eight holes, but lost No. 9 to make the turn at 2-up. After swapping wins on the 10th and 12th, Christie was still 2-up going to No. 13.

But she lost that with a double-bogey-6 and lost the 16th with a bogey-5 to make the match even. Then came Christie's winning chip shot.

Mrs. Hyland moved into the finals with a 3 and 2 verdict over former champion Mrs. Marchese.

The reigning Lincoln City champion enjoyed a 2-up advantage at the turn after shooting a two-over-par 39, winning the third with a par and the eighth with a bogey.

She went 3-up with a par at the 10th, but lost the 11th with a bogey. Mrs. Hyland regained a 3-up cushion at the 13th with a par and when they halved the next three holes the match was over.

Today's championship clash is a rematch of the final of two years ago at Grand Island, one that Mrs. Hyland is trying to forget. "That was slaughter at Grand Island," she says, half-jokingly.

Christie won that one, 8 and 7, and last year defeated Joan Martig of Omaha, 9 and 8, in the championship match at the Lincoln Country Club.

Dorothy Schwartzkopf, playing in the championship consolation flight after losing a first-round match to Mrs. Marchese, had to go 21 holes before winning 1-up over 16-year-old Debbie Reed of Norfolk to gain the consolation championship match against Joan Martig today.

Trevino Shoots Himself Out Of Western

... LEE CARDS SECOND 74 AS NICHOLS, LOTZ TIE FOR LEAD

Chicago (AP) — Lee Trevino shot himself out of it while Bobby Nichols and Dick Lotz moved into a tie for the second-round lead Friday in the $150,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

"I've got no chance," said Trevino, who was gunning for a fourth victory in five weeks until he stumbled in with his second straight 74 — three overpar.

The 148 total left the U.S., Canadian and British Open champion 10 strokes off the pace set by Lotz and Nichols.

Nichols, a club pro from Akron, Ohio, but a consistent money winner when he plays on the tour, had the day's best round, a four-under-par

67, including a bogey on the final hole that cost him sole control of the top spot.

Lotz, winner of two tourneys last year, had to scramble over the last six holes for his 69 and a share of the lead.

Just one stroke back at 139 were Australian veteran Bruce Crampton, the first-round leader who slumped to a 73 when he missed 10 greens, and young Jerry Heard, who had a 68.

Dale Douglass, 72, Babe Hickey, 69, and Phil Rodgers, 71, were tied at 140.

Billy Casper, one of the pre-tourney favorites for the $30,000 first prize, managed only a 72 and was well back in the field.

"I hit the ball just about like I've been hitting it for the last month," said Trevino. "But the grass on the fairway is so long you can't do anything with the ball. You get nothing but flyers out of it — you just don't know what the ball is going to do."

"But that's the way the cookie crumbles. I'll be back tomorrow."

Trevino had five bogeys, all but one of them when iron shots flew over the green. His 148 total was just good enough to make the cut for the final two rounds today and Sunday.

Nichols joked, "They let the hole pro in all the other tournaments, don't they?"

The big, hard-hitting Nichols birdied two of the par fives, rolled in a pair of twisting, 15-foot birdie putts and hit a wedge to five feet on the 11th for his other sub-par hole.

Lotz birdied his first two holes, two-putting a par five and rolling in a 35-foot putt most of the distance cross the green on the second.

He made a six-foot putt for a duce on the sixth, bogeyed the 11th when he missed the green, but had to scramble out of trees, traps and trouble to save par on all of the last six holes.

SMU's Hixon Joins All-Star Team

Hixon joins Stanford's Jim Plunkett and Santa Clara's Dan Pastorini as All-Star signal-callers in the Chicago Tribune charity classic at Chicago's Soldier Field.

Hixon broke four NCAA passing records, including most career completions, hitting on 57.8 per cent of his passes.

In last month's Coaches All-

Chicago Puts Bull On Waiver List

Chicago (AP) — Ronnie Bull, a nine-year running back for the Chicago Bears, was placed on waivers Friday.

Bobby Walston, director of player personnel, said the Bears hoped another National Football League club would claim Bull.

Kapp Packs Bags, Quits New England's Patriots

Amherst, Mass. (AP) — Quarterback Joe Kapp packed his bags and quit the New England Patriots Friday, refusing to sign a National Football League standard players' contract.

"The Patriots have been notified by the commissioner's office that Joe Kapp cannot work out with the club until he signs a standard players' contract."

However, the Patriots disclosed Friday that Kapp merely had signed "a pro tempore agreement" to enable him to play for the Patriots.

A club spokesman said Kapp had refused to sign the standard players' contract on the advice of his attorney, John Elliott Cook of San Francisco.

Kapp held a brief impromptu news conference when he arrived at his home and found photographers waiting. "I have absolutely no comment on questions which I am sure you want to ask," Kapp told newsmen. "However, I do want to say I

Prefontaine Wins 5,000 On Big Misjudgement

AFRICA'S IFTER QUIT TOO EARLY

Durham, N.C. (P) — A spectacular misjudgement by Africa's Mirus Ifter in the 5,000-meter run gave the race to Oregon's Steve Prefontaine in the first USA-Pan Africa Track Meet Friday.

With 600 yards to go in the race, Ifter unleashed what appeared to be a scorching kick and left the tightly bunched field at Duke University Stadium far behind.

But as the gun sounded for the final lap, Ifter stopped dead, and Prefontaine trotted to an easy but tarnished victory. Ifter apparently had misunderstood the number of laps remaining.

The incident marred what was otherwise a day of close and exciting competition. The United States men's team established a clear superiority over the Africans, who were competing as a team for the first time.

American sprinters and hurdlers led the way to a $430 lead over the African men after eight events in the two-day program.

In the 110-meter hurdles, Southern University's Rod Milburn and North Carolina's Central's Ron Draper scored a sweep, with Milburn timed in 13.4.

Jim Green of the University of Kentucky turned on a burst of speed after 35 yards, and pulled away in the 100 meters. Ivory Crockett of Southern Illinois was runner-up to Green with an identical time of 10.1.

Crockett and Green then combined to help the United States win the 400-meter relay.

World 440-yard record holder John Smith of UCLA had little trouble in the 400 meters, winning in 45.6 with former Tennessee runner Darwin Bond second at 46.14.

Kenya's Robert Ouko, a 20-year-old prison guard who plans to enroll at North Carolina Central next fall, won the African men's first gold medal in the 800 meters.

Boxed in with 600 yards to go, Ouko ran wide and sprinted past the Marine Corps' Juris Luzins. Ouko was clocked in 1:46.7.

Field event winners of the United States were Karl Salb of Kansas in the shot put with

Reta Home Run Aids NBC Victory

Mike Reta's three-run homer in the top of the tenth paced NBC to a 15-11 victory over Gerry's in Legion baseball action Friday night at Sherman Field.

NBC had rallied for eight runs in the bottom of the ninth to tie the match, sending 14 batters to the plate.

In the midgame Gateway scored seven runs in the first three innings and then held off Werners, 7-6.

Doodle Bird, Amajewel Spark Freshman Stakes

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

The first running of the $3,500 Freshman Stakes Saturday at the Fairgrounds will pit a top field of eight 2-year-olds against each other over four furlongs.

Doodle Bird will be going after his second straight victory after remaining idle since the third day of Lincoln racing.

The chestnut colt by Good Bird out of Many Facets already holds a victory over Rusty Raleigh, Amajewel, and Fancy Hands — three other horses entered in the Stakes.

In his last race, the Freshman Prep, Doodle Bird led wire-to-wire to finish a length ahead of Rusty Raleigh while Amajewel was third by a length and a half in the same race. Fancy Hands was fourth, two lengths back.

But Amajewel, a Kemling filly, winner of stakes races at both Pommer Park and Ak-

Sar-Ben, will carry the top impost of 122 pounds and jockey Dave King while Doodle Bird will be saddled with 120 pounds and the Fairgrounds No. 2 jockey, Wayne Anderson.

Rusty Raleigh is slated for 109 pounds while veteran rider Eddie Burns is reportedly flying in from Centennial Park to handle the dark brown colt by I'm Rusty out of Hermanitas Gal. The Colorado filly currently boasts a record of four place finishes out of four starts.

Amajewel has a record of three wins, one place and two shows out of nine starts while Doodle Bird has three wins for the same number of starts.

Other top prospects in the race include Essie after a second straight victory, Justa Joust, Arrian Ray and Franklin Flyer.

In Friday's racing, War Issue, with Dave King in the irons, won the featured seventh carrying 120 pounds over six furlongs in 1:12.

Secret King broke on top but couldn't hold the pace as War Issue moved up along with Sweet Coup to challenge the leader.

Down the backstretch, the three waged a three-way duel but War Issue hung on between horses to pull away in the homestretch.

The 4-year-old chestnut gelding by Key Issue out of Lady Buster returned $16.60, $6.60 and $4.20 to backers while Sweet Coup placed for $11.60 and $6.60 and Secret King showed for $5.40.

War Issue now carries a record of one win, two places and two shows out of nine starts for 1971 and has won a total of $4,846 for owner Maynard Myers of Griswold, Iowa.

The top-paying winner of the day, however, proved to be Illano in the fourth as the longshot upset heavily favored Alex Kelly to return $33.60, $17.40 and $10.80.

Aunt Priscilla
Has Winning Day

My stars! It sure looks like your dear old Aunt Priscilla is riding a winning streak as my Triple Springs helped my $100 spree fund grow another $4.20 during Friday's racing.

Triple Springs, (with that wonderful Fred Ecceffey as the jockey) came home to return $8.20 but as my second choice, Priscilla Rippolee in the eighth, could only manage third, I only collected $4.20.

My spree fund is now up to $171.00 and I have high hopes of increasing it a little more as a glimpse into my lucky crystal ball tells me I should buy $2 win tickets on County Fleet (who won $61 for me last time out) in the fourth and Kelly Blue in the sixth.

Houston, Pittsburgh Victorious

By Associated Press

The Houston Astros registered the first triple play in their history and beat the New York Mets 9-4 Friday night, while the surging Pittsburgh Pirates won their eighth straight game, edging the San Diego Padres 2-1 on Bob Robertson's tie-breaking homer in the eighth inning.

The Astros, now in their 10th season, pulled off their initial triple play in the third inning against the Mets. With Met runners on first and second and none out, Cleon Jones grounded to shortstop Roger Metzger.

Metzger stepped on second for one out, fired to first for the second out, then first baseman Denis Menke threw to third baseman Doug Rader, who tagged out sliding Ken Boswell, completing the triple play.

Metzger also led the Astros' 14-hit attack with three hits and three runs scored.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco's West leaders shaded Cincinnati 4-3; Atlanta defeated Los Angeles 3-1; St. Louis blanked Montreal 6-0, and Chicago routed Philadelphia 11-2.

In the American League, Boston pounded Minnesota 9-4; Chicago stopped Washington 2-0; New York whipped Milwaukee 7-4, and Cleveland thrashed Kansas City 8-4.

Willie Mays, playing despite an ailing shoulder, singled once, doubled twice, scored two runs and drove in one as the Giants increased their lead over the Dodgers to six games with their triumph over Cincinnati.

Atlanta's Phil Niekro spaced seven hits and scored the tie-breaking run against Los Angeles in Ralph Garr's third hit, a run-producing single in the fifth.

Reggie Cleveland stymied Montreal on five hits and the Cardinals took advantage of two Expo errors for four unearned runs.

Ron Santo, who belted a two-run homer, and Chris Cannizzaro each drove in three Cubs runs as Ferguson Jenkins, who also homered, won his 14th game, defeating Philadelphia.

Two-run homers by Rico Petrocelli, Joe Laboud and Reggie Smith plus four hits by Luis Aparicio helped Boston's Sonny Siebert boost his record to 13-4, against Minnesota.

Oakland's amazing Vida Blue weaved a one-hitter for his 18th victory of the season, as the A's, striking for all their runs in the first inning, silenced the Detroit Tigers, 4-0, in a late West Coast game.

And the California Angels snapped Mike Cuellar's 11-game winning streak, rocking the Baltimore left-hander with a pair of home runs en route to a 5-4 victory over the Orioles.

CHRISTIE JEAN IN FINALS

Familiar Pair To Engravers

... BATTLE TODAY AT NORFOLK

Star Sports Editor

Norfolk—The engraver, who does the work on the Nebraska State Ladies Golf Championship trophy, should have little trouble spelling the name he has to put on it after today's 36-hole title match at the Norfolk Country Club.

"I'll be the same last name he's engraved eight of the past 10 years after Jean Hyland and Christie Schwartzkopf decide which of their names goes on the trophy in an all-Lincoln finals match that gets under way at 8:30 this morning.

Since 1961 the only two names to appear on the trophy other than Schwartzkopf or Hyland are Omahans Nancy Young Walker in 1967 and Betty Marchese in 1966.

Mrs. Hyland's name is on there for 1961 and 1962, Dorothy Schwartzkopf, Christie's mother, for 1963, 1964 and 1965.

Results, Page 12

Mrs. Hyland again in 1968 and Christie in 1969 and 1970.

And when Mrs. Hyland and Miss Schwartzkopf tee it up this morning, both admit their veteran status doesn't prevent nervousness.

"Sure, I still get nervous," admits Mrs. Hyland, who is bidding to join Lucille Mann as the only five-time winners of the state gals' title. Mrs. Hyland won her first championship 14 years ago.

"I don't like to get behind," Christie claims, "because that makes me nervous." Christie, a 22-year-old, won her first championship two years ago, and a victory today would put her in a class with Mrs. Mann and her mother as the only golfers to win three straight in the 49-year history of the tourney.

Christie advanced to today's championship match by getting past Norfolk's Bonnie Phillips, who was bidding to become the first golfer from outside of Omaha or Lincoln to win the title since Mrs. Russell Fowles of North Platte did it in 1926, 45 years ago.

Christie ended that dream of the 21-year-old Norfolkian by chipping in with a 6-iron from just short of the green for a birdie-2 on the 140-yard 17th hole.

The spectacular shot gave her a 1-up margin again after Bunnie had rallied from a 3-down deficit to tie the match at the 16th. When they halved the 18th with pars, the win was Christie's, 1-up.

Christie was 3-up at the end of eight holes, but lost No. 9 to make the turn at 2-up. After swapping wins on the 10th and 12th, Christie was still 2-up going to No. 13.

But she lost that with a double-bogey-6 and lost the 16th with a bogey-5 to make the match even. Then came Christie's winning chip shot.

Mrs. Hyland moved into the finals with a 3 and 2 verdict over former champion Mrs. Marchese.

The reigning Lincoln City champion enjoyed a 2-up advantage at the turn after shooting a two-over-par 39, winning the third with a par and the eighth with a bogey.

She went 3-up with a par at the 10th, but lost the 11th with a bogey. Mrs. Hyland regained a 3-up cushion at the 13th with a par and when they halved the next three holes the match was over.

Today's championship clash is a rematch of the final of two years ago at Grand Island, one that Mrs. Hyland is trying to forget. "That was slaughter at Grand Island," she says, half-jokingly.

Christie won that one, 8 and 7, and last year defeated Joan Martig of Omaha, 9 and 8, in the championship match at the Lincoln Country Club.

Dorothy Schwartzkopf, playing in the championship consolation flight after losing a first-round match to Mrs. Marchese, had to go 21 holes before winning 1-up over 16-year-old Debbie Reed of Norfolk to gain the consolation championship match against Joan Martig today.

Trevino Shoots Himself Out Of Western

... LEE CARDS SECOND 74 AS NICHOLS, LOTZ TIE FOR LEAD

Chicago (AP) — Lee Trevino shot himself out of it while Bobby Nichols and Dick Lotz moved into a tie for the second-round lead Friday in the $150,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

"I've got no chance," said Trevino, who was gunning for a fourth victory in five weeks until he stumbled in with his second straight 74 — three overpar.

The 148 total left the U.S., Canadian and British Open champion 10 strokes off the pace set by Lotz and Nichols.

Nichols, a club pro from Akron, Ohio, but a consistent money winner when he plays on the tour, had the day's best round, a four-under-par 67, including a bogey on the final hole that cost him sole control of the top spot.

Lotz, winner of two tourneys last year, had to scramble over the last six holes for his 69 and a share of the lead.

Just one stroke back at 139 were Australian veteran Bruce Crampton, the first-round leader who slumped to a 73 when he missed 10 greens, and young Jerry Heard, who had a 68.

Dale Douglass, 72, Babe Hiskey, 69, and Phil Rodgers, 71, were tied at 140.

Billy Casper, one of the pre-tourney favorites for the $30,000 first prize, managed only a 72 and was well back in the field.

Trevino had five bogeys, all but one of them when iron shots flew over the green. His 148 total was just good enough to make the cut for the final two rounds today and Sunday.

Nichols, a former PGA champ who scored the last of his nine tour triumphs in last year's Dow Jones Classic, the richest event in golf, had the lead alone on the 6,749-yard, par 71 Olympia Fields Country Club course until he bogeyed the last hole from a bunker.

Nichols, 35, is a 15-year tour veteran who now divides his time between the tour — he won more than $100,000 last season and already has $40,000 this year — and his job as head pro at the Firestone Country Club in Akron, site of the World Series of Golf later this year. The winner of this event gets into that tournament along with Trevino, Jack Nicklaus and Masters champ Charles Coody.

"I ought to be in anyhow," Nichols joked. "They let the host pro in all the other tournaments, don't they?"

The big, hard-hitting Nichols birdied two of the par fives, rolled in a pair of twisting, 15-foot birdie putts and hit a wedge to five feet on the 11th for his other sub-par hole.

Lotz birdied his first two holes, two-putting a par five and rolling in a 35-foot putt most of the distance cross the green on the second.

He made a six-foot putt for a duce on the sixth, bogeyed the 11th when he missed the green, but had to scramble out of trees, traps and trouble to save par on all of the last six holes.

SMU's Hixon Joins All-Star Team

Hixon joins Stanford's Jim Plunkett and Santa Clara's Dan Pastorini as All-Star signal-callers in the Chicago Tribune's charity classic at Chicago's Soldier Field.

Hixon broke four NCAA passing records, including most career completions, hitting on 57.8 per cent of his passes.

Chicago Puts Bull On Waiver List

Chicago (AP) — Ronnie Bull, a nine-year running back for the Chicago Bears, was placed on waivers Friday.

Kapp Packs Bags, Quits New England's Patriots

Amherst, Mass. (AP) — Quarterback Joe Kapp packed his bags and quit the New England Patriots Friday, refusing to sign a National Football League standard players' contract.

"The Patriots have been notified by the commissioner's office that Joe Kapp cannot work out with the club until he signs a standard players' contract."

However, the Patriots disclosed Friday that Kapp merely had signed "a pro-temporary agreement" to enable him to play for the Patriots.

A club spokesman said Kapp had refused to sign the standard players' contract on the advice of his attorney, John Elliott Cook of San Francisco.

Kapp held a brief impromptu news conference when he arrived at his home and found photographers waiting. "I have absolutely no comment on questions which I am sure you want to ask," Kapp told newsmen. "However, I do want to say I want to play football."

Kapp said he was "following my attorney's advice." He refused further comment.

"It's not a question of money," a club spokesman said. "He's very satisfied."

The spokesman said he did not know the reasons for Kapp's refusal to sign.

"It is a monumental disappointment," said Patriots president Billy Sullivan.

The Patriots emphasized that Kapp still is their property. Sullivan said he had been advised of the situation regarding Kapp at the NFL meetings in New York in May.

Kapp left less than 24 hours after the Patriots announced signing of their No. 1 draft choice, Jim Plunkett, Stanford's star quarterback and Hiesman Trophy winner.

Vital Serum For Horses Missing

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Most of the visitors at the Lincoln State Fairgrounds Friday were concerned with the running of the horses, but the crowd of people directly concerned with the horses had problems on their mind other than picking a winner.

The State Racing Commission barred the shipment of horses into Nebraska from the southwestern portion of the country where an outbreak of Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis (horse sleeping sickness) has developed Friday and an embargo was placed on the shipment of horses and mules from Texas to Nebraska.

The disease, carried by mosquitoes, is said to be fatal to 80-90 per cent of the horses infected and as a result, horse owners were advised to vaccinate their horses with the Eastern and Western strain of Bivalent vaccine, but according to the track veterinarian, R. H. Cook, the serum is not available for local use.

"There actually is no serum for horse use only," Cook said, "The serum they're using now is an experimental form of a serum meant for humans."

"There is definitely a problem," Cook said about the rapid outbreak of the disease, "and it could affect us. In fact, I believe that it will eventually reach us if not this year, surely during the next unless they can stop it."

Cook said that he based his reason for the disease reaching Nebraska on the rate that the disease has spread in the past few weeks.

"A couple of weeks ago, the disease was 200 miles below the Texas border," Cook offered in explanation. "And now it's not only in Texas, but Oklahoma has the disease now and Iowa and Indiana have reported some isolated cases, I believe."

Cook said he has received several requests from horse owners at the track for vaccination, but cannot comply with their requests as "the Department of Defense has all the serum tied up. There is none available."

In addition to Texas and Oklahoma, the disease has been noted in Mexico, New Mexico and Arizona.

Fairgrounds manager Henry Brandt said the mosquito population at the fairgrounds is at a "low level" but added that an intensive spraying program will continue.

The outbreak of the disease has resulted in a federal quarantine being placed on the entire state of Texas.

"I believe that the state veterinarian (Dr. N. W. Kruse) would place some sort of quarantine over the track if we get anything reported here," Cook said. "But I doubt if we'll have to worry about it for a little while yet."

Ashland Cites Thomas, Mrs. Allington

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau
Ashland — Retired contractor Melvin Thomas and livestock breeder Mrs. Mae Allington were crowned king and queen of the 33rd annual Ashland Stir-Up here Friday night.

H. D. Miller, 86, Banker, Is Dead

Harvey D. Miller, 86, of 2030 B. retired president of the Citizens State Bank at Clearwater, died Friday. He had been a Lincoln resident for the past three years.

Mr. Miller was a member of the IOOF, Modern Woodmen, United Methodist Church at Clearwater and a 50-year member of the Nebraska Bankers Association.

Surviving are his wife, Edna; daughters, Audrey F. and Mrs. Tom (Helen) Hickey, both of Lincoln; and a sister, Mrs. Helen Hull of Phoenix, Ariz.

the Junior Women's Club, headed by Mrs. Dixie Metzger.

Other Friday events included a children's parade, preliminary livestock judging sponsored by the Ashland Saddle Club (co-founded by Mrs. Allington, an avid horsewoman), and preliminary pre-midget baseball competition on the baseball field (for which Thomas helped install the night lights.)

"I didn't know what to say (when told of her selection)," Mrs. Allington said. "I never looked for something like this. I thought there were others who've done more than I have."

"It's been kind of hard to keep a secret," said Thomas. "My wife told my son Dennis to get a haircut and he asked me, 'This doesn't have anything to do with the Stir-Up, does it?'"

I crossed my fingers and said, 'Not that I know of, anyway.'

Retired Contractor
Thomas was a sand and gravel dealer until 1961 and a contractor, specializing in drainage and bridge-building, until his retirement a year ago.

He owns several farms as well as Thomas Lakes and Thomas Riverside Acres. He helped organize the upper and lower Clear Creek Watershed, and served on the Ashland School Board. He has belonged to numerous civic groups.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas have three children: Dennis, an engineering student at the University of Nebraska; Donna (Mrs. Russell) Watts of Atlanta Ga.; and Mary (Mrs. Jim) Crouse of Omaha.

Mrs. Allington, daughter of a Yutan homesteading couple, married Willard Allington, a farmer and livestock breeder who died nearly a year ago. She still lives on the farm and operates it with the help of her family, including her four children: Wendell of Ashland; Marjorie (Mrs. Chris) Anderson and Mary (Mrs. Ivan) Rogers, both of Ashland; and Peggy (Mrs. Richard) Aksamit of Lincoln.

Besides the Saddle Club, Mrs. Allington helped found the Ashland Rodeo Club, which sponsors next weekend's rodeo. She has also been active in local 4-H clubs and the Ashland Town and Country Garden Club.

Saturday the Stir-Up continues with an early (6 a.m.) breakfast on South 16th Street; the "Silver Street Classic" bicycle races; and further livestock judging and baseball competition. The final game of the baseball tournament is scheduled for 8:30 Sunday.

Next weekend the Stir-Up king and queen will appear in the Ashland Rodeo.

HONORED PAIR . . . Mrs. Allington and Thomas.

Gary Hess, 18, Loses His Life In Cycle Crash

Omaha (AP) — A memorial service for Lance Cpl. Gary Hess, 18, Omaha, who was killed in a motorcycle accident Monday near Subic Bay, west of the U.S. Naval Base in the Philippines, will be at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Lutheran Church of the Atonement here.

Hess, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hess, was sent to the Philippines by the Marines in April.

A telegram to his parents said he "died of multiple injuries suffered when the motorcycle he was driving was in an accident with another vehicle."

Mott, 62, Dies While Attending N.Y. Convention

Hastings — Byron W. Mott, 62, of rural Hastings died unexpectedly Wednesday in New York City of an apparent heart attack while attending a convention of the United Commercial Travelers.

Surviving are his wife, Genevieve; daughters, Mrs. Jack Weber of Gainesville, Fla., Mrs. Richard Fluckey of Hastings and Judith, at home; sons, Dale, U.S. Navy stationed in Spain, and Kenneth, at home; one granddaughter and one brother, Dr. Gerald Mott of Gainesville, Fla.

Six Injured In Accident

Six persons were injured in a two-car crash at Prescott and Loveland Drive Friday afternoon, according to police reports.

Police said the driver of one car, Connie Wattjes, 26, of 2145 Stockwell, was listed in "satisfactory" condition with four broken ribs and a passenger, Sharon Prochazka, 21, of 2110 Larry Lane, was in "satisfactory" condition with a broken wrist.

Four children in the car — Gregory Prochazka, 12, Ann Wattjes, 5, Amy Wattjes, 6, and Barbara Wattjes, 7 — were treated for minor injuries and released.

The driver of the other car Arthur Perkins, 43, of 3945 So. 40th, escaped injury, police said.

The Wattjes car was southbound on Loveland and the Perkins vehicle was westbound on Prescott at the time of the accident.

Plane Leaves Pilot Behind On The Ground

Wasco, Calif. (UPI) — Cropduster Herb Wooley may fly by the "seat of his pants" but his single-engine plane took a spin without anyone's pants in the cockpit.

Wooley said he was loading chemicals onto the craft when an assistant climbed up on a wing to slow the plane's idling engine.

But he pulled the throttle the wrong way and the plane roared into the air without a pilot.

Wooley and his assistant ran helplessly around a field for more than 20 minutes while the plane circled overhead.

Finally it swooped too low and crashed into a fence causing extensive damage to the propeller and a wing.

Nonresident Tuition Law Held Constitutional

By The Associated Press
A divided State Supreme Court Friday reversed the Lancaster County District Court and held Nebraska's nonresident tuition law to be constitutional.

At issue was a law which says a student entering the University of Nebraska or other state educational institution as a nonresident remains in that category for tuition purposes while in school. The student can be classified as a resident only if he has lived in the state continuously for four months independent of time in school and intends to make Nebraska his residence.

The Supreme Court majority held the law to be a valid exercise of legislative power to classify and said it does not infringe upon constitutional rights.

Test Suit
The test suit was brought by

Raymond Thompson II., who was graduated from the University of Nebraska Law College in June of last year. The lower court awarded him a $1,374 judgment against the Board of Regents — the money being the difference between resident and nonresident tuition charges for the period of January, 1968, to June, 1970.

The 1971 Legislature, reacting to the district court ruling, rewrote the statute involved, changed the initial residency requirement from four months to one year, and set specific requirements for proof of residence and domicile.

The Supreme Court majority opinion, written by Chief Justice Paul White, said it is clear that the state has the power to classify students on the basis of residency for tuition purposes, and the power to define a resident for tuition purposes differently than a resident for other purposes.

Cost Equalization
Charging an out-of-state student higher tuition carries out the object "of attempting to achieve a partial cost equalization between those persons who have, and those who have not, recently contributed to the state's economy through employment, tax payments, and expenditures within the state," the opinion said.

Additionally, said the opinion, the four-month residency requirement does not prohibit the establishment of legal residence for other purposes.

Dissenting was Judge Hale McCown, who wrote: "There is no rational or reasonable basis

Jews Picket Show
London (UPI) — Demonstrations protesting the trial of Jews in the Soviet Union picketed the opening of an exhibition of Soviet photographs. One demonstrator was ejected when he waved a picture of a Jew on trial and tried to interrupt a speech by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Smirnovsky at the Royal Photographic Society headquarters.

on which an individual who has been a bona fide resident of and domiciled in this state for the initial time period required by the statute, should be denied the right to prove that fact simply because he was in attendance at 'any institution of learning in this state,' whatever that term connotes."

U.N. Sends Mission

United Nations, N.Y. (P) — The U.N. Security Council voted to send a special mission to investigate the border quarrels between Senegal and Portuguese Guinea.

Court Affirms Hatten's Murder Conviction

By The Associated Press
The State Supreme Court Friday refused to set aside the conviction of Danny C. Hatten, 31, serving a life term at the State Penal Complex for first degree murder in the course of a robbery in Otoe County.

The opinion affirmed the Otoe County District Court in denying Hatten relief under the Post Conviction Act.

Hatten was charged in the 1965 shooting death of Ella Snyder of near Talmage. He gave authorities a confession and, after his jury conviction, signed a waiver of appeal.

Hatten complained of ineffective counsel, claimed that evidence used against him was obtained by unreasonable search and alleged that his constitutional rights against self-incrimination were violated.

The Supreme Court rejected these contentions.

In other opinions Friday, the court:

— Reversed the orders of the Nebraska State Railway Commission which has refused a hearing on the merits of an application to transfer a motor carrier operating certificate from Ernest Lins to Philip S. Scherer, and which had revoked the certificate pursuant to a request from Lins.

— Upheld the Cherry County District Court in finding in favor of Gary M. Hansen against Arthur J. Abbott had given a check in payment of the account, but later stopped payment on the check.

— Handed down opinions in four related cases involving school boundary matters. The court affirmed the Holt County District Court in a case involving a freholder's petition of Florence G. and Leola Jane Kaup. The lower court was reversed, however, in its judgments on freholders' petitions of Florence G. and Francis J. Clark; Edward, Dennis and Millie Weber; and Donald and Vita Berni.

Ashland Cites Thomas, Mrs. Allington

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau
Ashland — Retired contractor Melvin Thomas and livestock breeder Mrs. Mae Allington were crowned king and queen of the 33rd annual Ashland Stir-Up here Friday night.

The Stir-Up is Ashland's three-day summer festival, sponsored each year by the Chamber of Commerce. Thomas and Mrs. Allington were chosen for their lifetime service to the community by a committee of the Junior Women's Club, headed by Mrs. Dixie Metzger. Other Friday events included a children's parade, preliminary livestock judging sponsored by the Ashland Saddle Club (co-founded by Mrs. Allington, an avid horsewoman), and preliminary pre-midget baseball competition on the baseball field (for which Thomas helped install the night lights.)

"I didn't know what to say (when told of her selection)," Mrs. Allington said. "I never looked for something like this. I thought there were others who've done more than I have."

"It's been kind of hard to keep a secret," said Thomas. "My wife told my son Dennis to get a haircut and he asked me, 'This doesn't have anything to do with the Stir-Up, does it?' I crossed my fingers and said, 'Not that I know of, anyway.'"

Retired Contractor

Thomas was a sand and gravel dealer until 1961 and a contractor, specializing in drainage and bridge-building, until his retirement a year ago. He owns several farms as well as Thomas Lakes and Thomas Riverside Acres. He helped organize the upper and lower Clear Creek Watershed, and served on the Ashland School Board. He has belonged to numerous civic groups.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas have three children: Dennis, an engineering student at the University of Nebraska; Donna (Mrs. Russell) Watts of Atlanta, Ga.; and Mary (Mrs. Jim) Crouse of Omaha.

Mrs. Allington, daughter of a Yutan homesteading couple, married Willard Allington, a farmer and livestock breeder who died nearly a year ago. She still lives on the farm and operates it with the help of her family, including her four children: Wendell of Ashland; Marjorie (Mrs. Chris) Anderson and Mary (Mrs. Ivan) Rogers, both of Ashland; and Peggy (Mrs. Richard) Aksamit of Lincoln.

Besides the Saddle Club, Mrs. Allington helped found the Ashland Rodeo Club, which sponsors next weekend's rodeo. She has also been active in local 4-H clubs and the Ashland Town and Country Garden Club.

Saturday the Stir-Up continues with an early (6 a.m.) breakfast on South 16th Street; the "Silver Street Classic" bicycle races; and further livestock judging and baseball competition. The final game of the baseball tournament is scheduled for 8:30 Sunday.

Next weekend the Stir-Up king and queen will appear in the Ashland Rodeo.

HONORED PAIR . . . Mrs. Allington and Thomas.

Gary Hess, 18, Loses His Life In Cycle Crash

Omaha (AP) — A memorial service for Lance Cpl. Gary Hess, 18, Omaha, who was killed in a motorcycle accident Monday near Subic Bay, west of the U.S. Naval Base in the Philippines, will be at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Lutheran Church of the Atonement here.

Hess, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hess, was sent to the Philippines by the Marines in April.

A telegram to his parents said he "died of multiple injuries suffered when the motorcycle he was driving was in an accident with another vehicle."

Mott, 62, Dies While Attending N.Y. Convention

Hastings — Byron W. Mott, 62, of rural Hastings died unexpectedly Wednesday in New York City of an apparent heart attack while attending a convention of the United Commercial Travelers.

Surviving are his wife, Genevieve; daughters, Mrs. Jack Weber of Gainesville, Fla., Mrs. Richard Pluckey of Hastings and Judith, at home; sons, Dale, U.S. Navy stationed in Spain, and Kenneth, at home; one granddaughter and one brother, Dr. Gerald Mott of Gainesville, Fla.

Six Injured In Accident

Six persons were injured in a two-car crash at Prescott and Loveland Drive Friday afternoon, according to police reports.

Police said the driver of one car, Connie Wattjes, 28, of 2145 Stockwell, was listed in "satisfactory" condition with four broken ribs and a passenger, Sharon Prochazka, 21, of 2110 Larry Lane, was in "satisfactory" condition with a broken wrist.

Four children in the car — Gregory Prochazka, 12, Ann Wattjes, 5, Amy Wattjes, 6, and Barbara Wattjes, 7 — were treated for minor injuries and released.

The driver of the other car Arthur Perkins, 43, of 3945 So. 40th, escaped injury, police said.

The Wattjes car was southbound on Loveland and the Perkins vehicle was westbound on Prescott at the time of the accident.

Plane Leaves Pilot Behind On The Ground

Wasco, Calif. (UPI) — Cropduster Herb Wooley may fly by the "seat of his pants" but his single-engine plane took a spin without anyone's pants in the cockpit.

Wooley said he was loading chemicals onto the craft when an assistant climbed up on a wing to slow the plane's idling engine.

But he pulled the throttle the wrong way and the plane roared into the air without a pilot.

Wooley and his assistant ran helplessly around a field for more than 20 minutes while the plane circled overhead.

Finally it swooped too low and crashed into a fence causing extensive damage to the propeller and a wing.

Progress Delay Said Possible

By United Press International
The Nebraska Environmental Control Council, which met for the first time Friday, was told a "moratorium" on progress may have to be called until there is complete pollution control.

The statement was made by T. A. Filipi, Gov. J. James Exon's special assistant to oversee the launching of the new agency, during the meeting.

He told the council that until technology has sufficiently advanced to provide means of controlling all sources of pollutants, some of them may have to be shut down.

"Yes, there is the possibility we will probably have to call a moratorium on what we call progress until technology has had a chance to catch up in the area of pollution control," Filipi said.

Objections Foreseen
He said some will object to the members of the council that pollution control, at least some phases, costs too much money.

"But I'm sure that all of you on this council are mature enough to realize you can afford anything you really need," Filipi said.

Nature, he said, is the "best pollution treater." And he said as long as man does not interfere, nature would normally take care of such things by herself.

"That, so to speak, is your job," Filipi said, "to control the sins of man."

Polluter Is 'You'
Others, he said, will point to industry as the cause of pollution. He said, however, the definition he uses of a polluter is "You."

"I want you to give industry credit" for the efforts it has been making in pollution control and will continue to make, Filipi said.

The Council elected T. C. Reeves of Central City as its chairman. Named vice chairman was Mrs. Betty Abbott of Omaha.

Lincoln Receives $213,600

The Lincoln Airport Authority Friday received $213,600 in state funds from the State Aeronautics Commission for construction of an airport terminal, an apron and a taxiway.

Lincoln had requested $384,000 from the state, or 20% of the projects' estimated cost of $1,920,000. This means that the city must come up with another $170,400 on its own for the air facilities.

Aeronautics Director Nicholas Smeloff said that due to requests for state funds totaling $1,218,840 and available funds amounting to $661,198 no project received the amount it originally asked for.

Smeloff said the commission generally granted all requests for improving or adding to main facilities, but that requests for improvements on secondary runways, fencing, access roads and land acquisition were rejected.

The state funds which come from aviation fuel taxes, come to 20% of the total cost usually with the federal government footing the bill for 50% and 30% coming from local sources.

A total of 13 cities received funds:

Omaha, $271,000 asked, $131,500 given; Lincoln, $384,000 asked, $213,600 given; North Platte, $37,080 asked, $18,540 given; Beatrice, $68,720 asked, $34,360 given; Columbus, $83,320 asked, $41,660 given; Norfolk, $105,920 asked, $52,960 given; Seward, $94,200 asked, $47,100 given; Grant, $38,000 asked and given; Rushville, $24,200 asked and given; Superior, $32,800 asked and given; Falls City, $17,000 asked and given; Grand Island, $30,000 asked, $28,000 given; Chappell, $2,400 asked and given.

Playhouse's Staining Of Mortar To Be Later

By TOM EKVAL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Community Playhouse plans to stain later the mortar in the exterior brick walls of its new building at 56th and Normal when funds become available, Sam Davidson, campaign chairman of the building fund, said in a letter Friday to the Lincoln Library Board.

In the letter to Library Board Chairman Jack Hart, Davidson said the board regrets that "we seem to have failed to keep proper lines of communication open with you and the Library Board on the progress we are making in the construction of the new Playhouse."

Library board members Wednesday had complained that masonry work on the playhouse, being built next to the new southeast branch library, is not aesthetically compatible as first agreed when the Library board sold land for the new playhouse to the playhouse group.

Harmony Destroyed
Architect Al Hamersky told the Library Board that although both buildings have a similar exterior, the different mortar destroys the harmony.

Davidson said the fact that Playhouse construction bids exceeded donations required the postponement of some items if not essential to the completion of an operable theater.

"Staining the mortar in the exterior brick walls to provide a solid color effect is one of several items of expenditures which was deferred until such time as funds become available."

Board Agrees
Davidson said the board is in agreement that the two structures should be as compatible as possible without loss of their individuality.

"As an arts-oriented community organization we are especially sensitive to the importance of aesthetics in the appearance as well as the program of our theatre," he said, adding that "we have every intention of enhancing its beauty as funds permit."

Davidson said that meanwhile "we must give primacy of consideration to the practical problem of making ends meet in basic construction so that we can move from our present totally inadequate structure at the earliest possible date."

Council Reviews Budget; $25,750 Hike Suggested

The City Council Friday began its review of the 1971-72 fiscal year budget, tentatively increasing the budget by $25,750 — all out of tax funds.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf has recommended a $64-million budget, $16,067,661 to be supported by taxes.

Council members favored adding $25,000 for land acquisition and $2,500 for election expenses in case any city issues should be put up for a special election.

The council also decided to delete $1,750 included in the general expenses budget for the city to pick up the water bill during the State Fair. Council members concerned that the contribution should not come out of tax funds. The council will take final action on the all additions and cuts in August.

Discussed Remits
Most of the meeting was spent discussing finance department requests.

The only controversy at the budget review session centered on the City Council's budget for trips and conferences.

Council Chairman Dick Hartsock said he proposes $3,000 for the next fiscal year, primarily to cover the costs of council members to attend the National League of Cities conference which will be held in Hawaii.

The $3,000 amount, though, drew criticism from veteran councilwoman Mrs. Helen Boosalis, who said that in this "watch the dollar" year, she felt the council should practice more frugality in its own requests, possibly limiting any council member's trip to $500.

While emphasizing she has no objections to council members attending conferences, she questioned a 300% increase for conferences. The council had budgeted $750 for the present fiscal year.

Football Game
She said her feelings on the Hawaii trip were colored by the fact that the University of Nebraska football team will be playing Hawaii that weekend.

"I'm against taxpayers paying for junkets," Mrs. Boosalis said.

Hartsock said he did not feel council members should have to dip into their own pockets for conference expenses, especially in view of the 20-a-week salary council members receive.

The majority of the council members decided to leave the $3,000 figure in the budget for the conferences and trips.

Study Group Plans Meetings

The Legislative Council's study committee on education Friday set up a series of four public meetings in outstate Nebraska for next month.

State Sen. Orval Keyes, chairman of the committee, said the purpose of the hearings will be to gather information relative to the operation of educational service units and the education of mentally retarded children.

The hearings will be held Aug. 10 in O'Neill, Aug. 11 in Hastings, Aug. 12 in North Platte, and Aug. 13 in Scottsbluff.

Friday's session was the first meeting of Keyes' committee.

Trial Dates Set In School Disputes Over Contracts

The Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations Friday set trial dates in three of the school cases now pending before the court.

The three suits were brought by teachers' associations against their respective school districts, all alleging that industrial disputes exist over teaching contracts for the coming school year.

The suits are Weeping Water Education Association against the Weeping Water School District; Falls City Education Association against the Falls City School District, and the Central City Education Association against the Central City School District.

The Weeping Water trial was set for Aug. 17; the Falls City trial, for Aug. 12, and the Central City trial, for Aug. 16.

GOP Legislators Support League Of Young Voters

Leaders of the League of Young Voters said Friday four of the five members of Nebraska's congressional delegation have given their support to the newly-formed group.

A statement from the league said support had come from Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska and Reps. Dave Martin and Charles Thone. All are Republicans.

Gov. J. James Exon, a Democrat, and State Democratic Chairman Hess Dyas have also supported the league, the statement said.

The league was formed to encourage the registration of persons enfranchised when the voting age was lowered to 18. The league was formed as a non-partisan group.

15 Months Enough
Vienna (AP) — The Austrian Parliament voted to dissolve itself after only 15 months of existence and hold new elections, probably early in October.

Nelson Pace Soars For 100th Birthday

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Nelson — Unless your hankering is only ankle-high, this isn't the week for girl watching in Nuckolls County.

A Centennial observance has dropped the hemlines and brought out bustles galore. But it's also perked up the populace like nothing since the old threshing bees.

Sample: an historic pageant which has a cast of 250 bouncing through the big moments of the last 100 years. The professionally directed musicale has a four-night run ending Saturday.

"The participants especially are all steamed up about the celebration and by the weekend we hope to have the whole county excited," said Wayne McClure of Nelson, activities chairman. "We're figuring on 200 entries for Saturday afternoon's parade and setting up for 3,500 persons for the barbecue following."

A highlight of pioneer activities Thursday was the honoring of two oldsters. Neal Wehrman, 90, of Angus and Mrs. Bernice Crandall, 87, of Nelson were acclaimed as the oldest residents who were born in the county.

Enthroned earlier in the week at a centennial ball attended by 300 was Mrs. Ronald Petersen of Superior. Her centennial promotional efforts won her the crown.

The week is a big one also for the Keifer brothers, Oswin and Joe, of Bostwick. They rated the Ak-Sar-Ben pioneer farm family award.

Gov. J. James Exon's wife, Pat, was present Thursday afternoon for a "then and now" style revue which featured 19th century fashions. Many were authentic, for example a shadow lace gown which has been in Nelsonite Elva Mumma's family for three generations.

An ostrich-plumed velvet hat not only was becoming to Mrs. Robert Marshall of Superior but was a memento of one of the county's most famous daughters. It had belonged to Superior-born Evelyn Brodstone, later to become Lady Vestey of England.

A fairgrounds display by the Nuckolls County Historical Society reviewed the "Cinderella tale." Several items which had belonged to Lady Vestey enhanced the booth.

Miss Brodstone had taken employment at the Vestey Parking Co. in Chicago, it was recalled, eventually became manager of the firm's London office and then married the boss. Lord William Vestey was described as "one of the richest peers in England."

An Indian artifacts exhibit by Oswin Keifer, the farm honoree, also is drawing its share of lookers. A war bonnet, moccasins and several other items which had been Chief Red Cloud's are of special interest.

Overall chairman of the celebration is Richard Schott of Nelson.

Nonresident Tuition Law Held Constitutional

By The Associated Press
A divided State Supreme Court Friday reversed the Lancaster County District Court and held Nebraska's nonresident tuition law to be constitutional.

At issue was a law which says a student entering the University of Nebraska or other state educational institution as a nonresident remains in that category for tuition purposes while in school. The student can be classified as a resident only if he has lived in the state continuously for four months independent of time in school and intends to make Nebraska his residence.

The Supreme Court majority held the law to be a valid exercise of legislative power to classify and said it does not infringe upon constitutional rights.

Test Suit
The test suit was brought by

Raymond Thompson II., who was graduated from the University of Nebraska Law College in June of last year. The lower court awarded him a $1,374 judgment against the Board of Regents — the money being the difference between resident and nonresident tuition charges for the period of January, 1968, to June, 1970.

The 1971 Legislature, reacting to the district court ruling, rewrote the statute involved, changed the initial residency requirement from four months to one year, and set specific requirements for proof of residence and domicile.

The Supreme Court majority opinion, written by Chief Justice Paul White, said it is clear that the state has the power to classify students on the basis of residency for tuition purposes, and the power to define a resident for tuition purposes differently than a resident for other purposes.

Cost Equalization
Charging an out-of-state student higher tuition carries out the object "of attempting to achieve a partial cost equalization between those persons who have, and those who have not, recently contributed to the state's economy through employment, tax payments, and expenditures within the state," the opinion said.

Additionally, said the opinion, the four-month residency requirement does not prohibit the establishment of legal residence for other purposes. Dissenting was Judge Hale McCown, who wrote: "There is no rational or reasonable basis

Jews Picket Show
London (UPI) — Demonstrations protesting the trial of Jews in the Soviet Union picketed the opening of an exhibition of Soviet photographs. One demonstrator was ejected when he waved a picture of a Jew on trial and tried to interrupt a speech by Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Smirnovsky at the Royal Photographic Society headquarters.

on which an individual who has been a bona fide resident of and domiciled in this state for the initial time period required by the statute, should be denied the right to prove that fact simply because he was in attendance at 'any institution of learning in this state,' whatever that term connotes."

U.N. Sends Mission
United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council voted to send a special mission to investigate the border quarrels between Senegal and Portuguese Guinea.

Court Affirms Hatten's Murder Conviction

By The Associated Press
The State Supreme Court Friday refused to set aside the conviction of Danny C. Hatten, 31, serving a life term at the State Penal Complex for first degree murder in the course of a robbery in Otoe County.

The opinion affirmed the Otoe County District Court in denying Hatten relief under the Post Conviction Act.

Hatten was charged in the 1965 shooting death of Ella Snyder of near Talmage. He gave authorities a confession and, after his jury conviction, signed a waiver of appeal.

Hatten complained of ineffective counsel, claimed that evidence used against him was obtained by unreasonable search and alleged that his constitutional rights against self-incrimination were violated.

The Supreme Court rejected these contentions.

In other opinions Friday, the court:

—Reversed the orders of the Nebraska State Railway Commission which has refused a hearing on the merits of an application to transfer a motor carrier operating certificate from Ernest L. Hansen to Philip G. Scherer, and which had revoked the certificate pursuant to a request from Hansen.

—Upheld the Cherry County District Court in finding in favor of Gary M. Hansen against Arthur J. Abbot who given a check in payment of the account, but later stopped payment on the check.

—Handed down opinions in four related cases involving school boundary matters in Holt County. The Holt County District Court was affirmed in a case involving a freeholder's petition of Fred B. Kaup and Leslie Jane Kaup. The lower court was reversed, however, in its judgments on freeholders' petitions of Edward Dennis and Millie Weber; and Donald and Vita Berni.

Deadline Is Set For Restaurants

Fire Chief John Gabar said Friday that a Sept. deadline has been set for e public restaurants and private clubs to install automatic fire protection devices in their kitchens.

The devices, he said, must be installed in hoods and ducts over cooking units and surface burning areas.

The device must have automatic fuel shut-off comply with Article 14 of fire prevention code.

Gabarron said about 90% of the Lincoln businesses in category have voluntarily complied, and fire inspectors

Nelson Pace Soars For 100th Birthday

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Nelson — Unless your hankers are only ankle-high, this isn't the week for girl watching in Nuckolls County.

A Centennial observance has dropped the hemlines and brought out bustles galore. But it's also perked up the populace like nothing since the old threshing bees.

Sample: an historic pageant which has a cast of 250 bounding through the big moments of the last 100 years. The professionally directed musicale has a four-night run ending Saturday.

"The participants especially are all steamed up about the celebration and by the weekend we hope to have the whole county excited," said Wayne McClure of Nelson, activities chairman. "We're figuring on 200 entries for Saturday afternoon's parade and setting up for 3,500 persons for the barbecue following."

A highlight of pioneer activities Thursday was the honoring of two oldsters. Neal Wehrman, 90, of Angus and Mrs. Bernice Crandall, 87, of Nelson were acclaimed as the oldest residents who were born in the county.

Enthroned earlier in the week at a centennial ball attended by 300 was Mrs. Ronald Petersen of Superior. Her centennial promotional efforts won her the crown.

The week is a big one also for the Keifer brothers, Oswin and Joe, of Bostwick. They rated the Ak-Sar-Ben pioneer farm family award.

Gov. J. James Exon's wife, Pat, was present Thursday afternoon for a "then and now" style revue which featured 19th century fashions. Many were authentic, for example a shadow lace gown which has been in Nelsonite Elva Mumma's family for three generations.

An ostrich-plumed velvet hat not only was becoming to Mrs. Robert Marshall of Superior but was a memento of one of the county's most famous daughters. It had belonged to Superior-born Evelyn Brodstone, later to become Lady Vestey of England.

A fairgrounds display by the Nuckolls County Historical Society reviewed the "Cinderella tale." Several items which had belonged to Lady Vestey enhanced the booth.

Miss Brodstone had taken employment at the Vestey Parking Co. in Chicago, it was recalled, eventually became manager of the firm's London office and then married the boss. Lord William Vestey was described as "one of the richest peers in England."

An Indian artifacts exhibit by Oswin Keifer, the farm honoree, also is drawing its share of lookers. A war bonnet, moccasins and several other items which had been Chief Red Cloud's are of special interest.

An exhibit by Superior artists is another attraction. A number of historic items are being shown by groups and individuals.

Overall chairman of the celebration is Richard Schott of Nelson.

Trial Dates Set In School Disputes Over Contracts

The Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations Friday set trial dates in three of the school cases now pending before the court.

The three suits were brought by teachers' associations against their respective school districts, all alleging that industrial disputes exist over teaching contracts for the coming school year.

The suits are Weeping Water Education Association against the Weeping Water School District; Falls City Education Association against the Falls City School District, and the Central City Education Association against the Central City School District.

The Weeping Water trial was set for Aug. 17; the Falls City trial, for Aug. 12, and the Central City trial, for Aug. 16.

GOP Legislators Support League Of Young Voters

Leaders of the League of Young Voters said Friday four of the five members of Nebraska's congressional delegation have given their support to the newly-formed group.

A statement from the league said support had come from Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska and Reps. Dave Martin and Charles Thone. All are Republicans.

Gov. J. James Exon, a Democrat, and State Democratic Chairman Hess Dyas have also supported the league, the statement said.

The league was formed to encourage the registration of persons enfranchised when the voting age was lowered to 18. The league was formed as a non-partisan group.

Playhouse's Staining Of Mortar To Be Later

By TOM EKVALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Community Playhouse plans to stain later the mortar in the exterior brick walls of its new building at 56th and Normal when funds become available, Sam Davidson, campaign chairman of the building fund, said in a letter Friday to the Lincoln Library Board.

In the letter to Library Board Chairman Jack Hart, Davidson said the board regrets that "we seem to have failed to keep proper lines of communication open with you and the Library Board on the progress we are making in the construction of the new Playhouse."

Library board members Wednesday had complained that masonry work on the playhouse, being built next to the new southeast branch library, is not aesthetically compatible as first agreed when the Library board sold land for the new playhouse to the playhouse group.

Harmony Destroyed
Architect Al Hamersky told the Library Board that although both buildings have a similar exterior, the different mortar destroys the harmony.

Davidson said the fact that Playhouse construction bids exceeded donations required the postponement of some items if not essential to the completion of an operable theater.

"Staining the mortar in the exterior brick walls to provide a solid color effect is one of several items of expenditures which was deferred until such time as funds become available."

Board Agrees

Davidson said the board is in agreement that the two structures should be as compatible as possible without loss of their individuality.

"As an arts-oriented community organization we are especially sensitive to the importance of aesthetics in the appearance as well as the program of our theatre," he said, adding that "we have every intention of enhancing its beauty as funds permit."

Davidson said that meanwhile "we must give primacy of consideration to the practical problem of making ends meet in basic construction so that we can move from our present totally inadequate structure at the earliest possible date."

Council Reviews Budget; $25,750 Hike Suggested

The City Council Friday began its review of the 1971-72 fiscal year budget, tentatively increasing the budget by $25,750 — all out of tax funds.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf has recommended a $64-million budget, $16,067,661 to be supported by taxes.

Council members favored adding $25,000 for land acquisition and $2,500 for election expenses in case any city issues should be put up for a special election.

The council also decided to delete $1,750 included in the general expenses budget for the city to pick up the water bill during the State Fair. Council members concerned that the contribution should not come out of tax funds. The council will take final action on the all additions and cuts in August.

Discussed Requests
Most of the meeting was spent discussing finance department requests.

The only controversy at the budget review session centered on the City Council's budget for trips and conferences.

Council Chairman Dick Hartsock said he proposes $3,000 for the next fiscal year, primarily to cover the costs of council members to attend the National League of Cities conference which will be held in Hawaii.

The $3,000 amount, though, drew criticism from veteran councilwoman Mrs. Helen Boosalis, who said that in this "watch the dollar" year, she felt the council should practice more frugality in its own requests, possibly limiting any council member's trip to $500.

While emphasizing she has no objections to council members attending conferences, she questioned a 300% increase for conferences. The council had budgeted $750 for the present fiscal year.

Football Game

She said her feelings on the Hawaii trip were colored by the fact that the University of Nebraska football team will be playing Hawaii that weekend.

"I'm against taxpayers paying for junkets," Mrs. Boosalis said.

Hartsock said he did not feel council members should have to dip into their own pockets for conference expenses, especially in view of the $20-a-week salary council members receive.

The majority of the council members decided to leave the $3,000 figure in the budget for the conferences and trips.

Progress Delay Said Possible

By United Press International
The Nebraska Environmental Control Council, which met for the first time Friday, was told a "moratorium" on progress may have to be called until there is complete pollution control.

The statement was made by T. A. Filipi, Gov. J. James Exon's special assistant to oversee the launching of the new agency, during the meeting.

He told the council that until technology has sufficiently advanced to provide means of controlling all sources of pollutants, some of them may have to be shut down.

"Yes, there is the possibility we will probably have to call a moratorium on what we call progress until technology has had a chance to catch up in the area of pollution control," Filipi said.

Objections Foreseen
He said some will object to the members of the council that pollution control, at least some phases, costs too much money.

"But I'm sure that all of you on this council are mature enough to realize you can afford anything you really need," Filipi said.

Nature, he said, is the "best pollution treater."

And he said as long as man does not interfere, nature would normally take care of such things by herself.

"That, so to speak, is your job," Filipi said, "to control the sins of man."

Polluter Is 'You'
Others, he said, will point to industry as the cause of pollution. He said, however, the definition he uses of a polluter is "You."

"I want you to give industry credit" for the efforts it has been making in pollution control and will continue to make, Filipi said.

The Council elected T. C. Reeves of Central City as its chairman. Named vice chairman was Mrs. Betty Abbott of Omaha.

Lincoln Receives $213,600

The Lincoln Airport Authority Friday received $213,600 in state funds from the State Aeronautics Commission for construction of an airport terminal, an apron and a taxiway.

Lincoln had requested $384,000 from the state, or 20% of the projects' estimated cost of $1,920,000. This means that the city must come up with another $170,400 on its own for the air facilities.

Aeronautics Director Nicholas Smeloff said that due to requests for state funds totaling $1,218,840 and available funds amounting to $661,198 no project received the amount it originally asked for.

Smeloff said the commission generally granted all requests for improving or adding to main facilities, but that requests for improvements on secondary runways, fencing, access roads and land acquisition were rejected.

The state funds which come from aviation fuel taxes, come to 20% of the total cost usually with the federal government footing the bill for 50% and 30% coming from local sources.

Lincoln received 16% of the total funds and Omaha received 18%.

A total of 13 cities received funds:

Omaha, $271,000 asked, $131,500 given; Lincoln, $384,000 asked, $213,600 given; North Platte, $37,800 asked, $18,900 given; Beatrice, $88,720 asked, $52,758 given; Columbus, $83,320 asked, $48,250 given; Norfolk, $105,920 asked, $52,960 given; Seward, $94,200 asked, $80,450 given; Grant, $38,000 asked and given; Rushville, $24,200 asked and given; Superior, $32,800 asked and given; Falls City, $17,000 asked and given; Grand Island, $30,000 asked, $18,000 given; Chappell, $2,400 asked and given.

GNP Up 8% In 2nd Quarter Inflation Accounts For 4.2%

By NORMAN KEMPSTER
Washington (UPI) — The Nixon administration announced an 8% rise in the nation's output of goods and services in the second quarter of 1971 and hailed it as evidence the economy is recovering, even though half the increase resulted from inflation.

The Commerce Department reported the gross national product (GNP) which measures the value of the total output of goods and services, advanced to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $104 billion in the April-June quarter, up $19.7 billion from the first quarter.

The increase resulted from a 3.6% rise in the actual output of goods and services and from a 4.2% increase in prices.

Inflation Slacks
The inflation rate was well below the 5.3% price increase recorded in the first quarter and was the lowest since the second quarter of 1968 when the rate was a 3.9%. However, the 4.2% current rate remains higher than the inflation for all but three of the 32 quarters in the eight years of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations from 1961 through 1968.

"The second quarter gross national product figures confirm that the economy is on an expansion path," Treasury Secretary John B. Connally said in a statement.

"The increase in GNP of $20 billion in the second quarter was one of the largest in U.S. history," said Connally, who was recently designated as President Nixon's chief economic spokesman.

"The second quarter results were also heartening with respect to price developments," he added.

Below Forecasts
The second quarter figures showed the economy is well below the pace required to reach the administration's January forecast of a $105 trillion GNP for the year as a whole. However, the administration abandoned that goal earlier this month when the shape of the statistics became apparent.

More than three-fourths of the second quarter GNP increase, $15.5 billion, resulted from higher spending for personal consumption. Consumers apparently remained cautious, however, because they saved 8.4% of their income in the second quarter, up from 8.1% in the first quarter and well above the normal 6%.

Some economists attribute the high saving rate to a public concern with unemployment and doubt about the future of the economy. Administration spokesmen have issued a series of reassuring statements recently, in part in an effort to spur consumer spending.

Psychical Researchers Investigate ESP, Apparitions, Flying Objects

By TOM WELLS
Durham, N.C. — A research team is trying to find scientific evidence of something Jesus Christ said nearly 2,000 years ago — that there is life after death.

Their research has led the scientists into the investigation of superstitious and reports of mysterious happenings that have followed man's course through history.

So far, they have not proved or disproved that a human being's soul or other part of him lives after his body dies. But they are convinced that such phenomena as extrasensory perception — ESP — and objects flying through the air for no apparent reason do exist.

Modest Facility
The organization, called the Psychical Research Foundation, was founded 10 years ago. Its headquarters is in two yellow, frame houses in a residential neighborhood of Durham.

The director, W. G. Roll, a graduate of Oxford University, and others connected with the foundation say a part of the reason for their slow progress is that many scientists think their studies are a waste of time.

Consequently, little of the big chunks of money used to finance scientific research finds its way to the foundation. The bulk of the foundation's financing comes from bequests.

Some of the work of the foundation is the investigation of poltergeists, the unexplained movement of objects. The researchers say they have witnessed such occurrences.

Persons connected with the foundation are reluctant to talk about such studies, for two reasons: a fear that reporters will see the work as unscientific ghost chasing, and because they are afraid information on specific families may lead to crank telephone calls and other pranks.

One expedition last year was to a small town in Kentucky, said Dr. Robert Morris, a postdoctorate fellow in the psychiatry department of the Duke Medical Center who works part time with the foundation.

A newspaper reporter made the initial report to the foundation, saying that he himself had seen objects move in a house.

An investigator from the foundation was sent to the scene. The objects, as big as tables, continued to move about, he said. There was no apparent motive for them. The family living in the house was impoverished and scared. No wires, trick doors or other signs of fraud were found.

Agile Table
Roll himself investigated. "The unusual events continued to occur," Dr. Morris said.

"Often it was under the observation of the two observers the foundation. In one instance the kitchen table rose up and rotated at a 45 degree angle and then came to rest with the underside of table on the backs of the chairs with the table legs off the floor."

Eventually, the investigators were forced to leave, "almost at the point of a gun," Morris said. The leader of a community church had convinced the family that the devil was at work and that the investigators were only aggravating the situation, Morris said.

Roll says most poltergeist cases involve a so-called "agent," someone whose presence seems to be connected with the movement of the objects.

That was the case, said Roll, in Miami recently.

Objects reportedly had been flying off shelves in a warehouse where novelty items were stored. The breakings were always found to occur in the presence of an anxiety-plagued young Cuban who worked in the warehouse.

Roll checked the warehouse for fraud and found no wires or other devices that could cause the objects to fly through the air. He said he placed several specific objects on shelves in positions where it would be impossible for them to simply fall.

Roll said he examined the objects in advance and that they were normal, but that even these flew through the air. He added he saw one of the objects in flight just before it crashed to the floor. Other objects dashed to pieces far from where they had been positioned, he said.

No one was in the warehouse area who could have hurled the objects to the floor, Roll said. The breakings remain a mystery.

Apparition Seen
In Jacksonville, Fla., for instance, two investigators from the foundation visited a house where an apparition reportedly had been seen several times.

One investigator, Dr. John Artley, an electrical engineering professor at Duke University, said he saw a glowing light "about the size of a football" at the foot of a bed where seconds before he had seen nothing. Then it disappeared.

He said nothing, wondering if it was a hallucination. "Did you see that?" asked Artley's co-worker. Neither could explain it.

Sound equipment is needed to record sounds that can be heard and those that are beyond the range of the human ear, Morris said, and equipment to detect ultraviolet lights unseen by the naked eye also would be helpful.

Sensor Needed
Also needed, he said, is a machine to measure electromagnetic radiation, to determine if electricity has anything to do with the movement of objects.

The Physical Research Foundation also is studying a Trinidad native who apparently has powers far beyond those of most people who claim to have the sixth sense of ESP.

For almost two years, Lalsingh Harribence, 31, has been undergoing daily tests of his ESP powers while an electroencephalograph records his brain waves.

In a 10-minute test of his ESP in this reporter, Harribence made no incorrect statements about several items of information which he had no apparent way of knowing previously, including the fact that a specific toenail needed trimming worse than others.

Harris Of Oklahoma To Seek Presidency

Norman, Okla. (AP) — Sen. Fred Harris launched what he termed an "exploratory new populist campaign" for the Democratic nomination for president Friday.

"I think it will be a populist campaign not only in philosophy but in practice," the 40-year-old Oklahoma senator told a news conference.

Harris also said he would not seek re-election to the Senate and would refuse any compromise offers.

Not Vice Presidency
As for the vice presidency, he said: "I would consider it only if I could be assured I wouldn't be elected. I would not under any conditions accept the vice presidency."

Asked about other possible posts, he said: "No. They're not even under consideration."

Harris said he believed Sen. Edmond Muskie of Maine was the current leader for the Democratic presidential nomination, but "I believe the people are waiting to make up their minds."

And he said he thought the nature of his campaign would help offset his lack of financing.

Tired Of Hucksters
"People are tired of slick campaigns," he said. "I want to give the people a chance to see and touch the candidate."

"I don't have any budget. I believe Parkinson's Law will apply — expenses rise to meet income. I doubt we'll have trouble spending what we raise."

He defined "populist Democrats" as those who are being exploited and who have a common interest.

Cutting Across Lines
"It is cutting across racial lines and age lines," he said, "to form a populist coalition."

The dark-haired Harris, in his first Senate term, said there were three questions he needed answered before he decided to leave the Senate and seek the presidency.

He listed these as sufficient money, sufficient organization and a unified effort in Oklahoma. "These questions have been answered affirmatively," he said.

Harris said his intention is to enter all the presidential primaries if his "exploratory" candidacy turns serious. At present, however, he is concentrating on the Florida, California and New Mexico primaries.

Natural Gas Rate Lid Will Affect Nebraska

Washington (AP) — The Federal Power Commission has set ceiling rates for sales of Rocky Mountain natural gas under contracts dated after June 17, 1970.

In announcing these rates, the FPC also said it was starting a new rule-making proceeding to set ceiling rates for earlier contracts in that region.

The area involved includes all or part of Colorado, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Utah and Wyoming.

The FPC decision, dated Thursday, said its aim was to stimulate gas exploration and development in the Rocky Mountains area, of which only some 10 to 15% has been explored for gas.

The FPC said evidence gathered by its staff clearly showed a decline in additions to gas reserves in the face of rising demand.

It said the "overwhelming evidence" was that the problem stemmed from a lack of "financial incentive" to new discovery.

The commission set ceiling rates including the following: 23.5 cents in the Colorado-Julesburg Basin of Wyoming and Nebraska; and in the Montana-Dakota area of Montana and North Dakota.

at once put forth by many persons who do not possess the President's understanding of the problem."

Hruska added, "The nation can be assured that the President's long study and intimate knowledge of communism and the way it operates will serve him in good stead in his forthcoming visit and negotiations."

"His action has given the people of the nation a wonderful opportunity to unite solidly behind him as he begins his negotiations. I hope they will rally behind him. I urge them to do so."

Peak Acquired Of Weapon Count By Court Jury

Omaha (AP) — A district court jury has acquitted William L. Peak, 22, of a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

Police witnesses testified that Peak, a member of the now disbanded National Committee to Combat Fascism, had a .38 caliber pistol under his sweatshirt as he approached a house where police were seeking a man named in an arrest warrant. Peak and another witness testified Peak carried the gun openly.

The all-white jury deliberated more than four hours before finding Peak innocent of the charge. Deputy County Attorney Thomas Brown said a juror told him the consensus was that Peak had "no intent" to commit a crime.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. Right.
